Supervisors Kill Plan To Use Hamilton

Board Votes To Oppose Commercial Flight Use

By ERIK M. INGRAM

Marin's 10-year flirtation with joint use of Hamilton Air Force Base ended abruptly yesterday as three county supervisors voted to oppose commercial aviation at the facility. (Other board of supervisors stories, pages 14, 15.)

The vote, which came after an hour of discussion, was followed by a major shakeup of the county's aviation commission — branded earlier by one supervisor as a "lobby for joint use."

Both actions met with approval from a large audience made up primarily of Novato residents who snickered and scoffed at those speaking in support of joint military-civilian use.

Leading the attack was chairman Arnold M. Baptiste, for whom yesterday's action culminated a long political struggle that started a year ago when he was the lone voice of opposition.

He was joined by new Supervisor Gary T. Giacomini and Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr., who in the past has been receptive to joint use proposals.

Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere, after arguing at length in support of further study, abstained from voting, saying the issue amounted to a major shift in county policy and had not been set for a public hear-

Open Space Bond Issue Approved

Marinwood residents gave overwhelming approval yesterday to a $600,000 bond issue to acquire 350 acres of undeveloped land as open space.

The measure was approved by a vote of 1,125 to 172, with 2,334 registered voters eligible to cast ballots in the election. Voter turnout was 55 per cent.

Marinwood Community Services District directors, who had predicted a 75 per cent favorable vote, were overjoyed today by the 86 per cent favorable outcome. A two-thirds majority of the vote cast was needed to pass the measure.

"It's more favorable than anyone expected," declared board member Frank Solomon Jr. "We're extremely pleased."

Director Ellis D. Jaquette, who headed the board's bond election efforts, said the next step is to continue property acquisition negotiations with landowners.

He said that acquisition of the 350 acres eyed by the community as open space "might take as much as two years," but that the board would know "who we'll have to go to the mat with in the next two months."

Though the district board already has come to terms with one landowner, some parcels may have to be acquired through condemnation, he said.

Twelve parcels have been recommended for purchase through bond monies by the open space committee of the Marinwood Homeowners Association. The community services district board has endorsed purchase of the parcels and has appraised the total value of the land at about $600,000, Jaquette said.

Nine of the parcels are clustered in a 328-acre package at the community's northwestern corner. Two parcels, totaling about 21 acres, are located near the community center while another is at the end of Limestone Grade adjoining Highway 101.

Land acquired through the bond money will become the property of the community services district with district directors acting as trustees. Public access will allow recreational uses such as hiking, horseback riding and picnicking.

The Marinwood measure follows similar bond issues in other communities aimed at acquiring open space.

Last April, Lucas Valley residents approved a $315,000 open space bond by a 22 to 1 favorable vote. More recently, San Rafael citizens passed by 3 to 1 a $2.25 million open space bond issue, and Tiburon residents embraced a $1.25 million open space bond by about the same ratio.

War's Tempo Increases In Spite Of Cease-Fire

SAIGON (UPI) — The Vietnam War increased in tempo today despite the announced cease-fire, and highranking U.S. military sources said American ground troops, helicopter and airplane crews will continue their present war missions during the last three days of the war.

"There has been no change in missions," one ranking officer said.

UPI correspondent Alan Dawson reported from Da Nang, 370 miles north of Saigon, that U.S. aircraft were carrying out their normal duties from the sprawling airbase there.

South Vietnamese command spokesmen also said their troops had no change in their current battlefield orders for the last three days of the war.

Dawson reported that as of

Nixon Sees Peace For Southeast Asia

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Vietnam cease-fire ending America's longest and most unpopular war will be followed by similar peace agreements to stop the fighting in Laos and Cambodia, Henry A. Kissinger predicted today.

President Nixon's chief adviser also told a one-hour, 40-minute news conference that the first contingent of nearly 600 American prisoners of war will be flown out of Hanoi —in U.S. planes —within 15 days after the cease-fire comes Saturday at 7 p.m. EST.

The first liberation could come even before the 15 day period ends Feb. 11, Kissinger said. The prisoners will be flown out in four roughly equal groups every two weeks or 15 days —probably to Vientiane, Laos as the first step on their return home.

Kissinger made these other points:

There are no restrictions on U.S. forces in Thailand he said. The United States will continue to maintain air power at bases in Thailand and navy forces off the Vietnam coast after the cease-fire is signed. At the outset, those will be geared for war duties if necessary but will be de-escalated to a peacetime footing if the North Vietnamese keep their cease-fire pledges.

Both China and the Soviet Union will participate in a general conference to be convened in Vienna within 30 days to further guarantee peace in Southeast Asia.

Asked why peace could not have been achieved at the outset of Nixon's presidency four years ago, Kissinger said that until last Oct. 8, the North Vietnamese had insisted that "political victory be handed to them" and the present Saigon

SOME SKEPTICISM

Peace News Is Met With Joy

Joy and happiness at the news of a peace settlement in Vietnam was mingled today with a degree of skepticism by many Marin and Southern Sonoma residents, who maintained an "I'll believe it when I see it" attitude.

In a random telephone poll conducted by Independent-Journal reporters, many of those reached tempered their enthusiasm with such statements as "I am a strong advocate of not counting my chickens before they are hatched."

Others, though, praised the president and Henry Kissinger and called the settlement an "honorable peace."

Here are the reactions of residents of Marin and Southern Sonoma called today.

Ken Pengelly, 27, carpet store owner, 941 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, Kentfield: "Fantastic — hard to believe; so many things will happen in the next few months that we are going to see a continuous change. My only question is, will the men be cut loose from the Army?"

Anne Fromhagen, accounting supervisor, 30 Sunview Avenue, San Anselmo: "Absolutely wonderful; I'm really thrilled. Everyone should be very proud of the President. I think that Kissinger and everyone connected with it should be commended."

Mrs. Lawrence A. Lindberg, 44, teacher, 53 Golden Hinde Boulevard, San Rafael: "I feel terribly sorry for all the people who will be killed or maimed between now and Saturday. It has been a long war. It should have been over a long time ago.

Families Of Prisoners Happy Their Ordeal is Nearly Over

By MARY LEYDECKER

For a 6-year-old San Rafael boy, last night's news of a Vietnam peace settlement seemed to mean that his "Daddy would be home by Saturday."

But a 7-year-old Ignacio boy went to school today, still not knowing whether the father he does not remember is dead or alive.

One is the son of an Air Force captain, a prisoner of war since November 1967. The other's father is an Air Force senior master sergeant, missing in action since 1966.

Little Peter Butler and his sister Sheila, 5, listened to the news last night "with great excitement" and understood what it was about, according to their grandmother, Mrs. Claire Davis, who was staying with them at their San Rafael home.

The children's mother, Julie Butler, wife of Capt. William W. Butler, was in the Virgin Islands on a brief vacation with another POW wife, and could not be reached by phone today.

JESSIE HILL
'Numb' over news

Mrs. Butler has worked for years with the National League of Families of American Prisoners and Missing in Southeast Asia, tirelessly speaking and traveling on behalf of her husband and other prisoners.

"Like all of us, they can't believe it," Mrs. Butler's mother said today about her grandchildren.

She added that her daughter was expected home this week, but she knew Mrs. Butler realized it might take months before she and her husband were reunited. She has had several letters from the captain from a North Vietnam prison and released prisoners have reported seeing him.

For Mrs. Robert L. Hill of Ignacio, the peace news was "so confused."

She has never heard a word about the fate of her husband since he and the rest of his airplane crew were reported missing in October 1966.

Although she said she is "hoping and praying he is still

Nation's Capital To Pay Johnson Homage

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The body of Lyndon Baines Johnson was returned to Washington for the final time today, for a slow procession through the streets of the city he once dominated as the nation's 36th President.

President Nixon, Johnson's widow and family were leading the mourners, with a caisson drawn by six white horses — followed by a single, riderless horse —starting from near the White House and drawing his flag-draped coffin up Constitution Avenue to the cadence of muffled drums.

His final journey to Washington from Texas, where he suffered a fatal heart seizure Monday at his ranch, was aboard the same blue and white presidential jet —made available by Nixon —in which Johnson took the oath of office Nov. 22, 1963,

Day Of Mourning Brings Holiday To Most Offices

A national day of mourning for former President Johnson's funeral will bring a holiday tomorrow to most government employees and in some cases will enable a four-day weekend for schools.

All national and state offices will be closed in both Marin and Southern Sonoma counties, and only special delivery mail will be delivered.

Hamilton Air Force Base and other military installations will be closed, except for essential services.

Marin and Sonoma County offices and courts will be closed.

City offices in Sausalito, Mill Valley, Tiburon, San Anselmo, Fairfax and Cotati also will be shut. San Rafael, Belvedere, Corte Madera, and Novato city offices will remain open, however, Other cities had not decided whether to close late this morning.

Although Mill Valley city offices will be closed, the city council, which was not expected to have a quorum tonight, will meet at 7:45 p.m. tomorrow in adjourned session.

All public schools will close.

Meanwhile, the Dixie, Fairfax, Lagunitas, Larkspur, Lincoln, Mill Valley, Nicasio, Reed, Sausalito and Union elementary districts and Tamalpais High School District and Novato Unified School District are scheduled to hold teacher workshops for Friday, meaning schools will be closed that day as well, providing students with a four-day weekend.

The Marin County Library and all of its branches will be closed. The Larkspur and San Rafael libraries will remain open.

Banks, savings and loans, supermarkets and other stores will remain open.

Jazz Trombonist Edward Ory Dies

HONOLULU (UPI) — Edward "Kid" Ory, the legendary Dixieland trombonist who gave Louis Armstrong his first job and composed "Muskrat Ramble" and "Savoy Blues," died Tuesday. He was 86.

Ory and his wife lived in Sleepy Hollow in the late 1950s. They sold their home at 160 Legend Road in 1959, just prior to making a European tour. After the tour they settled in San Francisco, and in 1961 they moved to Los Angeles.

Ory figured prominently in the news in 1958 when he underwent surgery for removal of a nonmalignant abdominal tumor, and there was an urgent call for blood donations. He was given the last rites of the church but recovered after three months of treatment.

Ory brought the trombone to prominence in the early days of New Orleans jazz with his "tailgate" style. He had been hospitalized for two months with pneumonia.

"His heart just gave out," said his wife, Barbara.

Ory had a jazz career that spanned almost 70 years—starting in the famed Storyville district of New Orleans at the age of 10.

EDWARD (KID) ORY
Legendary jazz musician

He played for Buddy Bolden, one of the first of the modern jazzmen and the man Ory credited with originating the Dixieland style. According to Ory, Bolden jazzed up religious music and tunes of the roustabouts and put them through his cornet.

Ory formed his own band at age 15. It played from a pair of horse-drawn covered wagons with Ory sitting at the tailgate to keep from hitting fellow musicians with his trombone slide. Many jazz giants, including Armstrong and Joe "King" Oliver, got their first jobs with his band.

"Louis was a little fellow then and he wasn't used to playing with an orchestra, just marchin' bands," Ory said of "Satchmo" a few years back. "I loaned him some money to get some clothes and then offered him the first real job he had. At that time, he knew only five numbers."

Armstrong and jazz later moved to Chicago, but Ory and his band headed to Los Angeles in 1919. He joined the Chicago scene six years later at the insistence of Armstrong, Oliver and Jelly Roll Morton.

He retired and became a poultry farmer for several years before making a comeback in 1944, playing jazz clubs from coast-to-coast and eventually buying a San Francisco nightclub, On The Levee. He moved to Los Angeles in 1961 for his wife's health and to Hawaii five years later.

Testimony Of Network For Campaign

WASHINGTON (UPI) -- President Nixon's campaign aides say their fear of violence to top Republicans during the presidential race led them to set up an "intelligence-gathering" network to provide protection, but their precautions did not include bugging Democratic national headquarters.

Jeb Stuart Magruder, former deputy director of the Committee for the Re-election of the President, and his assistant, Herbert L. Porter, testified at the Watergate political espionage trial Tuesday of widespread Republican fears of violence and even physical attacks as the campaign approached.

"By this time, we had indications of potential problems in areas we intended to go into, particularly our rallies where we wanted to send surrogate speakers for the President," said Magruder. He testified there had been "a number of death threats," particularly against then-campaign director John N. Mitchell and his wife, Martha.

Magruder and Porter testified at the trial as the lead-off administration witnesses. Former White House aide G. Gordon Liddy and former CIA agent James W. McCord Jr. are being tried on charges of conspiracy, burglary, bugging and wiretapping in connection with the June 17 break-in at the Democratic national committee offices at the Watergate complex. Seven men originally were indicted in the case, but five of them have pleaded guilty.

The trial was to continue today, but will recess Thursday to observe the national day of mourning for the late President Lyndon B. Johnson.

Magruder confirmed to the jury of eight women and four men that he had hired Liddy to set up a $250,000 network to gather information on leftwing and rightwing organizations in the nation and to learn what demonstrations were planned at the Republican national convention.

Special Meeting

A special meeting of Sausalito School District trustees will be held at 8 a.m. tomorrow in the district office at 630 Nevada Street to call for bids for the construction of toilets at Bayside School, according to Supt. Lawrence A. Lindberg.

Money Buys Anything In Dehmazang Prison

KABUL (UPI) — Michael Fleming, 25, son of a brigadier general in the U. S. Air Force Reserve, drew deeply on a hashish cigarette in Dehmazang Prison and described conditions there as "rock bottom."

"This is my 60th day in here," said Michael, who was jailed for possession of hashish following a raid in a hippie hotel.

Two U.S. narcotics agents participated in the raid which was prompted by the death of an American girl from a drug overdose.

The long-haired and bleary-eyed Fleming told this interviewer at the jail that a prison guard sold him the hashish he was smoking.

"You can make it here if you have money," said Fleming, of (878 W. Harrison St.) Claremont, Calif. "They don't give you any food. If I didn't have money I would starve."

He said guards bought food for him and the 30 or so other foreign prisoners at a bazaar just outside the mud walls of the prison.

"We don't have any beds," he said. "We sleep on the floor."

Fleming said he shared a cell with a friend from boyhood, David Weed, 26, from Glendale, Calif.

Fleming said he and Weed cooked their food on a charcoal burner in their cell.

"I've eaten a little opium here," said Fleming.

Asked if a guard secured that for him too, he nodded affirmatively but whispered "I can't talk now."

A guard, who understood and spoke a little English, stood beside Fleming as he talked in the visitors' room at the prison, a small room heated by a wood-burning stove.

Visitors, even embassy officials, are never permitted to see the cells.

"I've been through all drugs," Fleming said. "I've been a smack (heroin) freak. I've been an acid (LSD) freak. I was in the West Hollywood Drug Clinic for treatment. Do you know that place?"

He said that when his case is completed, he wants to visit his 7-year-old daughter in Mendocino, Calif. He said he and his wife had been separated for two years.

"I was halfway through getting my pilot's license," he said. "I want to finish that."

As for now, Fleming said the main thing he wanted to do was get out of Dehmazang Prison.

Shortly after the interview Fleming and Weed were freed on bail.

A Literary Note No Milk Policy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A congressman with literary flair today urged Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz to resist the blandishments of dairy leaders seeking to persuade him to increase the government support rate for milk.

Rep. Paul Findley, R-Ill., advised Butz in a letter to follow the example of the mythical Ulysses, who found a novel way to protect himself from attractions which would have led to the destruction of his ship.

"Chain yourself to the mast, and be not beguiled by the Siren songs," Findley said. He noted that dairy leaders have asked for an 18.4 per cent boost in milk supports, but urged Butz to grant only the minimum 4 per cent increase which will be required by law on April 1.

The Mountain Lion Population Is Up

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The state Fish and Game Department reports the number of mountain lions in California has at least doubled during the last 10 years and is more than four times greater than previously estimated.

The department reported the totals Tuesday in its first report on a mountain lion study ordered by the Legislature in 1971 when it established a four-year moratorium on hunting the animal.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Alexandros Dies

ATHENS (UPI) — Friends of Aristotle Onassis said today the shipping magnate is so upset by the death of his only son, Alexandros, 24, that he feels like "selling everything" and leaving Greece.

Alexandros died yesterday of injuries suffered in the crash of a private plane at Athens airport.

Friends said the 68-year-old shipping millionaire did not even want to see the body of his son.

The death, they said, made Onassis feel like selling his extensive holdings, which range from the Olympic airways to his private island of Skorpios, and leaving Greece.

Sentenced To Die

PROVO, Utah (UPI) — A convicted murderer was sentenced yesterday to die before the state prison firing squad by a judge who interpreted the U.S. Supreme Court's death penalty decision as a ban on life terms for slayers.

Attorney H. Grant Ivins said he would appeal a decision by superior Court Judge George E. Ballif to sentence to death James W. Winkle, 31, who was convicted of shooting two teenage girls to death in August, 1972.

Ivins said he would seek a clarification as to the state of the death penalty in Utah in his appeal to the State Supreme Court.

Robot 'Sleeps'

MOSCOW (UPI) — A two-week lunar night enveloped the Soviet Lunokhod 2 moon robot today for the first time, sending it into mechanical hibernation. A nuclear heater protected its electronic parts against temperatures as low as minus 200 degrees, the news agency Tass said.

The eight-wheeled vehicle rested on the edge of a crater on the sea of Serenity, one-half mile from where it rolled onto the moon Jan. 16 from the Luna 21 mothership.

Tass said Lunokhod 2 was making the first robot study of the lunar surface's magnetic field.

Shifting Base

BELFAST (UPI) — Security officials said today the Irish Republican Army (IRA) is shifting the base of its operations to the border area, along the dividing line between Northern Ireland and the Irish republic.

The reason, the officials said, is increasing pressure applied in Northern Ireland and the Irish republic.

Along the border, the officials said, IRA men can dodge back and forth across the frontier to evade capture and launch sporadic attacks.

They said the new emphasis on the border is the result of the British army's occupation of onetime IRA-controlled Roman Catholic areas of Londonderry and Belfast and a crackdown on the IRA in the republic.

Lava Nears Town

VESTMANNAEYJAR, Iceland (UPI) — Streams of glowing lava creeping down the sides of a volcano dormant for at least 5,000 years threatened today to bury the almost abandoned main town on Heymaey Island south of Iceland.

Only a few hundred volunteer rescue workers, police and firemen remained behind, hoping to save what they could on Iceland's most important fishing town.

The volcano Helgafjell erupted early Monday, tearing a two-mile-long rift across the 2½-mile wide island.

Clutching arms full of belongings, the 5,000 inhabitants were evacuated shortly after the eruption, fleeing as thousands of tons of burning lava, stones and ashes were hurled into the sky.

Rejects Petition

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Trade Commission today turned down a petition from an anti-smoking group which wanted it to move immediately against radio and television commercials for "little cigars."

The FTC said Congress should handle the problem, as it told the lawmakers yesterday in a report on the matter. The agency suggested in that report that Congress redefine the term cigarette for purposes of law so that "little cigars" would be covered, and their makers forced to adhere to the ban on broadcast cigarette commercials.

Continuance In Trial Is Granted

SANTA MONICA (UPI) — A superior court judge has granted a two-week continuance in the manslaughter trial of Susan Brophy, wife of former Assemblyman Bill Brophy, to await an appeals court ruling on a defense motion to supress evidence.

Mrs. Brophy is charged with felony manslaughter in the traffic deaths of Chris G. Panas, 48, and his wife, Elizabeth, 49, who were killed June 18 when Mrs. Brophy's car collided with theirs on Pacific Coast Highway.

Judge Laurence J. Rittenband Monday granted a continuance until Feb. 7 to await the appeals court decision on a defense petition to have blood samples taken after the accident disallowed as evidence.

Mrs. Brophy also is charged with one count of driving under the influence of drugs.

Park Use Policy Studied By San Anselmo Council

The San Anselmo City Council moved last night to draw policy on use of the city's Robson-Harrington Park in an effort to avoid future conflicts with the will governing the popular facility.

The council told parks director Gary S. Howell to draft a list of possible uses of the park for review by Robson Trust attorney Robert J. Dreher.

If guidelines provided by Dreher are too restrictive, the city will seek a court interpretation of the will governing uses of the park, according to Mayor Warren R. Perry.

The action came in the wake of a flap last November when city ownership of the park was jeopardized after Dreher learned the city had approved two political fund-raising parties at the Robson-Harrington Carriage House. The will governing use of the park and grounds prohibits political events or commercial ventures.

Dreher later dropped his investigation of the matter, saying the political uses were the result of an honest misinterpretation of the will. But the attorney warned the city he would go to court to seek reversion of the park to the Robson Trust if future violations occurred.

"We almost lost (ownership) of that park," declared Councilman Woodrow V. Capurro in urging development a clear-cut policy on rental and appropriate uses of the park. "As councilmen, if anything does happen, we're directly responsible," he added.

Councilman Martin G. Blinder urged colleagues to adopt "as liberal a policy as possible," saying the city should demand compliance only with those guidelines made specific by the will.

Howell, noting that the will is a broad and unclear document, said questionable uses of the facility include rental by individuals, rather than organizations, and consumption of alcoholic beverages at wedding receptions. "And how do we define an organization?" he wondered.

The 2.65-acre park was willed to the city in 1968 by the late Kernan Robson on condition the city pay $26,029 in back taxes, reserve use of the parcel for a "park and playground only," prohibit commercial ventures and not sell the land. The will governs use of the parcel until 1977.

In a later clarification of the document, Dreher told the city that use of the park for "political or semipolitical" purposes is also prohibited.

The city apparently violated the will when it approved a fund raiser at the park last summer for former supervisorial candidate William J. Filante and again in late October when Dorothy Blinder, wife of councilman Blinder, received approval for a similar event for former supervisorial candidate Barbara Boxer.

The San Anselmo City Council also:

PEACE — Heard Blinder declare the last 24 hours had been "momentous" in view of the death of former President Lyndon B. Johnson and the announcement hours later by President Richard M. Nixon of an imminent cease-fire and troop withdrawal in Vietnam.

DRAINAGE — Directed City Atty. Hadden Roth to review the city's legal position in connection with a drainage problem at 37 Carlson Court sparked by water which cascades from a pipe on Camino de Herrera.

APPEAL — Put over to Feb. 13 an appeal by James Cook of planning commission action which tabled his application for a use permit for a single-family residence at 28 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard.

LINCOLN AVENUE — Approved an appeal by William Waters of planning commission denial of a variance for improvement of a garage and construction of a breezeway and tool shed at 56 Lincoln Avenue. The council, faced with petitions by 31 neighbors who supported the improvement, said the commission action was inconsistent with the intent of the zoning ordinance and noted allowing the variance would save several trees.

HEALTH SERVICES — Put over a contract and fee schedule proposed by the county for inspections done in the city by the county department of health services.

TENNIS COURTS — Called for a joint meeting with the San Anselmo School District board at 8 p.m. Feb. 13 to resolve trustee objections to an agreement providing for joint funding of tennis courts at Red Hill School. At issue is total expense of the project, future maintenance of the courts and the status of the facilities should either side withdraw from the agreement.

FLOOD INSURANCE — Put over discussion of city entry into a federal flood insurance program until Feb. 13.

LIBRARIAN — Appointed Faith Merian as a junior librarian at a salary of $682 monthly.

STREET PROJECTS — Said plans to widen and install traffic signals at Sunny Hills and Shaw drives have been abandoned in the wake of school board and parental protest that the project would encroach on a nearby playground and school. Instead, the city will proceed with original plans to modernize traffic signals along Sir Francis Drake Boulevard from the Red Hill Shopping Center to the Fairfax City limits, according to City Engineer Charles T. Leitzell. The council also asked the county to provide $20,000 in matching funds from gas tax monies to improve signals and channeling at Red Hill Avenue and Sequoia Drive at Greenfield Avenue.

NEWSLETTER — Approved a proposal by Blinder for a bimonthly newsletter on council affairs and told staff to study the legal implications of such a service after City Atty. Hadden Roth noted the newsletter might enable city leaders to promote individual political aims. The newsletter, Blinder said, would be published free in a local weekly newspaper and is aimed at promoting citizen participation in government.

TOMPKINS PROPERTY — Referred to the citizens general plan committee for study a suggestion by Blinder that the city acquire the 1.5-acre Tompkins property across from Sequoia Drive and Bungalow Avenue. A house on the parcel should be preserved since it is the oldest in the city, Blinder said.

AERIAL SURVEY — Heard Blinder report his proposal to airlift city councilmen over the city for an aerial survey by helicopter would cost $135 an hour. Colleagues said the proposal would give them a new perspective on the city, but took no action on the matter.

TRUCKS — Awarded a $6,272 contract to Stan Wisnes Pontiac of San Rafael, low bidder, for two pickup trucks.

FEE — Set $25 as the fee for filing tentative parcel maps and $15 for map checking procedures.

BOND ELECTION — Formally called for a $500,000 open space bond election for April 17.

PROTEST — At the recommendation of the citizens general plan committee, declared the city will send letters of protest to President Richard M. Nixon and other federal officials in connection with a recent announcement that issuance of federal housing assistance money, public facility loans and open space acquisition funds has been halted.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to 8 p.m. Feb. 13.

Cease-Fire Pact Will Be Signed

government be dismantled.

Even though an end of combat was in sight, the war increased its tempo Wednesday and high-ranking U.S. military sources said in Saigon. U.S. ground troops, helicopter and plane crews will continue their present missions.

Intelligence experts foresaw intensive fighting between North and South Vietnamese units before the cease-fire becomes effective.

Of the further cease-fire arrangements which President Nixon hopes will bring "peace with honor" throughout Southeast Asia, Kissinger said the agreement concerning Laos would be a formal one to be negotiated by the warring sides.

The cease-fire in Cambodia will be a de facto cessation which will "come into being over a period of time," the President's chief peace negotiator said.

Kissinger declined to elaborate on further details of the additional cease-fire plans but said:

"It is our firm expectation that within a short period of time there will be a formal cease-fire in Laos which, in turn, will lead to a withdrawal of all foreign forces from Laos. And, of course, to the end of use of Laos as a corridor of infiltration.

The Cambodian situation is more complex, he said at the televised news conference, but he commented. "It is our expectation that a defacto cease-fire will come into being over a period of time."

The 587 American POWs the Pentagon says Hanoi holds will be evacuated by medical teams who will fly to Hanoi periodically.

All the prisoners are to be liberated and the remaining 23,700 American troops pulled out of Vietnam by March 28 under the agreement which is to be signed in Paris Saturday with Secretary of State William P. Rogers representing the United States.

It sets up a four-nation force of 1,160 men to supervise the truce and calls for an international conference within 30 days—probably in Vienna —to further guarantee the peace.

There was no reference to a withdrawal of the estimated 145,000 North Vietnamese troops in South Vietnam but Kissinger said any reinforcements would be prohibited. South Vietnamese and Viet Cong military contingents are to remain in place at the point when the cease-fire comes. The President's national security adviser said both the North Vietnamese and the United States "recognize that the South Vietnamese have the right of self-determination."

In Paris, Hanoi's chief negotiator, Le Duc Tho, who with Kissinger initialed the historic agreement Tuesday, said the negotiations were marked as "many particularly difficult and tense moments."

Tho described the conflict as "the most murderous war in the history of movements of national liberation by oppressed people in the entire war."

"This war profoundly distressed the human consciousness," he commented.

From Hanoi, the Soviet news agency Tass reported that North Vietnam Prime Minister Pham Van Dong hailed the cease-fire as a "great victory" and pledged his people would "march ahead in the cause of liberation of South Vietnam and the reunification of the homeland."

In Washington, Jerry Gordon, national coordinator of the biggest antiwar group, the National Peace Action Coalition (NPAC), said his group would go ahead despite the agreement with plans for an "out now" march on the Capitol Feb. 23.

Gordon claimed thousands of American advisers were still pouring into South Vietnam and "It is absurd to suggest that the signing of the agreement will inaugurate peace," he said. Kissinger said "we did not increase our demands" in negotiations with the North Vietnamese after a tentative agreement in October appeared to break down, followed by massive U.S. bombing of the North.

The United States, under the agreement announced to the nation by Nixon last night, will remove the mines sowed in North Vietnamese harbors while Hanoi will refrain from infiltrating troops and war supplies into the south.

The United States will be permitted to provide unlimited economic aid to South Vietnam and to supply military equipment replacement for the Saigon government forces.

The first test of Hanoi's good faith will come in the release of the American prisoners of war. The Pentagon says 587 are being held in North Vietnam and elsewhere.

The cease-fire will still the guns in the war 12 years after the first of 45,933 U.S. servicemen fell in battle in a country virtually unknown a decade ago by most Americans.

In his nationally televised 10-minute address, Nixon said "ending the war is only the first stop toward building the peace."

LBJ

after the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

The departure from Texas was marked by a poignant scene harking back to the Kennedy funeral. When Johnson's body was transferred to the big blue and white plane, his grandson, Patrick Nugent, 5, saluted the coffin. The son of Johnson's younger daughter held his right hand at his eyebrow for two minutes.

It recalled the day of Kennedy's Washington funeral when his son John Jr., 3 at the time, saluted his father's casket as it was taken from the church for the procession to Arlington National Cemetery.

Johnson's body will lie in state all night beneath the ornate rotunda of the Capitol where he began his Washington career as a congressional doorkeeper 38 years ago.

Johnson's funeral is set for 10 a.m. EST tomorrow at the National City Christian Church. His body will be flown back to Texas for burial in a secluded hill country family cemetery.

Johnson's body had lain in state in a gray metal casket draped with a U.S. flag for 21 hours in the LBJ Library on the University of Texas campus.

At Bergstrom AFB, Tex., as the body was placed aboard Nixon's plane, a military band played "Hail to the Chief" and "Mighty Fortress Is Our God" and six Army howitzers boomed a 21-gun salute. Two hundred smartly uniformed members of the 2nd Armored Division and the 5th Army's "Hell on Wheels" Division ringed the jetliner as the Johnson family boarded.

Johnson will lie in state on the so-called Lincoln catafalque in the rotunda of the U.S. Capitol —the fourth time in a decade it has borne the remains of an American President.

Workers this morning placed the catafalque, a simple bier of boards covered with black cloth, in the middle of the rotunda at the exact center of the Capitol.

The catafalque was first used for President Abraham Lincoln and was last used in May for FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover. It also was used for honors for Presidents John F. Kennedy in 1963; Herbert C. Hoover in 1964 and Dwight D. Eisenhower in 1969.

2nd Shot Killed Haley—Thomas

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Judge Gary Thomas testified today that the shotgun blast that killed Judge Harold Haley outside the Marin County civic center in 1970 was the second fired inside the van where he, Haley and three others were held prisoner.

Testifying at the murder trial of Ruchell Magee, accused of killing Haley, Thomas said the first shot was fired by Jonathan Jackson at law officers outside the truck. No shots were fired at the van from outside before the blast that killed Haley, Thomas said.

Thomas was wounded during the incident and is partially paralyzed.

The lone dissenting vote was cast by Supervisor Michael Wornum, who said environmental and economic studies should be made before a decision is rendered.

Prompting the discussion was a proposal that the county finance an environmental impact report, which was requested last fall by Baptiste when he still was in the minority.

Yesterday, however, Baptiste urged the environmental report be scrapped as a waste of the taxpayers' money.

"I don't think an environmental impact report will make one iota of difference to the people of Marin," he said, adding his belief that opposition to joint use is countywide.

"I feel a policy decision is needed," he continued, "that the county of Marin is opposed to joint use of Hamilton."

He drew immediate support from Giacomini, who said he feared there would be no way to control commercial aviation if the Air Force ever abandoned the facility.

"I would rather explore alternative and improved uses of, Gnoss Field," he said.

Wornum countered that many arguments against joint use — such as pollution — may, in fact, be arguments in favor since statistics indicate more auto exhaust is created by persons traveling to San Francisco International than would be created by passenger jets flying out of Marin (on a per passenger basis).

He added that commercial flights out of Hamilton would lessen Marin's reliance on the auto and would create job opportunities — both called for in the proposed countywide plan.

Roumiguiere, meanwhile, said he wasn't convinced that joint use would be a detriment to the Novato area as some residents maintained.

He said criticism of the aviation commission was unwarranted since it had been following the direction of the board which in the past had urged joint use study.

Arrigoni, who last year agreed to write the Department of Defense saying a joint use plan would be forthcoming, likened the controversy to that which surrounded the Highway 17 extension which rocked the Ross Valley five years ago.

He said many of his constituents were opposed to joint use and therefore he wouldn't vote for it.

"No politician that supported Highway 17 is still in office," he reflected cautiously as he made the motion to oppose joint use.

Possibly most disappointed by the board's decision was Benjamin R. Ostlind, who drafted the first joint use plan in 1963 and has been a fervent supporter since.

"This will never be dead," he told the Independent-Journal after the meeting. "Nothing as important as this can be put down for political benefit."

Ostlind, who characterized yesterday's board action as "a sad display" since no public hearing had been called, said he had not expected Arrigoni to vote opposing joint use.

"I'm not through with this," he added. "I'll never give up."

Ostlind, as well as Alton Cox of the Greater San Rafael Chamber of Commerce, spoke briefly in support of the issue yesterday. But a parade of Novatans complained of noise and pollution.

Baptiste, who two weeks ago called for abolishment of the aviation commission, withdrew that proposal yesterday and suggested instead the commission be restructured.

After a session of give and take, the board compromised at leaving the commission at seven members, but giving three seats to Novato area residents.

Under the compromise, five members will be selected by supervisorial district, one on the recommendation of the Novato City Council and one at-large from the Novato area.

With the proposal, approved 4-1 with Arrigoni dissenting, several members of the existing commission are expected to be axed.

Those include Richard P. Nave and David B. Vail, who were scheduled for reappointment, and Byron D. White, who represents Giacomini's district. Giacomini reportedly is looking for a replacement.

Joy Greets Nixon's Peace Announcement

It's hard to imagine how we got there in the first place."

Daphne Crawford Greene, 43, Willow Avenue, Ross, chairman of the board of the Graduate Theological Union in Berkeley: "My reaction is how does one have a peace with honor when the war began in dishonor? But I'm glad it's over."

Nancy J. Eitreim, 30, housewife, 17 Bolanose Drive, San Rafael: "I hope it's here. . .it's wonderful if it is. It's something we've all been working toward for a long time."

Kim M. Jnes, 23, housewife, 7 Elaine Avenue, Mill Valley: "I think it's a lie."

J. Curry Miller, 22, maitre d'hotel, 10 Kensington Court, San Anselmo: "If peace had been reached before Christmas, as was so cleverly announced, there might have been some cause for rejoicing. But most of us don't know how to feel when the war has gone on for so long and is apparently so politically manipulated."

Lucy Gutowsky, 48, housewife, 28 Echo Avenue, Corte Madera: "Very happy, of course. I have two sons, one 17 and one who took his physical but was never called. But I'm happy not only for them but for everyone else concerned. And happy for our country."

Mrs. Robert S. Nixon, 24, housewife, 627 Ignacio Boulevard, Novato: "I think it's fantastic if it goes through. I'm a little hesitant — we've been over there for so long. Both my husband and my brother spent a year over there. I'm so happy."

Bennett Wren, 44, clothing store owner, 2 Rolling Hills Road, Tiburon: "I'm very happy the war's over . . . I just heard Kissinger's speech. I want to read further what he has to say."

Mrs. Raymond H. Thayer, senior citizen who declined to give her exact age, housewife, 86 Culloden Park Road, San Rafael: "It's wonderful."

Mrs. Oscar Tiboni, housewife, 256 Montego Key, Ignacio: "Great — that's my reaction."

Carolyn Heinrichs, 34, secretary, 1258 Ramona Lane, Petaluma: "I don't know what to think about it. I'm tickled to death. It's about time."

Richard Lieb, 40, architect, One Highland Road, Petaluma: "It's great . . . that's what I think. I'm glad all the prisoners are coming home. Mr. Nixon seems to have gotten an honorable peace."

Carol Lloyd, 28, housewife, 120 Alma Avenue, Rohnert Park: "I think it's good if it works out. I'll believe it when the guys really come home."

Mrs. Earl H. Kissinger, 52, housewife, 206 Trestle Glen Terrace, Tiburon: "It's pretty wonderful, a step in the right direction. I don't know if Southeast Asia problems will ever be settled, I don't know enough about these things."

Frank Seewester, 22 hairstylist, 4 Belle Avenue, Fairfax: "I am a strong advocate of not counting my chickens before they are hatched. I really have no feelings at all yet, I'll have to wait until it is put in my hand. When every one is out of there and the fighting and dying is stopped, then it will be time to celebrate."

Mrs. Vera Miller, 63, housewife, 29 Valley Road, San Anselmo: "I am certainly all for it. They are making a great endeavor to make peace. Whether or not this is a permanent thing is another question. It certainly is wonderful news for the POW families and I pray it is true."

Mrs. Marie Dinger, 60, housewife, 400 Oak Court Road, San Anselmo: "I am very happy about it. I think things are finally jelling, they have been dickering long enough. I only wish it would have come a few days before so that former President Johnson could have known about it and before President Nixon's inaugural."

Mario Panichelli, 39, barber, of the Larkspur Barber Shop, Magnolia Avenue, Larkspur: "I am very happy about it, but I think it's kind of silly that they are not going to cease fire until Saturday — if they've ended it, it should be right away."

Mrs. Herb M. Kristal, housewife, 222 San Felipe Way, Novato: "At first I was wildly happy, but a lot of questions are being raised I have to think about. Just how much protection does South Vietnam have? This is what kept us in the war so long. I certainly hope this is a fair peace for all sides."

Gail O'Neill, Airline reservations clerk, 155 San Felipe Way, Novato: "I think it's fantastic that it is over. We're kind of holding our breath that it works."

Darlene Berg, housewife, 330 Marin Oaks Drive, Novato: "Finally . . . it could have been done long ago. We're anxious to get everybody back."

William Harrington, 19, print shop worker, 20-C Olive Drive, Novato: "It's great. I was just up for this lottery."

the 8 a.m. Sunday (7 p.m. EST Saturday), when the cease-fire goes into effect, unarmed U.S. helicopters will continue to fly administrative missions. But he said helicopter gunships and fighter-bombers would be ready to scramble to their aid if they are fired upon.

U.S. warplanes did not show signs of slowing down. During the 24 hours ending at 8 a.m. today, there were 348 sorties by American jet fighterbombers throughout South Vietnam, the U.S. Command said. In addition, B52 heavy bombers flew 29 three-plane missions in Vietnam and also hit Communist targets in Cambodia and Laos.

Before the cease-fire goes into effect intelligence experts predict heavy fighting as both the Communists and South Vietnamese move to consolidate their holds on contested territory.

There was a definite increase in Communist activity during the 24 hours ending at 4 p.m. today, military sources said. There were 116 Communist-initiated incidents, 80 of which were shellings, around the country during that period, they said. It was the highest level since 98 were reported Jan. 7.

Thirteen B52 strikes hit west of Quang Tri City, 404 miles north of Saigon. The demolished provincial capital is believed one of the prime targets of North Vietnamese-Viet Cong units in any landgrabbing assault.

She is survived by four daughters, Belle Bettinelli of Petaluma, Virginia Huntley of Novato, Mary Fiest of Santa Rosa and Yolanda Falconi of the Philippine Islands; two sons, Peter Bolan of San Mateo and Tony Bolan of San Jose; 12 grandchildren and 15 great-grandchildren.

Requiem Mass will be offered at 11 a.m. Friday at St. Vincent de Paul Church, Petaluma. Recitation of the Rosary will be at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the Sorenson funeral home. Burial will be at Calvary Cemetery.

GUY CIOCCA

Guy Anthony Ciocca, 2-month-old son of Dennis G. and Mary Frances Ciocca of Corte Madera, was found dead in his crib at 12:30 p.m. yesterday, according to the Marin County Coroner's Office.

The infant had been left sleeping at a baby sitter's home, and Mrs. Ciocca discovered his death when she arrived to take him home. Attempts to revive the baby at Marin General Hospital were unsuccessful. An autopsy is scheduled.

The infant was a grandson of the late Judge Guy Anthony Ciocca, a lifelong Marin County resident who died in 1960.

The baby is survived by his parents and a sister, Catherine Frances Ciocca of the home at 625 Chapman Drive, Corte Madera and his grandparents, Edith M. Ciocca of Kentfield and Mr. and Mrs. Francis T. Donohue of Chico.

A Memorial Mass of Resurrection will be offered at 10:30 a.m. Friday in the chapel of San Domenico School for Girls, Sleepy Hollow. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery, San Rafael.

WAITING

alive," she has "tried to prepare mysIf for either way."

After a sleepless night, she said she was "numb" today and felt "like I am standing still after six years."

She sent her son, Robert Jr., to school today so he would have something else to think about during the waiting period.

Little Robert, like the Butler children, knows his father only from pictures. Sheila Butler was three weeks old when her father was shot down and has never seen him.

The Air Force has told Jessie Hill that her husband was in line for a promotion. "But I'd rather have him home than any promotion," she said, gulping back a tear.

Pay Proposal Study Tonight

A proposal to pay salaries of up to $300 a month to directors of the Bolinas Community Public Utility District again will be considered by the district board at 7:30 p.m. today in the district office, 270 Elm Road.

At the board's meeting Saturday, it was proposed that salaries be paid to only two board members, Gregory Hewlett and Orville Schell. But Paul Kayfetz, Bolinas attorney, told the board that wages, perhaps up to $300 a month, would have to be paid to all directors if any are granted.

In the face of opposition from several residents who attended the meeting, the board continued the discussion until tonight's session.

Marion School Phase-Out Viewed

Novato Unified School District trustees, already considering closing Pacheco School in Raphael Village, looked last night toward eventual phasing out of Marion School in the downtown area.

Although the purpose of last night's discussion was originally to try to find a home for North Marin High School, now in a rented building which doesn't meet the state's earthquake resistant standards, trustees soon began speaking of long-range plans.

Trustees instructed the staff to develop plans to place North Marin High, the district's continuation school, in the district administration building at the Marion School site, move administrators to rented office space on San Marin Drive and move a portable administration building to Novato High School for an Air Force Junior Reserve Officers Training Corps building.

The vote was 6-1, with trustee Carolyn M. Crabtree, who opposed "accumulating three years of rent receipts" for office space for administrators, dissenting.

Originally, the board had planned to place North Marin High in portable buildings at the Marion School site at a cost estimated at $100,000.

Trustee Marret B. Boissevain had believed another choice would be to place North Marin High at Pacheco School, But Supt James C. Bunker said Indian Valley Colleges is interested in using Pacheco for classes.

Trustee William T. Eckhoff talked of "phasing out" Marion School and described the site, opposite the Novato Downtown Center, as potentially profitable.

Chairman Ronald D. Schenck said while the district administration was in temporary quarters, the board would have time to conduct a "feasibility study" on use of Marion School and prepare a long-range plan.

Boissevain said if the district abandoned Marion School, it probably could get enough money to build "a pretty good administration building and have some left over."

The Novato Unified School District board also:

BUDGET WORKSHOPS — Agreed to have the board as a whole, rather than a committee, conduct budget workshops with teachers and administrators, with dates yet to be set. Trustees said public comment would be welcome at the sessions.

WORK EXPERIENCE — Approved a five-year plan for work experience education after Alan L. Hopkins, district coordinator of vocational education, reported the program is "growing and popular" with students. At Novato High School, 155 students are in the program and at San Marin High School, 138.

SUMMER SCHOOL — Approved an outline for the summer school program, June 25 to July 27, for elementary pupils at Lynwood School and June 25 to Aug. 3 for junior and senior high school students at Novato High School and Hill Junior High School.

JOINT MEETINGS — Agreed to have joint meetings with the Novato City Council starting Feb. 27 at 7:30 a.m. at Sambo's restaurant.

GIFTS — Received $600 from the Lu Sutton School Parent-Teacher Association for Lu Sutton School and $228 from the Sinaloa Junior High School Parent-Faculty Club for equipment for the school library.

POSSIBLE HOLIDAY — Agreed that schools would be open Thursday unless Gov. Ronald Reagan declared it a state holiday rather than a "day of mourning" for the late President Lyndon B. Johnson.

INJURY CLAIM — Denied a $150,000 claim by Phillip H. Janer of 517 Fairway Drive in behalf of Nathan Janey for a broken jaw and tooth injury suffered on the Loma Verde School playground Nov. 20.

NEXT MEETING — The board adjourned until Feb. 6 at 8 p.m. at the Novato High School lecture hall.

Collegian Elected As School Trustee

HAWTHORNE (UPI) — A 19-year-old UCLA political science student won election to the board of trustees of the Centinela Valley Union High School District Tuesday to become the youngest school board member in the state.

Steven Ohren won the seat with a total of 777 votes of some 2,500 votes cast, defeating five other candidates. Runnerup was William J. Culhane, 18.

More Money Seen For Space Program

TOLEDO, Ohio (UPI) — Former NASA scientist Dr. Wernher von Braun Tuesday said "it would be reasonable to expect" more money will be spent on the space program now that the Vietnam War is ending.

"But the space program has always competed with other worthy programs and I expect it will continue to operate in a pinch like all the others," he said. Von Braun said he quit the program because there was a lack of money to implement plans and when "plans become dated, they become stale."

Boy, 6, Brings Aid To Injured Father

REDLANDS, Calif. (UPI) — When Kenneth Agerskov rode his motorcycle into a pothole on a deserted mountain trail and broke his leg, help was close at hand—his son, Greg.

Greg put a splint on his father's leg, built a fire and walked four miles to report his father's plight to a forest ranger, according to Agerskov.

Greg is 6 years old.

Court's Abortion Decision Lauded

The Planned Parenthood Association of Marin hailed Monday's Supreme Court decision knocking down state laws against abortion during the first three months of pregnancy as "the beginning of a new era of legal, safe abortions."

Mrs. Ian White, association president, said, "Planned Parenthood has always believed that abortion is a medical matter. Now we can reaffirm our position that preventing unwanted pregnancies is our primary objective, and we are pleased that we can concentrate more fully on contraceptive education. Our goal is to make every child a wanted child."

Alternate Program For Gym Suggested

Fearing the plans for a gymnasium at Rohnert Park Junior High School may hamper further construction of classrooms, the Petaluma Board of Education suggested last night working with the Rohnert Park Recreation Commission on a possible alternate program.

The board thought that because of a state law limiting square footage to be developed around the school, the gym could hinder construction of needed classroom facilities.

Despite the possibility of available financing for the gym, the board said, it still could not waive the need of the classrooms at the site.

The board said, however, it would be willing to try to work out a plan that would not penalize the educational program.

Beth Hoffman, a physical education teacher in the Novato Unified School District and a member of the Rohnert Park Recreation Commission, reported difficulties with indoor programs because of lack of a gym.

She said the City of Rohnert Park could provide some financial support.

James Pekkain, Rohnert Park recreation director, said he realized the program of square footage and suggested the city may be willing to change to double sessions at the junior high to enable the gym.

The Petaluma Board of Education also:

TEACHERS — Hired and set salaries for two new teachers, Corinna Gneri, $5,006 annually, and Norman Hansen, part time, $4,191.

RETIRED — Approved retirement of Warren Rose, a special education teacher at Kenilworth Junior High School, effective June 30.

MEETING — Agreed to meet next on Feb. 13.

El Cerrito Man Seeking Patrick Investment Back

An El Cerrito man filed suit in Marin Superior Court yesterday to void his distributorship with a firm in the William Penn Patrick empire and to get his $1,250 investment back.

The suit, filed by Berkeley attorney Peter N. Hagberg in behalf of Charles Smothers, claims Alexander Taylor and two of its employees, Lonnie Pitts and David Heath, made alluring promises but "have provided plaintiff with nothing for his $1,250 except catalogues and order forms."

The suit claimed Smothers would not have enlisted if he had known the clothing firm was not conforming to state laws barring "endless chain operations" and requiring disclosure of financial information.

The attorney general's office won an order two weeks ago from Marin Superior Court Judge Joseph G. Wilson requiring Alexander Taylor to furnish company recruits with financial data, although the company has appealed.

Smothers said he was promised that his distributorship "could be worth $100,000" and told he could "reasonably anticipate earning several thousand dollars a month." He signed up in 1971.

Inmates Beaten On New Church

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A federal court judge denied official recognition Tuesday to a convict-organized church whose rituals, he said, "seem to involve primarily, if not exclusively, the consumption of steaks and alcoholic beverages."

Judge Robert H. Schnacke's ruling concerned the "Church of the New Song" at San Quentin Prison.

He held that the suit filed by nine convicts seeking recognition was "patently frivolous."

The church was chartered by Kirby Hensley, who heads the Universal Life Church in Modesto, which has ordained thousands as "ministers."

Plan For Parks

A master plan for parks in the Strawberry area will be discussed by the Strawberry Recreation District board in an adjourned meeting at 8 p.m. today in the district office.

Finance Chief Likes Bond Idea

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Finance Director Verne Orr says there is "real merit" to canceling sale of construction bonds and building new projects with funds from the state's $852 million budget surplus instead.

Orr, chief fiscal adviser to Gov. Ronald Reagan, reported the proposal will be added to the governor's growing list of alternative ways to dispose of the surplus.

The list already includes rebates to income taxpayers and delaying imposition of the sales tax increase June 1. Orr said Reagan may announce his plan late next week.

Scrubbing the sale of nearly $860 million worth of authorized but unissued bonds was proposed by Legislative Analyst A. Alan Post, who opposes an income tax reduction. He said using cash instead of bonds to finance the construction would save taxpayers $447 million in interest payments.

Orr told the Senate Finance Committee during a hearing on Reagan's $9.26 billion proposed state budget that he had "deep reservations" about the Post proposal unless it contained a guarantee that the voter — approved bonds were effectively canceled so they couldn't be sold some time in the future and thereby double the amount of money authorized for the particular project.

Post suggested the state buy the bonds from itself at no interest cost and that the bonds never appear on the public market. He said this would cancel the possibility they could be sold later.

Orr told newsmen after the hearing the Post plan "becomes a feasible possibility to be considered along with return of the income tax and delay of the sales tax."

But outside the hearing room later, he seemed to toughen his position slightly when he told reporters that if the "bonds can be canceled-permanently canceled — and the money used instead, then I think there is a measure of real merit there."

The governor originally suggested that the surplus be rebated on a one-time basis to income taxpayers. He subsequently modified his position to the extent he would consider other alternatives as well, such as delaying implementation of the sales tax increase from five to six cents on the dollar.

California Fiscally In Fine Shape

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Controller Houston I. Flournoy reports the state treasury was bulging with $119,563,108 on Dec. 31, enabling California to complete the first half of the fiscal year without temporary loans for the first time since 1958.

Flournoy said Tuesday in a monthly report on the state General Fund that the cash status "contrasts sharply" with Dec. 31, 1971 when the treasury had $189,147 with a loan debt of $363 million.

Flournoy said cash receipts for the first six months of the current fiscal year totaled $2,588,178,225, a 29 per cent increase over the same period in 1971. Expenditures totaled $2,701,294,311, a 13 per cent jump over 1971.

Revenue sources during the six-month period included the sales tax, $982,743,466, up $26,162,079 from 1971; personal income tax, $818,152,759, up $410,553,436; and cigarette tax, $80,145,047, down $407,752.

Flournoy attributed the improved treasury status to state income tax withholding, which providing $658.3 million in revenue during the first six months of the current fiscal year.

Post Warns Tax Relief Clause Could Cost Taxpayers Plenty

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Legislative Analyst A. Alan Post has warned of an obscure provision of California's new property tax relief and school finance program that could cost state taxpayers billion of dollars.

The little-publicized section requires the state government to pay the bill of any new local government costs mandated by the legislature or executive branch and for any increase in the level of services already mandated.

Post told the Senate Finance Committee Tuesday that the legislature must develop some sort of guidelines immediately covering reimbursement by the state of local government costs.

He forecast that routine bills which sail through the legislature without opposition now will become "controversial"because they will have a major impact on state finances.

Post cited as an example the host of bills that create new superior court judgeships. Many pass the legislature easily and become law almost unnoticed.

But he said the legislature will want now to take a second look at such measures because in creating a new judgeship the bill also usually involves related support costs, such as a clerk for the judge, bailiff and office space.

Under the terms of the recently enacted property tax relief and school finance bill (SB90), sponsored by Gov. Ronald Reagan and Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti, those costs will become state costs, he said.

He told the committee that unless precise cost guidelines are adopted for virtually every bill with a fiscal affect, "You're going to be paying for things you never dreamed of."

Post added that guidelines should be adopted also that would assure that local costs would not be increased beyond what the legislature had intended through implementing regulations drawn by state and local agency bureaucrats.

Marin City Man Denies Safe Theft

A 21-year-old Marin City man, charged with taking a safe, thought to have contained thousands of dollars, from a Mill Valley home, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court.

Preliminary hearing for Kenneth Ray White was set for Feb. 6.

White, who, according to sheriff's deputies, tried to pass $1,000 bills in a Marin City store, was arrested Friday in a Marin City restuarant after a struggle during which deputies were kicked and trampled by a crowd of 70 to 100 persons, according to the sheriff's report.

One deputy reported being hit by a bottle and two others said they were assaulted by the crowd as they wrestled with White, but none was hospitalized.

James Cook, 25, of Santa Rosa, was arrested at the restaurant at 67 Drake Avenue, but Deputy Dist. Atty. Ernest C. Zunino said no charge will be filed against him until the case is investigated further.

Zunino said others may be charged as well.

The scuffle to arrest White was preceded by several anonymous calls to the sheriff's substation. Deputies first learned that a safe was being opened with an acetylene torch at 223 Drake Avenue, but two men fled as deputies arrived.

Inside the dwelling, according to deputies, was a safe door, acetylene and oxygen tanks and stereo equipment. The damaged safe was on the patio.

A subsequent call reported men trying to spend $1,000 bills at Smitty and Chuck's coffee shop.

The safe and stereo equipment had been taken shortly beforehand from the home of Leonard Lew at 32 Underhill Road in Mill Valley.

How much money was in the safe remained unknown today, but Deputy Dist. Atty. Ernest C. Zunino said there were at least some $1,000 and some $100 bills.

The final call reported White dropped three $1,000 bills during the scuffle with deputies. The cash was picked up by persons in the crowd, deputies said.

Victim Of Slaying From San Rafael

I-J Special Report

SANTA CRUZ — A San Rafael girl has been identified as the torso murder victim whose dismembered body has washed up in pieces on Santa Cruz and Monterey County beaches in recent days.

The murdered girl was Cynthia Ann Schall, 18, of 175 Clinton Court, according to Lt. Kenneth Pittinger of the Santa Cruz County sheriff-corone's office. Identification was made through fingerprints taken from the co-ed's right hand, found Friday by surfers at a beach near Capitola.

Miss Schall had been reported missing from a Santa Cruz home where she was a live-in babysitter while attending Cabrillo College, Santa Cruz Police Lt. Charles Sheer said. The city police are conducting the murder investigation.

The family with whom she lived reported she last was seen at 5:30 p.m. Jan. 8 when she left the Santa Cruz home to hitchhike to a 7:30 p.m. class at the college, about six miles away.

Sheer said investigators were almost positive that the hand, a headless torso found Jan. 17 at Natural Bridges State Park and a pelvis found Monday on the Santa Cruz beach all belonged to the same victim. However, he said, pathologists would not complete their comparisons of the remains until tomorrow.

The head, legs, arms and left hand still were missing today, Lt. Sheer said.

Investigators speculated the killer used a power saw and knife to dismember the body. Santa Cruz police have no firm leads to the killer's identity or where the murder took place, Lt. Sheer said.

CYNTHIA ANN SCHALL
Murder victim

Miss Schall was the daughter of Sue Schall McEvoy of San Rafael, and also is survived by a sister, Candice, 17, of San Rafael; a brother, Forrest Schall, 19, of Grass Valley, and her father, William L. Schall of Fresno.

Miss Schall was born in San Mateo. She attended St. Raphael's School and San Domenico School for Girls in Sleepy Hollow from 1960 through 1968.

Memorial services will be held Saturday noon at St. Sebastian's Church, Greenbrae. The family asked that memorial contributions be made to the Crisis Line, 1255 Post Street, San Francisco.

Cleaning Efforts On Birds Rapped

OAKLAND (UPI) — Dr. James Naviaux, a Pleasant Hill veterinarian who developed the technique for cleaning waterfowl soaked by oil, accused State Fish and Game employes today of sloppy and inadequate procedures in treating birds coated in Friday's 120,000-gallon oil spill in the Oakland estuary.

He said the birds did not receive initial shots of antibiotics and were cleaned with the wrong kind of solvent.

Law Student Released In Death Probe

I-J Special Report

OAKLAND — A 23-year-old law student has been released pending further investigation into the shooting death of a young Belvedere man, police said today.

Officers said there is insufficient evidence to charge Robert Prudhomme, 77 Fairmount Avenue, a second-year law student at Hastings College of the Law, with the slaying.

Homicide investigators are continuing their investigation into the murder of Jeffrey Simon, 26, of 330 Bella Vista. The body of Simon, a former commercial fisherman, was found early Monday, a bullet through the head, lying in front of an Oakland home.

Simon had been unemployed, doing occasional odd jobs at carpentry, and was apparently a well-liked person, investigators quoted as saying.

Found on his body were a College of Marin student body card, although records show he never had been enrolled there, and a Mill Valley post office box number.

Biggest Bird Egg

GREENVILLE, Del. (UPI) — The Delaware Museum of Natural History boasts the world's largest egg among its collection of 100,000 birds' eggs.

It is the 27-pound egg of the Elephant Bird of Madagascar, which has been extinct for three centuries.

MISS THE 'SWEET SPOT' ...who cares?

Fantastic new design for even weight distribution as written up in the leading golf publication. Weight is spread over a wider portion of the club face—even if the ball isn't hit exactly with the club's 'Sweet Spot', you still have to 25% more accuracy and distance. This makes the difference between hitting the green or missing it entirely. (Fact is, most golfers don't hit the ball with the 'sweet spot' every time, thus decreasing accuracy and distance.) The 'Pro Classic' club doesn't realize it hit the ball badly since all the weight is distributed evenly. So if you don't hit the ball perfectly every time, this set is for you. 'Self-Correcting' irons . . . they're here to stay!

MOVING DAY

Led by housing inspector LeRoy Thompson and cashier Virginia Dunn (foreground), staff members of the Marin County Housing Authority form a chain to move equipment into new authority offices at San Rafael's Northgate Industrial Park. The move yesterday from Marin City is designed to centralize operations, according to authority officials, and also enables added space. A small portion of the staff is to remain in Marin City for rent collection and tenant services in Southern Marin. The new office is at 47 Paul Drive.

Another 'Super Department' Is Proposed For County Govt.

A series of far-reaching proposals — including creation of another "super department" — was suggested yesterday by Marin County supervisors as part of their plan to streamline government by improving efficiency and services.

The proposals, termed "budget priorities" by the board, were greeted with enthusiasm by County Administrator John F. Barrows, who said it was the first time in 10 years with the county he had been given direction in preparing the county budget.

The administrator's office in the past has been criticized for "setting policy" when drafting a yearly budget which dictates expenditure and service levels.

Among the most sweeping proposals was one by Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. that study be given to consolidating all, or parts, of the planning, public works, and parks and recreation departments.

Work crews from parks and recreation might be mingled with crews from public works, for example, he said, giving greater manpower in the summer to parks and more manpower in the winter to public works.

Another reorganization, proposed by chairman Arnold M. Baptiste, suggested decentralization of the social services, mental health and probation departments.

Under this proposal, the departments would coordinate their programs through a "task force" working within Marin communities.

Supervisor Gary T. Giacomini's main proposal called for more assistance to the agricultural industry through larger staffs for the farm adviser and agricultural commissioner, larger state subventions and county help with waste water control problems.

Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere said his concerns centered on cutting the county's 1,600-man workforce by 2 to 4 per cent.

He said he also would be looking at services provided by departments during June budget hearings with an eye to reducing costs.

The main proposal from Supervisor Michael Wornum was an election to determine if voters are willing to increase the county transit district's tax rate of 5 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

He said opposition is being raised to construction of more roads in Marin and "if we're not going to build roads we have to put a lot more money into intracounty transit."

Wornum also urged continued landscaping of the Civic Center, saying that "more people come to Marin to see the Civic Center than anything else."

Other proposals suggested by Baptiste include a reduction in the sheriff's staff to reflect a decrease in unincorporated population caused primarily by the Terra Linda annexation to San Rafael.

$10,000 Put In Heerdt Marsh Fund

Marin County supervisors unanimously approved yesterday a $10,000 appropriation toward purchase of the Heerdt Marsh in Corte Madera, long viewed with concern by conservationists. (Another board of supervisors story, page 1.)

The $10,000 appropriation will be added to $10,000 raised by the Marin Conservation League as matching funds for a state grant conservationists hope to get to make up the difference in the land's $110,000 value.

The 74-acre marsh, located at the mouth of Corte Madera Creek, has been proposed for development six times and six times rejected by the Bay Conservation and Development Commission.

The Marin County Parks and Recreation Commission, in supporting the purchase, urged that the county share come out of the general fund reserve and not from the $700,000 allocated for open space last year.

The board disagreed and moved the funds out of the open space nest egg.

In related open space action, the board decided not to hold a tax rate election for the new regional park district but rather to seek special legislation exempting the district from SB 90, the state's property tax limitation law.

Meanwhile, in Sacramento yesterday, Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, said he would seek the special legislation next week if an attorney general's opinion on the Marin issue, due Friday, says a bill is necessary.

Bridge Collapse Blame Assigned

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The bridge scaffolding collapse which took six lives in Pasadena last Oct. 17 has been blamed on a combination of "inherent weaknesses" in the scaffolding, or "falsework," in the final report of a special investigating panel of engineers.

The report, released yesterday by the state Public Works Department, says the weaknesses, taken separately, "would not be expected to produce a total failure, but when combined in one location, proved disastrous."

Framework holding the Arroyo Seco Bridge for Interstate 210 collapsed while concrete was being poured. The report said the weight of the wet concrete was too much for the structure and triggered the collapse.

In releasing the report, the department said it was also taking legal steps to determine if the contractor — Polich-Benedict Constructors — will continue to be considered "a responsible bidder" for future state contracts.

Security Unit At Civic Center Cut

The Marin County Board of Supervisors yesterday reduced the Civic Center's 15-man security force by two positions and said another four will be cut in June.

The action came despite an appeal by Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos that security would be jeopardized by the trims.

The two positions cut are men assigned to the courts floor, though it is up to the sheriff whether he wants to make internal shifts to cover the reduced security.

The two men holding the positions will be phased out through attrition, the board said.

Four other positions recommended for deletion by County Administrator John F. Barrows provide security at the ground floor entrance to the sheriff's office and jail.

Mountanos said it would be unwise to cut the men until the proposed honor farm is operating in June to relieve jail overcrowding.

The board also agreed to keep the Civic Center Administration Building open until 11:30 p.m. on evenings the City-County Planning Council of Marin meets. Otherwise, it will close at 11 p.m., except Fridays and Saturdays, when it will close at 6:30 p.m.

Marin County Board of Supervisors Also:

WAR — Approved unanimously a resolution supporting the President's efforts to end the war in Vietnam; also disclaimed any part of an advertisement in Thursday's Independent-Journal by the Christmas Eve Peace Committee.

EMERGENCY — Approved unanimously a proclamation terminating the county-enacted state of emergency. The action does not affect homeowners' applications for disaster loans because of flooding.

LIBRARY — Approved on a 4-1 vote, with Supervisor Michael Wornum dissenting, closing of the Tamalpais Valley branch of the Marin County Free Library. The tiny library has experienced a downward trend in public use, according to county officials.

PARK AREA — Authorized a letter to the National Park Service, Department of Interior, and others, expressing concern over funding for purchase of Golden Gate National Recreation Area lands.

STUDIES — Authorized $19,000 for soils, geologic and hydrologic studies at the North Bay Front Park near Civic Center to provide information on siting of buildings, roads and utilities.

VOTE PURGE — Agreed to a recommendation of the county grand jury that the county consider introducing legislation to allow purging of voter lists every year. The proposed legislation will be reviewed at a later date.

WELFARE — Established a hearing officer procedure for general relief welfare cases. Such cases have been heard by the board but have proven time consuming. Asst. County Administrator Thomas F. Campanella will act as hearing officer. Applicants may appeal to the board.

MEETINGS — Approved an amendment to the bylaws of the juvenile delinquency prevention commission allowing for removal of members who miss more than two consecutive meetings.

HONOR FARM — Waived formal bidding procedures for $23,000 worth of renovation to the proposed new honor farm at the Nike missile site in Santa Venetia.

Poverty Worker Gets Jail Term For Extortion

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Poverty program executive Adam Rogers was sentenced to nine months in jail Tuesday on attempted extortion and battery charges.

The onetime troubleshooter for Mayor Joseph L. Alioto was arrested last October on 13 charges in connection with assaults on two poverty program officials. Police said Rogers, 28, and six other men demanded the poverty officials sign a $75,000 contract for 15 jobs.

The original 13 charges were reduced to attempted extortion and battery after Rogers' attorney negotiated extensively with the district attorney's office.

'Flying Squad' Will Combat Street Crimes

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A "flying squad" of 16 inspectors in plain clothes to combat violent street crimes against the elderly was formed Tuesday by San Francisco's Police Department.

Despite a 30 per cent reduction in street robberies last year, there were more elderly victims of pursesnatchers and muggers, chief of detectives Charles Barca said.

He noted the squad contains 13 veteran inspectors and said it would patrol on foot and in unmarked cars in areas where computers show a high incidence of crimes against the aged.

A similar "flying squad" was formed in 1949 and disbanded seven years later after a colorful career.

Terrorists Free U.S. Haiti Envoys

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (UPI) — Five Haitian terrorists today released U.S Ambassador Clinton E Knox and U.S Consul Ward Christensen in return for a government promise to fly them. 12 political prisoners and $70.000 ransom money to Mexico

They had been holding the diplomats at gunpoint since Tuesday night

A spokesman for the American Embassy in Port-au-Prince said the gunmen released Knox and Christensen unharmed at the airport at 11:40 a.m EST after the French ambassador intervened in the case

"The radio, which was covering the exchange at the airport live, said they were smiling and happy so I imagine they're quite all right," the spokesman said

A C46 plane of the government airline Air Haiti was ready to take off for Mexico with the five kidnapers, 12 political prisoners whose release they had demanded and $70,000 in cash aboard. Also aboard the plane were Mexican Ambassador to Haiti Armando Amador Duran, Papal Nuncio Luigi Barbarito and French Ambassador Bernard Dorin.

The embassy spokesman said the release of the hostages was the result of negotiations between the French, Mexican and Vatican ambassadors to Haiti as well as the Haitian government of 21-year-old President-for-life Jean-Claude Duvalier and special U.S. State Department envoys.

The gunmen had burst into Knox' private residence late Tuesday night and held him hostage against the political prisoners

Knox has been in Haiti for 3½ years He was the American ambassador to the regime of the late dictator Francois "Papa Doc" Duvalier and saw the country pass under the rule of his son

Knox, a native of Massachusetts, entered the foreign service in 1945 after earning a Ph.D at Harvard. He was consulor of the embassy in Honduras in 1963, ambassador to Dahomey in 1964 and won a State Department superior honor award in 1966. He is one of the few black career U.S. diplomats with an ambassadorial rank.

Items Are Stolen From Parked Car

James John Panagitaias of 158 Stetson Avenue, Corte Madera, told town police that thieves pried the right wing window of his Volkswagen when the vehicle was parked outside his home last Wednesday.

Stolen were sleeping bags, a tire and rim, a tool kit, a tent, a canvas tarpaulin, two tennis rackets and a pair of binoculars.

Marinview Residents Assured Of Close Look At Future Building

Worried Marinview residents won assurances yesterday from Marin County supervisors that new construction would not be approved if it is likely to cause a recurrence of last week's disastrous mudslides and floods

"You can be sure we're going to take a hard look . at future development," Supervisor Michael Wornum told a standing-room-only audience of Tamalpais Valley residents

The board's discussion of the Marinview situation was carried over from last Tuesday's meeting when Jo Julian of the Tamalpais Task Force requested the board to stop all construction

The area was hard hit by last week's storms, causing floods and mudslides in portions of the community. Hundreds of homes in the valley suffered varying degrees of mud and water damage

Irving Schwartz, a public works engineer, told the board 12 building permits requested by developer Allan-Marin have been frozen until spring at least.

Mrs. Julian said last week's problems should be used as a guide for future Marinview development, the next phase of which is pending further study in the planning department.

She noted a geologic survey of the area, done prior to the rains, indicated where problems would occur It was in those areas that they did occur, she said

She urged that present zoning be reviewed and density decreased, as well as possible consideration of a ban on building in areas listed as risk zones.

Other residents agreed, some calling for an independent survey of the danger to existing homes, immediate improvement of drainage and help in preventing new mudslides.

Several criticized developer Alan Allen of Allen Marin for failing to construct properly a "stump dump" near his subdivision and to include proper drainage within his development, which, in turn, caused flooding

Allen told the board he was "a convenient whipping boy" for many of the problems that have occurred during what he termed a 100-year rain.

He and his engineer, Kenneth Frost, said the geologic study cited by Mrs. Julian was taken out of context and could not be applied to specific sites.

He drew hoots from the audience when he told the board the only serious damage occurred when a house was knocked off its foundations.

Other residents told the board of the constant fear with which they live and urged county assistance.

Wornum told the board he would meet with homeowners to discuss an independent survey of hazards and would call a meeting of the Richardson Bay Flood Control Zone Advisory Board to discuss improving lowland drainage which acts as a bottleneck for waters draining from higher areas.

Discussion Set On Future Of Marin Transit

The future of Marin Transit Systems, the Marin City bus company disowned by county transit district directors, will be discussed at 9 a.m tomorrow on radio KTIM's "Marin Sounding Board"

Speakers will be Marin Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr.: Thomas T. Storer, attorney for the company; Marian Kelley, executive director of Wheels of Marin, a group which took over some of service being provided by Marin Transit, and a fourth person to be announced.

The program, for which questions are invited, will be repeated by tape at 10 a.m. Sunday.

Mud Dredging Wins Approval

I-J Special Report

HAYWARD — Dredging of 77,000 cubic yards of bay mud off Sausalito was approved yesterday by the Regional Water Quality Control Board.

The maintenance dredging project by Sausalito Marine Corp will be in the deep water access channel to its boat repair facilities

Tests of the mud found it was polluted with organic material, the board's staff reported, but there was no financially feasible alternative to dumping the spoils off Alcatraz Island State and federal agencies concurred in the staff recommendation for approval, which was voted unanimously by the board.

Strawberry Unit To Pick Officers

The Strawberry Area Community Council will elect board members at 8 p.m. Monday in the Strawberry Recreation Center.

Eight seats will be up for election, according to Trudy De La Fontaine.

Supervisor Michael Wornum will chair the meetings and nomination from the floor will be accepted, she said.

Already nominated for the board seats are Joan Giacomino, Paul Trudel, Michael Adams, Phebe Brown, Katie Supinski, Stanley Gallagher, Marcel Ahrer and Monique Israel.

Pact Can Bring Lasting Asian Peace—Mailliard

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON — The peace agreement hammered out in Paris can bring lasting peace to Southeast Asia, Rep. William S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District, said today.

Mailliard, who represents Marin and San Francisco, is spokesman for the House GOP on foreign affairs.

"One must be realistic about the peace," Mailliard told the Independent-Journal. "It can work provided everyone wants to make it work.

"There are some built-in incentives for North Vietnam to abide" by the agreement's terms, Mailliard explained. "The prospects of international assistance and reconstruction in which the United States might participate would seem to be advantageous to Hanoi."

Mailliard didn't regard the peace pact as providing any new detente between the U.S. and either Moscow or Peking, "but it obviously removes an impediment to better relations."

Mailliard foresaw no difficulties with Congress on approval of the pact negotiated by President Richard M. Nixon and Dr. Henry Kissinger — "but that doesn't mean the President may not run into difficulties with the Congress later" on programs Nixon may propose to follow up on the peace.

Mailliard said the agreement met no criticism when it was presented by Kissinger in a briefing session with 20 to 25 Congressional leaders today.

"Scoop Jackson (Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash.) questioned the President and Kissinger" rather sharply "but seemed satisfied," Mailliard reported. "Even Bill Fulbright (Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark.) said only that the peace should have come sooner."

Neither did Mailliard think that the agreement faced any difficulties with the Saigon government.

"It's rather interesting — the agreements provide North Vietnamese troop withdrawal from Laos and Cambodia," but not specifically from South Vietnam. "The release of U.S. prisoners of war by the Communists is equated with U.S. troop withdrawal rather than the release of North Vietnamese prisoners of war," he said.

Mailliard said this was a victory for Nixon because for months the negotiations were stalled by an attempt to equate release of U.S. POW's with political and civilian prisoners held by Saigon.

"This was a nightmare... one thing the President couldn't stand for," Mailliard said.

Lots Of Garbage

WESTPORT, Conn. (UPI) — Authorities estimate that each person in the United States generates 5.5 pounds of solid waste per day.

Reagan In Praise Of Viet Action

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan, declaring President Nixon followed a plan "from the very beginning" to bring a cease-fire in Vietnam, said last night he was "grateful to God for what has taken place and that at last this war has ended."

"The President has from the very beginning followed a plan," the Republican governor said. "It was a plan in which he had the courage to stick and not be diverted by those who would have had him falter or go for less than what was total justice for the people who have been our allies."

"I think all of us are grateful to God for what has taken place and that at last this war has ended," Reagan observed. "And grateful especially that the brave women and children whose husbands are prisoners of war or missing in action have at long last, as the president said, had their vigil ended."

Growers May Get Loss Loans

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Marin and Sonoma and 23 other Northern and Central California counties may be eligible for emergency loans to cover farm and economic losses caused by the December freeze if a state request to declare the county a disaster area is approved.

Gov. Ronald Reagan made the appeal yesterday to U.S. Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz. Reagan said the counties suffered $210.2 million in freeze damage, the heaviest to farm and nursery stock.

Damage to arin County, in which temperatures dipped into the teens during December, was estimated at $1,025,000. Sonoma losses were put at $50,000.

Reagan said a disaster designation by Butz would make individuals eligible for emergency, low-interest, long-term loans to help them overcome effects of the freeze.

Novato nursery owner Rick Burgi said damage to his stock was extensive.

"Actually, it's a lot worse than we originally expected," Burgi said. "Plants we thought would come back are not coming back, they're just dead."

Socks Can Tell

NEW YORK (UPI) —You can tell a man's character by the socks he wears, according to a noted British psychiatrist.

Thieu Announces Pact, But Rules Out Any Collaboration

SAIGON (UPI) — President Nguyen Van Thieu announced a cease-fire agreement today that ends South Vietnam's 18-year war with North Vietnam, but he ruled out any collaboration with Communists.

Real peace, he said, depends entirely on the Communists.

"After 18 years of what the Communists call a liberation war and destruction throughout South Vietnam," Theiu said in an emotional 40-minute national radio address, "they have been forced to stop the war because they have no more power to fight."

He said all parties to the conflict would sign an agreement Saturday, Saigon time, with a cease-fire coming into force Sunday throughout the country.

"My God, that's good news," a car washer listening to the broadast shouted.

But many other Saigon residents did not hear the broadcast and did not know about the end-of-the-fighting announcement. Some others who did know appeared to take the news casually, saying they would wait to see what happens before celebrating.

Along Highway 13, a major battle route north of Saigon, newsmen stopped army patrols to ask if they had heard about the cease-fire. None had—and continued their patrols.

Thieu's voice sounded strained at times during his speech. He raced through several phrases and listeners could hear him gulping for air.

"There will never be an abolition of the government of (South) Vietnam in favor of the Communists or a pro-Communist neutrality," Thieu said, warning against Communist "tricks" and "ploys" in the coming days.

"They (Communists) will take advantage of every chance they have," he said. "They probably will try to do something before the international supervisory teams get here."

He said Saigon would have difficulties until the moment the Communists show they will respect the provisions of the agreement. He said that peace was not guaranteed just because of signatures on a treaty.

Thieu always has demanded that any peace agreement recognize the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) at the 17th parallel as the dividing line between North and South Vietnam. He also has demanded the withdrawal of North Vietnamese troops from South Vietnam and refused to accept a coalition government with the Communists.

But Thieu said the National Liberation Front (NLF) can take part in South Vietnam elections and he also agreed to negotiate with NLF leaders on domestic political matters.

Tho Describes Peace Obligation

PARIS (UPI) — Hanoi Politburo member Le Duc Tho said today the "murderous" Vietnam War shook humanity profoundly and that the fight during the years of American involvement were the most difficult of North Vietnam's 30-year-old war for independence.

The Hanoi diplomat, who negotiated the cease-fire agreement with Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, said that to guarantee a durable peace, "all parties have the obligation strictly to execute the agreement."

"The just cause has won against the evil cause," he said. "The will to live freely won out over cruelty. Our people... will have to reconstruct their country, devastated by war, and consolidate and develop relations with the peoples of the world, including the American people," Tho said.

In answer to newsmen's questions, Tho outlined details of the agreement and said American personnel would go to North Vietnam to supervise the demining of rivers and estuaries. President Nixon had ordered the mining last year to cut off war supplies for the North Vietnamese military.

Tho skirted questions on the relations of Hanoi with South Vietnam. He said after peace was concluded, the PRG would set up its government "in a definite location in South Vietnam and you will know about that."

Tho told newsmen:

"The resistance of the last 13 years was the most difficult . . . in the centuries-old battle of our people against foreign invasion."

Tho, holding a rare news conference, told hundreds of journalists: "It was the most murderous war in the history of movements of national liberation by oppressed people in the entire world.

"This war profoundly disturbed the human consciousness."

Tho said the negotiations between North Vietnam and the United States lasted nearly five years and "knew many particularly difficult and tense moments."

Valuable Bust To Be Auctioned

SHIPLEY, England (UPI) — "Fred" stood for years in the front entrance of Brian Smith's barber shop. Customers threw their hats on him.

Smith said today that "Fred" actually was the Duke of York, a Georgian marble bust worth as much as $94,000. He will sell it at an auction March 28.

Smith said eight years of research identified the 28-inch high white marble bust as the work of Joseph Nollekens. It has been tentatively identified as the long-lost original portrait of Frederick Augustus, second son of King George III, who lost the American colonies during his reign from 1760 to 1820.

HEARS THE NEWS — Sp. 5 Ronald Marrs listens intently as President announces on TV a cease-fire agreement in Vietnam. Marrs and about 60 other soldiers heard the speech last night at the Oakland Embarkation Center from where they were expected to leave for Vietnam in the next few days.

Woman Heads UC Academic Senate

BERKELEY (UPI) — For the first time, a woman presided Tuesday over the University of California's Berkeley campus Academic Senate.

Herma Hill Kay, 38, a law professor, was elected last June but was on leave in the fall.

She had told the faculty she prefers to be called "chairperson" rather than "chairman" and said no bylaws change was necessary, since it was a matter of personal prerogative.

Civil War Raids

FRANKLIN, Ohio (UPI) — Confederate raiders made many sorties across the MasonDixon line during the Civil War, reaching their northernmost point on the outskirts of Franklin, some 30 miles north of Cincinnati.

North Vietnamese Troops May Remain In South Under Pact

WASHINGTON (UPI) — No specific provision is made in the cease-fire agreement to require withdrawal of North Vietnamese troops from South Vietnam, but the United States expects these troops to be reduced by attrition if Hanoi abides by the accord.

Presidential Adviser Henry A. Kissinger, at a news conference, said today "our judgment is that North Vietnam cannot live up to the agreement without a reduction in the North Vietnamese forces in South Vietnam, without this explicitly being stated."

North Vietnam is said to have an estimated 145,000 troops in the South and President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam had demanded their removal as part of any cease-fire pact. Thieu, who put North Vietnamese strength at about 300,000 in the South, argued that the presence of these forces violated his nation's sovereignty.

Kissinger said the agreement prohibits military movement across the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) dividing North and South Vietnam, as well as infiltration through Cambodia and Laos and introduction of any new military troops into South Vietnam.

Under those terms, he said, North Vietnamese troops were bound to be reduced gradually by attrition.

The 23-article agreement apparently lumps North Vietnamese troops together with Viet Cong forces, which are required to stop fighting but permitted to hold their positions in South Vietnam. North Vietnam never has acknowledged the presence of any of its troops in the south, but the issue was a major obstacle to a peace settlement.

No Charges Filed Against Five Youths

No charge has been filed against five teen-age boys — including the son of former baseball star Vernon (Lefty) Gomez — who were arrested Saturday by Ross police on suspicion of burglary.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Ernest C. Zunino said today he is awaiting further information before filing a charge, but said he has no evidence the five were committing a burglary.

Ross police jailed them on the belief they were trying to break into one of the girls' dormitories at Katharine Branson School.

The five are Duane Charles Gomez, 19, of Fairfax; Joseph Paul Dismuke, 19, whose parents operate Fairfax French Laundry; Mark Alfred Daubenfeld, 18, son of Alfred F. Daubenfeld, a member of the Fairfax Board of Review; David Lowell Seagle, 18, and Gene Francis Gilbert, 18, both of San Anselmo.

KNEADING MASA, dough for the small Argentinian meat pies called empanadas, Senora Jaime Pera prepares to make the goucho finger food to sell at St. Hilary's Parent-Teacher Group's Foreign Food Fair on Sunday at the church's Lydon Hall in Tiburon.

Argentinian Cooking To Be A Sunday Speciality

Authentic Argentinian cooking will be featured at the Foreign Food Fair at Lydon Hall in St. Hilary's Church in Tiburon on Sunday from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Senora Jaime Pera, who teaches music, Spanish, physical education, ballet and choir at St. Hilary's School, will contribute her empanadas and other gaucho food made "not the long way that my mother would, but with short cuts."

Graciela Pera was born in Concordia, Entre Rios, Argentina to an Army officer and his wife. Her seven-year "high school" program in which she studied 12 solid subjects a year corresponds roughly to American high school plus college.

During those "beautiful years I studied quite a bit," earning degrees in teaching, ballet, music and folklore, she said.

The busy teacher said her home life in Mill Valley was pleasant and "very noisy" because each of her three sons wants to play his instrument with her in the evening.

"My family has been eating so much this week because I have been translating recipes and figuring American measurements," said the Argentinian, who offers these recipes.

EMPANADAS

Picadillo
(chopped filling)

2 yellow onions
5 green onions
1 large, fresh, very ripe tomato (or two small)
1 teaspoon paprika
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
Dash cuminseed
1 cup pitless olives
3 hard boiled eggs
1 cup raisins
2 lbs. ground round steak
½ teaspoon granulated sugar (optionel)
2 tablespoons Crisco shortening

Saute onions carefully; do not burn. Add meat and brown. Run hot water over tomato, peel, cut up and add to meat. Cook at medium heat on range about 30 minutes. When done, add cut up boiled eggs, raisins, sugar and olives. Cool and place in refrigerator for two hours before assembling into three dozen small meat pies.

Masa
(dough)

8 cups flour
2¾ cups water
½ teaspoon salt
½ lb. shortening

Place shortening in hollow in flour. Work with hands until it is mixed in thoroughly, adding salted water little by little. Then knead dough until you can shape it into a big ball. Cover and let stand for 15 minutes. Then flatten with hands. Take a piece the size of an egg and roll into a ball. Flatten into a six or seven inch pancake with a rolling pin.

Place a piece of picadillo the size of an egg on the diameter of the masa pancake. Then wet the edge of half the pancake. Fold exactly in half and crimp.

Place on rack above the middle of oven at 400 degrees for about 12 to 14 minutes.

Senora Pera recommends empanadas be made ahead and frozen. Arrange on floured paper layers in box. Serve as entree or make half size for appetizers.

POLLO CON CASTANOS
(Chicken with chestnuts)

1 cut up roasting chicken
salt and pepper
1 lemon's juice
½ cup cubed, raw smoked ham
6 tablespoons cooking oil
1 minced onion
1 cup chicken broth
1 cup dry sherry wine or sweet vermouth
16 chestnuts, shelled and blanched
½ cup blanched almonds

Wash chicken. Pour lemon juice over it. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Brown in oil. Add onion, ham, wine or vermouth. Cover and cook slowly on range about 30 minutes or until tender.

While it cooks shell chestnuts and toast together with almonds for about 20 minutes in a 350 degree oven. When soft enough, mash into a paste. About 10 minutes before chicken is done brush it with nut paste.

ARROZ AMARILLO
(yellow rice)

1 stick sweet butter
2 cups converted white rice
½ cup raisins
½ cup green onions, thinly chopped
1 demitasse spoon of saffron powder
½ teaspoon salt

Melt butter slowly without burning. Add saffron and rice. Mix with wooden spoon. Add three cups water. Cook on the range for 20 minutes. Remove from heat. Add onions and raisins. Cover and let set to warm onions and raisins.

CARNE CON HONGOS
(meat with mushrooms)

3 filet steaks
3½ tablespoons butter or oil
6 green onions, cut in rings
½ cup minced parsley
½ lb. fresh mushrooms, cut in quarters
½ cup white wine dash of salt
dash of pepper

Fry steaks quickly in butter or oil. Set aside in foil to keep hot.

In same oil or butter add mushrooms in quarters and saute with parsley and onions. Add salt, pepper, wine and cook until mushrooms are tender, a total of about five minutes. Then pour over steaks and serve.

BUDIN DE PAN
(bread pudding)

1 cup granulated sugar
6 slices white bread
1 can condensed milk
1 can evaporated milk
5 eggs
1½ cups sugar
1 tablespoon bourbon
1 cup raisins

Put one cup of sugar into a tube pan and place on range to melt sugar. tir until sugar dissolves into caramel colored syrup. Remove from heat and tilt pan to be sure it is entirely coated with caramel. Set aside pan.

In bowl mash bread, pour in both kinds of milk, stir in eggs, sugar, bourbon, raisins and mix.

Pour into caramel coated pan and cover with foi. Place in larger pan containing one inch of water. Bake in 350 degree oven for one and a half hours.

Turn out of pan while hot onto serving plate before caramel cools. Serve cold.

COFFEE, SWEETS

Jause Time Is Soul Of Austria

Jause (yowl'za) time in Austria is the time for afternoon coffee and a sweet.

As the town hall clock strikes four, the streets of every village and city bustle with activity. Men rush from the places of business to the nearby coffee houses to exchange news and views of the day. Women take this opportunity to cluster in neighborhood homes for that palatable break from household routine.

Whether it's a public coffee house or a private home, the jause tradition is the same — several cups of steaming hot coffee accompanied by a Viennese pastry or some similar piece de resistance — topped with a generous helping of friendly conversation.

ONE POPULAR jause pastry is a light, fluffy rolled cake called a roulade which has been filled with a mixture of toasted almonds, diced Austrian Swiss cheese and apricot preserves. A topping of powdered sugar coats the surface giving it the appearance of a long slender jelly roll.

The jause tradition may be typically Austrian, but having a jause in your home once in a while would be a delight.

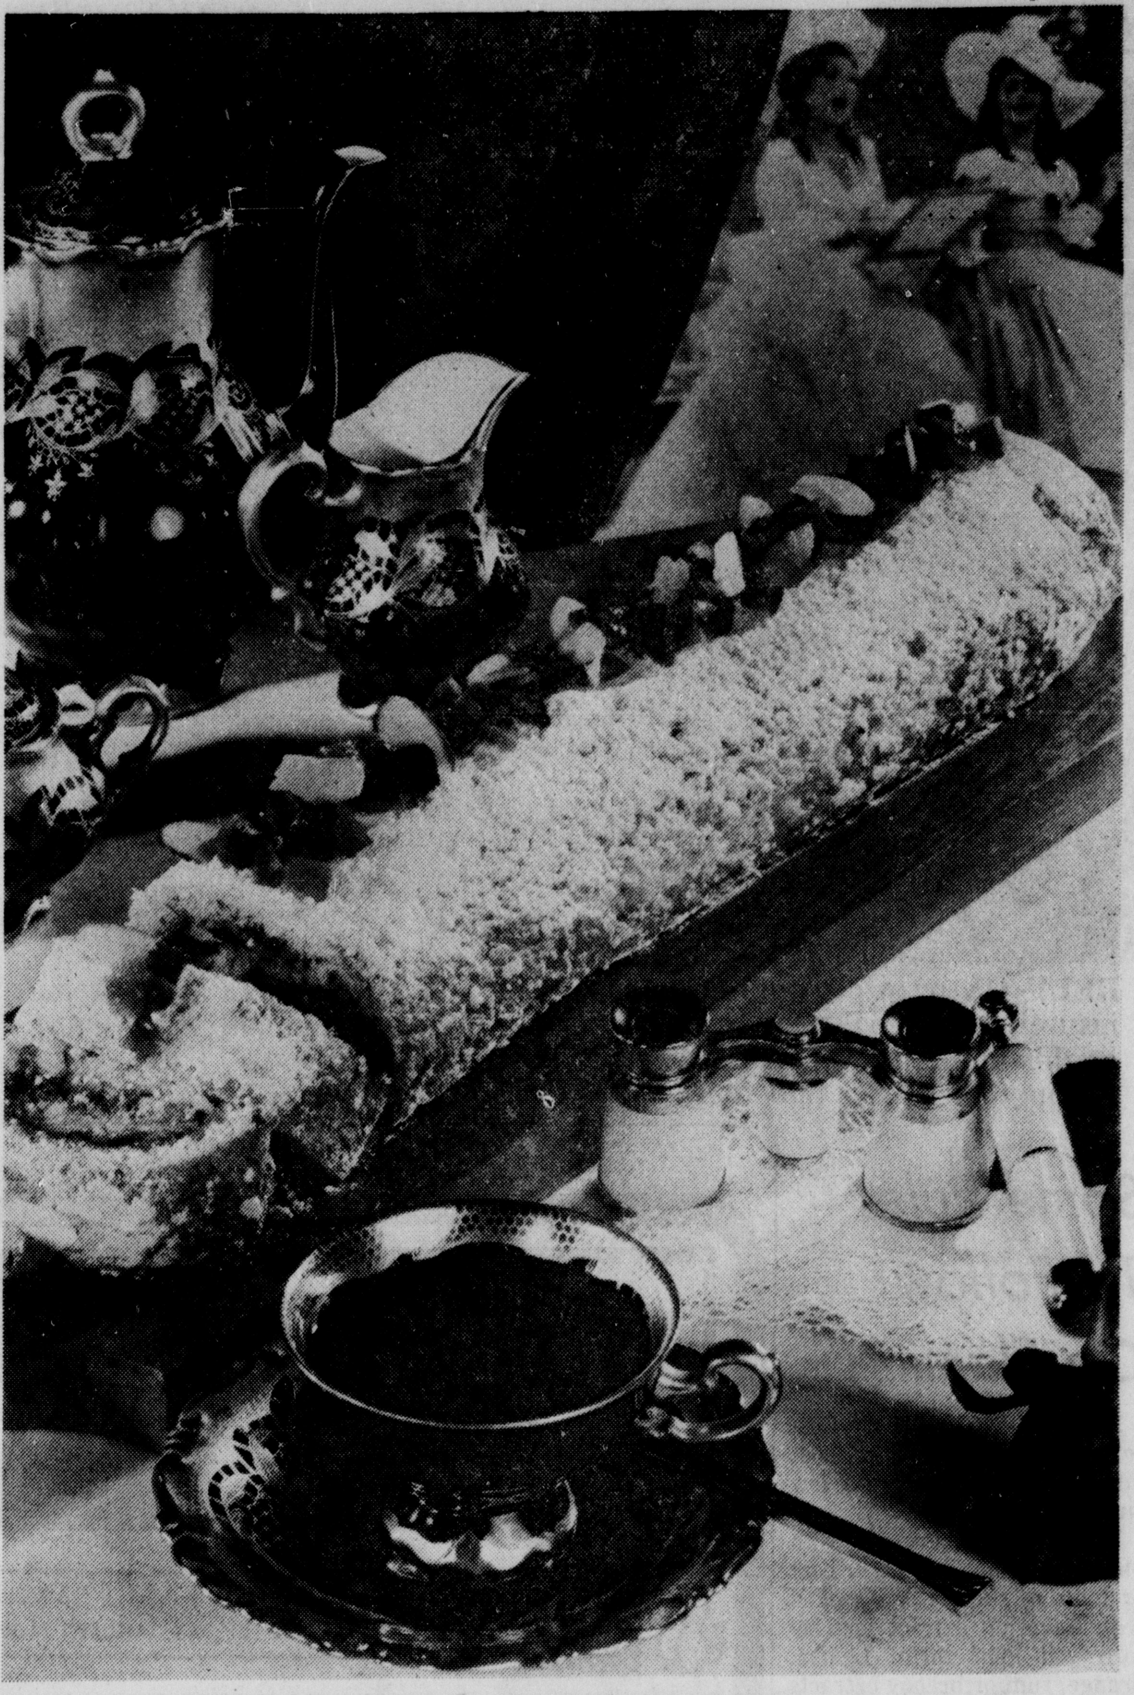
ROULADE

4 eggs
¾ cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
⅔ cup sifted all-purpose flour
¾ teaspoon baking powder
½ cup chopped toasted almonds
1 jar (12 ounces) apricot preserves
1 package (6 ounces) Austrian Swiss cheese, finely diced
Confectioners' sugar

In a large bowl, beat eggs until very thick with an electric mixer. Beat in sugar 2 tablespoons at a time until very thick and mixture holds its shape. Fold in vanilla, flour and baking powder. Line a greased 15x10x1 inch jelly roll pan with wax paper and then grease the paper. Pour batter evenly into pan. Bake in a preheated hot oven (400 degrees) for 12 to 15 minutes or until lightly browned. Do not overbake!

Spread a kitchen towel with a thin layer of confectioners' sugar. Turn cake upside down onto sugar and carefully strip off wax paper. Roll up cake starting at the 15 inch side in the towel. Cool. Unroll carefully and spread with apricot preserves. Sprinkly evenly with diced cheese.

Roll up again and place on serving platter. Sprinkle with confectioners' sugar. Cut into thin slices and serve topped with sweetened whipped cream, if desired. Makes one 15 inch roll.



IN AUSTRIA Jause time means time off wherever you are for a hot cup of coffee and a pastry — such as a roulade, a light fluffy jelly and nut roll with diced Austrian Swiss cheese

Spotlight On Apples This Week

Apples capture the attention of "Kitchen Time in Marin" host Diane MacMillan this week. She shares a recipe for tarts.

FRENCH APPLE TART

Prepare a double pastry for a nine-inch pie plate. Line the pie plate with half the pastry and arrange a lattice topping on a sheet of waxed paper with the other half of the pastry. Chill while preparing the filling.

6-7 cooking apples
½ cup dry white wine
½ cup cold water
1 cup sugar
2 tablespoons butter
1½ teaspoons vanilla extract
Dash nutmeg
2 tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca or cornstarch dissolved in a few tablespoons of water

Peel, core and slice the apples into a 10 inch skillet. Add the wine, water, sugar, butter, vanilla extract, nutmeg and the tapioca or cornstarch. Cook until apple slices are just slightly tender. Do not overcook to the mushy stage. Cool filling slightly. Turn into a chilled pastry shell, slide the lattice topping on, crimp edges. Bake at 375 for 35-45 minutes or until the crust is golden. Cool the pie, then dust generously with powdered sugar.

Serves eight.

"In America cinnamon is popular in apple pie, whereas in France it is vanilla flavoring. This is a delicious and unusual variation of apple pie," says the cook.

Almond Veal Imperial Is Elegant Entree For Party

Entertaining doesn't come to a halt after the holidays, it merely takes a different turn. The direction is away from the large open house and toward small dinner parties and luncheons.

If what to serve has you stumped, consider this deluxe and delicious veal casserole for a welcome change.

ALMOND VEAL IMPERIAL

2 pounds veal, cut in 1-inch cubes
2 tablespoons cooking fat
1 teaspoon salt
2 cups sliced celery
½ cup chopped onion
¼ cup chopped green pepper
¼ cup diced pimiento
1 can (4 ounces) mushrooms
1 can (10½ ounces) cream of mushroom soup
½ cup water
¼ cup soy sauce
1 package (7 or 8 ounces) noodles, cooked
1 cup dairy sour cream
½ cup slivered almonds

Brown veal cubes in cooking fat. Pour off drippings. Sprinkle meat with salt. Add celery, onion, green pepper, pimiento and mushrooms (including liquid). Combine and add mushroom soup, water and soy sauce. Cover tightly and cook slowly 45 minutes, stirring occasionally. Stir noodles and sour cream into veal mixture and place in a greased 2½-quart casserole. Sprinkle top with almonds. Bake in a slow oven (325 degrees F) for 30 minutes. Eight servings.

Microwave Oven Sales Increasing

A leading manufacturer said that sales of home microwave oven last year exceeded 200,000 units, up 200,000 over 1971 home sale. The firm forecast sales of home microwave ovens at 450,000 units this year. Conventional and microwave oven combinations will be marketed.

Some 20,000 families buy a new range every day in the U.S.

A Good Starter

A warm, zesty fruit compote is a good starter anytime. Heat canned fruit cocktail in its syrup, adding a touch of cinnamon and grated orange rind. Serve as brekfast fruit with buttered cinnamon toast.

A Simple Tart

Pretty peach-macaroon tarts can be made easily with packaged vanilla pudding and pie filling. Prepare pudding as package directs; add well drained canned cling peach slices, almond-macaroon cooky crumbs, a pinch of mace and a few drops almond extract. Cool and pour into crumb or pastry tart shells. Top with peach slices arranged pinwheel-fashion.

RELY ON oven cooking bags to insure moist, tender entrees such as this lamb and vegetable bake. All ingredients go into the oven bag and then into a preheated oven. A quick and easy meal that tastes mighty good.

Hearty Oven Dinner: Lamb And Vegetables

Here's a quick way to prepare an oven meal. It's a flavorful combination of vegetables and lamb pieces cooked the new oven bag method.

Oven bag cookery is becoming increasingly popular. And no wonder! It assures moist, tender entrees without a single stir or basting brush even when using less tender cuts of meat.

Lamb and Vegetable Bake is a modern version of Shepherd's Stew. Potatoes, green beans, and lamb pieces are major ingredients, and a convenient soup mix supplies the seasonings. All ingredients are placed in a family size brown-in-bag and cooked about one and one-half hours. That's all there's to it.

Serve a tossed salad and bread sticks with lamb and vegetable bake. It's a hearty, nutritious dinner that's mighty easy on the cook.

LAMB AND VEGETABLE BAKE

- 1 lb. boneless lamb, cut in 1 inch pieces
- 3 tablespoons flour
- 1 envelope dry onion gravy mix
- ¾ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon monosodium glutamate
- dash pepper
- 1 cup water
- 2 medium potatoes, cut in ¼ inch slices
- 1 package (10 oz.) frozen green beans, thawed

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Place family size (14" x 20") brown-in-bag in two-inch deep roasting pan. Add lamb. Combine flour, gravy mix, salt, monosodium glutamate, and pepper; stir in water. Pour mixture over meat. Top with potato slices and green beans. Secure bag with twist tie and make six half-inch slits in top. Cook for 1½ hours or until tested tender.

Makes: four servings.

A Hearty Salad

Treat your family or friends to a hearty luncheon salad. For each serving, drain canned cling peach halves and place two halves cup side up on a bed of shredded lettuce. Into each peach half, spoon a combination of deviled ham, pickle relish and chopped hardcooked eggs. Top with dollop of mayonnaise.

For Parties

Use a silent butler during parties. This is a handy gadget that looks like a little dustpan with a lid.

Ideal For Pork

Accent the flavor of roast pork or pork chops with tangy hot peaches. Stir a spoonful of mango chutney into mayonnaise and spoon a little into canned cling peach halves. Sprinkle lightly with flaked coconut and heat in hot oven about 10 minutes.

Some Rules To Follow On Flaming

NEW YORK (UPI) — Desserts can be flamed without difficulty if you observe a few simple rules:

Use either a beverage with alcoholic strength of 20 per cent or more or sugar cubes soaked with flavoring extract just before you light them. Lemon, orange, rum or brandy extracts are good choices.

Liquor or liqueurs need not be warmed if the dessert itself is warm or hot. Pour the beverage over it and touch a lighted kitchen or fireplace match to the surface of the dessert immediately. Use a long-handled spoon to pour the flaming liquid repreatedly from the serving plate over the dessert until the flames die.

If you do warm the beverage for flaming, do it in a longhandled container; a butter melter or a tiny Turkish coffee maker are useful over a candle or other low flame only until a lighted match held just above the surface lights the rising fumes.

For safety's sake, never try to carry a container of flaming beverage across a room and never pour directly from a bottle onto the food to be flamed.

A Pancake Topping

Finely chop ham or canned luncheon meat into your next favorite pancake recipe. Serve your hot pancakes topped with hot apple sauce.

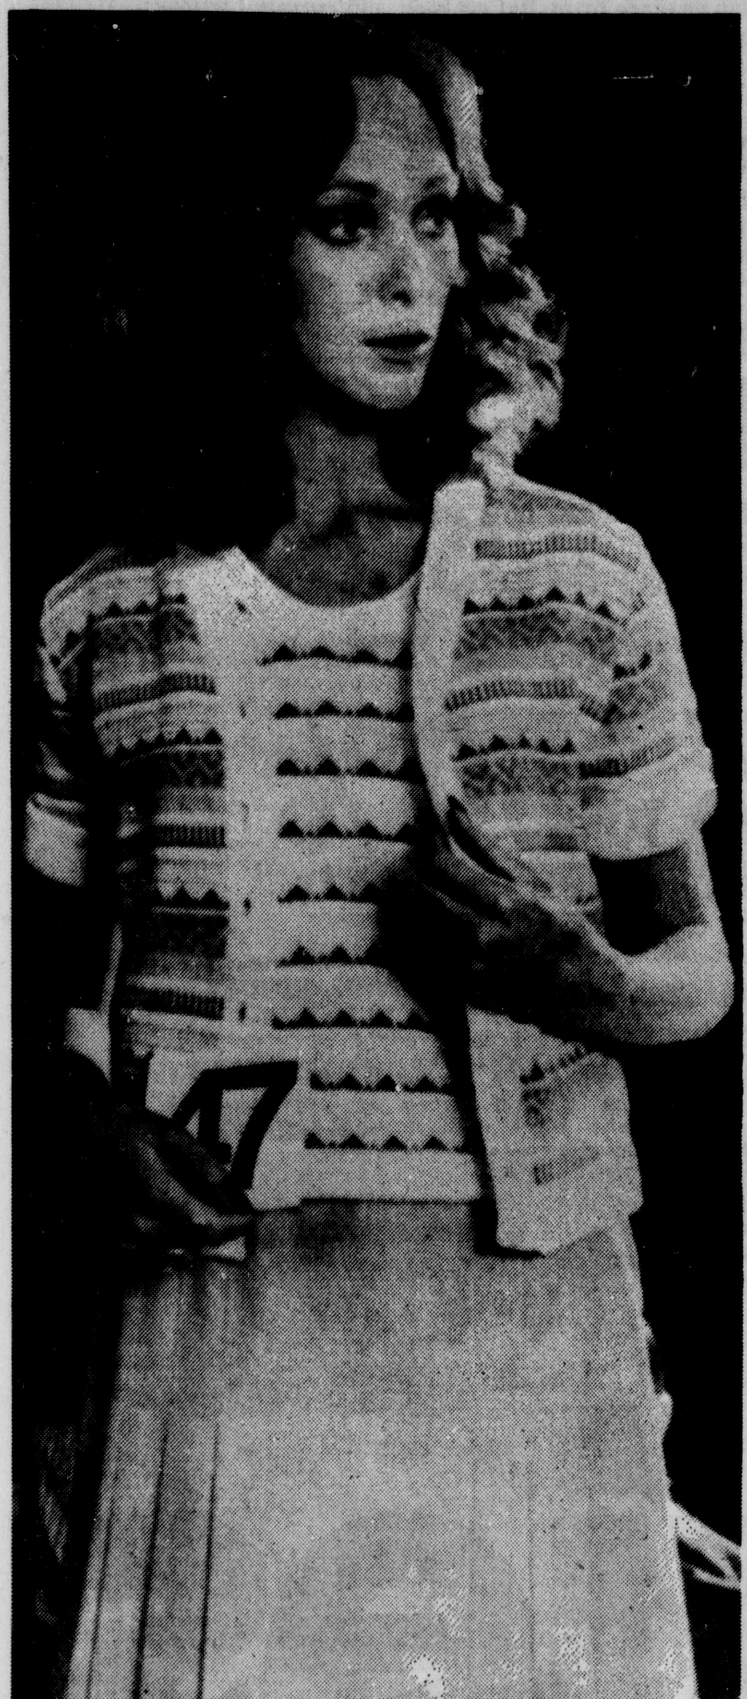
FOR SPRING, SUMMER

New Paris Fashions No Sensation



PLEATED, TUCKED and dirndl skirts were the highlights for spring and summer wear in Paris. Printed shirts, a wide bolero or a short-sleeved short jacket left open to the waist doubled with the revival of the pleated skirts. Here Pendleton introduces a sweater set for Spring, a nostalgic reminder of the "Sweater Girl" of the 40's. The pattern on pattern multicolor intarsia pattern cardigan with sleeveless pullover is combined with a pleat and panel skirt.

SHORT CHIFFON evening dress in the Valentino collection for spring and summer is printed with violets and trimmed with ruffles. The quilted jacket has a bouquet of violets at the neck. Paris couture has concentrated on the waistline and fuller skirts with white the spotlight in crepe and chiffon.

By ALISON LERRICK

PARIS (AP) — The Paris couture collections for spring and summer opened Monday. It would be nice to say the clothes look sensational, but they don't.

So far, the most important things are the omnipresent waistline and fuller skirts than ever.

At Louis Feraud, the skirt is a dirndl or just a floppy one cut on the bias. It comes with a printed shirt and wide bolero or a short-sleeved short jacket left open to the waist.

Sometimes, it's mini. For evening, the skirt is long in pink or green "gingham check" voile with a ruffled top.

THE COLORS are definitely not sedate. In checks, stripes and splotches, Feraud uses red, lime, turquoise and navy. His favorite shade is royal blue.

His pants, in white crepe, canvas or pique, are loose and baggy. They come with overblouses that skim the body to the hips or with stiff quilted boleros.

And, as for a few fun ideas, there are the blue satin bathing suits, trimmed in lace and definitely too mini to be a dress.

Society courturier Jean-Louis Scherrer has gone a bit pleat happy this season.

If something is not pleated all over, it's tucked. In fact, if Scherrer has his way, the white pleated skirt will regain all the ground it has ever lost.

IN CREPE and chiffon, white is classic all alone, and many of the dresses are a bit heavy on the "tennis, anyone?" side. For those who prefer the yachting look, there are dozens of suits in red, white and navy, piped of course.

Prettier are the long white pleated skirts or loose crepe pants with a long navy knitted jacket, sashed at the waist.

When Women Are Winners Everyone Is, Speaker Says

By BETTY FROST

If women win, everybody wins, Victoria B. Harding, told the Mill Valley Branch of the American Association of University Women yesterday.

Speaking on "women as winners", Mrs. Harding said that in her view winning has nothing to do with choosing up sides, nor does it mean that someone must lose because someone else has won. "The way to winnerhood," she said "is to develop the individual's unique potential."

In order to realize that potential the individual must become aware of his own condition and the factors, such as cultural forces and parental attitudes, which have influenced him.

Armed with such awareness, the individual is prepared to entertain options and make decisions, she said.

SHE INTRODUCED theories of Dr. Eric Berne on structural analysis, dealing with the human personality, and transactional analysis, concerned with the interaction of human beings.

Each individual's personality is made up of parental, adult and childlike states, according to Berne's theory. The parental state involves authoritatrian concepts; the adult state is devoted to evaluating factual material, and the child state encompasses the emotional spectrum from rage through delight, she explained.

The 60 women attending the morning session at the Mill Valley Library were asked to divide into small groups and consider their parents' opinions of the roles of men and women. From the input of these small groups, the stereotype role of women was established as subservient, quiet, irrational, weak, with the highest goal marriage and motherhood. Men, in the customary view, were seen as strong, leaders, intelligent, aggressive and the bread winners.

"Women are admired for what they are, and men for what they accomplish," the speaker summed up. "However all the data shows that there is no difference in intellectual abilities between the sexes, although there are great differences among the individuals in each sex."

THE DIFFERENCES come from powerful conditioning of young boys and girls and the social expectations of our culture, Mrs. Harding said.

As long as women are trained to believe that they cannot think straight they will develop only the authoritarian and emotional sides of their personalities, to the exclusion of intellectual growth, she said. As long as men are trained to deny their feelings, they will develop only the authoritarian and intellectual sides of their personalities to the exclusion of emotional growth.

"Given two crippled people, each only able to express part of the human potential, how can we expect a healthy relationship?" Mrs. Harding asked.

"One sex is not going to be liberated without liberating the other. Mrs. Harding cautioned: "When women ask for freedom and an equal opportunity, they must also be prepared to accept a high degree of responsibility."

The speaker, a resident of Mill Valley for 22 years, is now teaching at the Oasis Center in Lafayette.

Yesterday's program was the first in a two-part series sponsored by the Mill Valley Branch of the AAUW. Mrs. Harding will conduct a workshop on "The Downscripting of Women" Feb. 3 at the Fondue Pot restuarant in Corte Madera.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

He's Close To Mother, But His Woman Friend Doesn't Like It

DEAR HELEN:

I have a rather tricky problem. I am 24, male and single. I go to graduate school in a town 20 miles from my home town where my widowed mother still lives. I'm the only child and she has no close relatives. She's 62, in good health, but has failing eyesight.

My mother is an understanding and generous person and I love her. Since I sometimes worry about her living alone, I call to check on her health and see if she needs anything, as well as to visit. When I'm in her town, I stop off to have dinner with her, take her to a concert, or just talk.

I think there is nothing wrong with this, but I have a woman friend who says it's unhealthy — that parent-child relationships beyond the teens are unnatural. She does not see her mother or father and refuses all calls from them, maintaining this is the only way to mature. She says I am stifling my life. By very occasional friendly get-togethers with a parent yet?

I think she's wrong, but she won't stop nagging me. What should I say to her? — TIRED OF LISTENING

DEAR TIRED:

How about "Shut up!"?

Or maybe, "Get lost!" A woman this selfish isn't the ideal choice for steady companionship. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I guess you'd call me a more or less "happy sampler" too. I've been married five years and for the last two have been living a double life. Jim, my husband, is an easy-going artist who doesn't make enough money to feed our bird. I pay all the bills, do all the housework and make all the decisions. He never interferes with anything I do, but we don't do much together because he's always painting.

Then there's Vincent, the other half of my life. He's the exact opposite: dominant, a good provider, fun, and how he watches over me! I see him twice a week.

He's happy with his wife and children, but would probably get a divorce to marry me, though I really couldn't ask him to leave them. However, this can't go on forever.

I've tried splitting up with Jim three times, but he has always coaxed me back. He doesn't know about Vincent: just thinks I'm tired of supporting him.

Any solutions? — PUZZLED

DEAR PUZZLED:

A bored, dissatisfied, probably resentful woman can mistake any kind of extra-marital excitement for love. If you don't like your present set-up (as evidenced by three attempts to leave it) then make the break — but don't count on Vincent as your next husband. I'll predict he disappears fast when he learns you've filed for a divorce — with some sort of unspoken plans in mind. — H.

Coed Overcomes Challenge Of Tough Survival Course

By VIVIAN BROWN
Associated Press

Survival courses may be the newest concept of education. It may even be what education is all about.

And you don't need to be a rugged he-man type to test your fitness. As part of a new course in survival at Boston University, a 5-foot, red-haired, freckle-faced senior, Susan Reiter, 21, has just survived the challenge of 330 miles of Hudson River and its rapids — kayaking, canoeing, portaging — for 21 days with four male graduate students on a reconnaissance trip.

At the university a brochure advises students ... "if you feel under the wheel from the pressures of work or you are suffering the ennui created by avoiding work; you should enroll in one of the SURGE (survival, urgency, recreation, growth, enthusiasm) outdoor action courses."

SUSAN NOT only survived the trip. She might even be willing to SURGE again in another of the daring adventures devised by Michael Jeneid, a British education professor and naturalist with a background of association with Outward Bound schools which improve self-image through controlled stress outdoors.

Students learn that "the outcome of a training expereince can be . . . drawn upon because it is transferable ... in the future one can make use of the stronger character patterns developed under training conditions . . . To survive one must recognize one's own fear mechanisms."

Rock climbing, cross-country skiing, kayak expeditioning are courses that might even prepare one to face the rigors of classroom work. Courses of four weeks duration carry credits from the school of education.

Thousands of bites, cuts, scratches, bruises and two swollen ankles later — caused by insects, rocks and the pebbly river beds — Susan was enthusiastically endorsing her experience by observing:

"I NOT only learned about myself as an individual in a strenuous experience, but I learned to interact with a group I had not known before . . . I also gained seven pounds."

The men — John Snodgrass, Bob Nolte, Stan Harbarson and David Holdt — graduate students at Boston University — expect to apply their experiences to their own teaching work in other schools.

Even if the trip doesn't bring out the latent courage in a participator, it is a sure cure for finicky eaters, Susan said. The group became so ravenous from its strenuous days, it would even drink the vegetable water at the end of the evening meal.

"I ate as much as the men did, sometimes six slices of bread," said the tiny river farer. "You get so you will eat anything and you'll mix it all together in your bowl."

Meals were the usual camp fare — instant oatmeal with raisins and sugar added for extra energy, tuna fish or cheese at lunch, freeze-dried casseroles at dinner. No smoking, alcohol or drugs were permitted.

The group had left from the source of the Hudson, Lake Tear-of-the-Clouds in the Adirondacks after climbing Mt. Marcy to the spot where all the mountain streams converge.

AFTER THREE days of portage around dams, waterfalls, power companies and two additional days in a six-man tube raft in which they sat straddle-legged with one leg out of the raft, they transferred to canoe and kayak that would be used until they paddled into the Battery in New York City 18 days later.

They wore damp pants or shorts, and hiking boots or wet, soggy sneakers by day, but at night they wore dry clothing to bed. And they went to sleep at dark in polyethelene lean — to contrivances strung between trees, after they had collected firewood, done the cooking, and had written the day's log which each had to keep.

A new capacity of well-being was felt. "One man thought he would become ill if he got wet without rain protection," Susan commented, but he soon enjoyed skimming over the water in driving rainfalls without any ill effects.

At a treacherous area near Warrensburg, they had an accident, Susan had been sitting in the middle of the canoe, the heavier vehicle that stored their gear, when they took on water in the rapids, tried to cut into an eddy, and found themselves in another set of rapids. Susan suddenly was in the water with the geodetic map held between her teeth. She saw her companions floating down stream.

"IN THE rapids you stay close, but you are on your own. My first reaction was to get to shore so I began swimming on my belly, grabbing rocks and slitting my fingers a bit. The other buddies were floating. But when I got to shore there was no place to go. But we kept calling to each other and they got through the brush to me."

The $400 course may prove to be the biggest thrill she will ever have, but fishermen and others they met in the north "thought we were a bit nutty," she says.

"You couldn't find such a learning experience in a textbook," says the sociology major, who is interested in mental health. "Organization ... responsibility ... conquering fears ... there are so many facets to such an experience."

Women Drivers Are Rated Best

LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — Women drivers in Michigan have a safer driving record than men, a survey of the state's 6 million drivers shows.

Women drivers had a record of being 94.5 per cent accident free in 1971 while 89.1 per cent of men had no accidents.

Butterflies On Everything

Butterfly prints are nearly a trademark of the Sache of Beauclere fabrics in the Dior collection shown in Paris this week. Some are tiny as pinpoints and others are jumbo jetsized.

Sache, reports Women's Wear Daily, has been creating butterfly prints for Paris couture since the days of Schiaparelli, but these are different: all in mixtures of brown and beige on white or chocolate brown backgrounds.

On Launch Day She's The Boss

By ANDREW TORCHIA

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Chivalrous Italian space technicians can't get over it — the top American on launch day is a trim, blue-eyed blonde.

"It's a novelty for them," says Mrs. Marjorie Townsend. "They keep on telling me how unusual it is for a woman to do my job."

As manager of the U.S. Small Astronomy Satellite project, Mrs. Townsend aims for the moment on the seaborne rocket platforms off the Kenyan coast when "I tell the Italians the spacecraft is go and the Italians launch it."

She took part in the successful orbiting Nov. 16 of a National Aeronautics and Space Administration satellite to study high-energy cosmic radiation, the fifth Italian-American launch from the San Marco equatorial range since 1967.

Italians may still consider space a man's arena but Mrs. Townsend, 42, says she gets scant kidding about being a woman from NASA coworkers at Goddard Space Flight Center in Greenbelt, Md. She's been with NASA 13 years, six of them as the first woman satellite project manager in the U.S. space program.

MRS. TOWNSEND joined a man's world in 1951, when she became the first woman to obtain an engineering degree from George Washington University. She helped develop antisubmarine warfare methods during eight years at the U.S. Naval Research Laboratory in Washington, D.C.

At Greenbelt, Mrs. Townsend guides the design, budgeting and construction of Small Astronomy Satellite experiments. The next San Marco launch on her schedule is in 1975.

Evenings, she helps the younger of her four sons with homework or ducks into the basement of their Washington, D.C., home to work on the family hobby — a profitable job printing business. Or she goes over the accounts for her husband, Charles, an obstetrician.

"HE SPENDS his working life with women and I spend mine with men," she said. "Turnabout is fair play."

Mrs. Townsend says she gets an occasional "Margie, come home" plea from her husband during long business trips. Although her job keeps her away from Washington for periods up to two months, she finds it pays dividends in keeping in contact with her teen-aged boys.

"The kids are generally pretty proud of me. They respect both their father and me for our work, and respect for parents is hard to come by these days," she said.

"My experience in the working world is a major asset in talking to my children. I can tell them it's rough out there."

Mrs. Townsend sees no conflict between her job and her role as a woman but there are few feminine frills in her life. She says she had her last woman-to-woman gabfest during her sorority days in college and "I go shopping about once a year — that's one of the things I don't have time for."

Felt Files For College Board Post

Trustee Donald K. Felt of the Marin Community College District filed nomination papers yesterday in the April 17 school board races, the Marin County Elections Department reported today.

And the first candidate to file in Southern Sonoma for the Cotati-Rohnert Park School District election on April 17 was incumbent Anthony P. Carbone, who completed his papers yesterday.

Carbone, 38, was elected to the board in November of 1971 after an unsuccessful attempt the previous April. He is employed as an institutional sales representative for Kraft Foods.

Carbone and his wife, June M., live at 432 Anson Avenue, Rohnert Park, and have four children.

Felt was elected in April 1969. He had been appointed to the board in October the previous year to fill the unexpired term of Alan D. Ewen. He was president of the board in 1971-72.

An attorney in San Francisco, Felt is 38.

BARSTOW, Calif. (UPI) — The Mojave River of south central California has no mouth.

It has its source in the spring and snow crevices of the San Bernardino Mountains and it is then swallowed up in the sands of the desert.

Bolinas-Stinson Tax Increase Vote Asked

Trustees of the Bolinas-Stinson School District agreed last night to ask voters for a 50-cent increase in the district's tax rate.

Supt. Lester M. Horning said the tax hike, which would bring the total district levy to $2.55, will be placed on the ballot April 17.

Horning said the board thought the hike was needed to make up for revenue lost by creation of the Point Reyes National Seashore and Golden Gate National Recreation Area.

He said local income is down more than $10,000 from last year and will fall even lower when land losses from the recreation area are calculated.

To make matters worse, the superintendent said, the new state tax shift law will compute future income for the small West Marin district on the basis of current, reduced revenues.

So, he said, the district cannot expect much more than the current $264,000 annual revenue in future years.

Horning went on to say that the district will have to spend about $20,000 more than it takes in this year in order to maintain existing programs. "If we can't expect more than our current revenues next year or the year after that, we will have real problems," he explained.

In other business, the board accepted the resignation of trustee John G. Barrow, effective at the end of the school year. Barrow, a cabinet maker who was elected to the board in 1971, is moving to Kentucky this summer.

His resignation means that four of the five board seats will be up for election April 17. The terms of trustees Jessie Reasoner, Michael Aitken and John Harris will also expire this year.

San Pedro Teacher Flap Settled

The San Rafael Board of Education, faced with a staffing shortage at San Pedro School, last night gained the reluctant acceptance of parents to a compromise plan.

About 50 parents appeared last night to protest transfer of one teacher from the school — leaving the remaining full time kindergarten teacher in charge of 36 pupils — and "reluctantly accepted" a plan to bolster the staff with part-time aid, according to Supt. John F. Plank.

Plank said one of the school's two-teacher kindergarten staff was transferred to another school last Christmas due to a resignation, a move that angered parents because two teachers had been budgeted for duty at San Pedro School.

In a compromise solution hammered out last night, the board decided to give the remaining San Pedro teacher six hours of part-time aid daily, including two hours of a regular teacher's time and four hours of a teaching aide's time.

The plan will mean a $1,200 saving for the district over previous cost of staffing San Pedro, Plank said.

The flap has its roots in a decision last year, in which sagging finances forced the board to relieve three teachers through attrition, according to Plank.

The San Rafael Board of Education also:

DRAINAGE — Decided to bring a drainage problem on Lindaro Street near Davidson School to the attention of the city council during budget hearings. Streets leading to the school are "cut off with a moat" during heavy rains, requiring students to be ferried across by buses, Plank said.

NEXUS — Heard a report and film presentation of the Nexus alternative school at San Rafael High School, and learned enrollment in the alternative program, which is currently 123, has jumped to 140 students for next year.

ATHLETES — Decided to survey students at Terra Linda and San Rafael schools in an attempt to resolve inconsistencies in physical education requirements at the two schools. Student athletes at Terra Linda High School are required to take gym class in addition to team practice sessions, while their counterparts at San Rafael High School are not required to enroll in gym or physical education classes, according to Plank.

GALLINAS CSD — Approved an arrangement whereby the Gallinas Village Community Services District will be allowed to rent school buses for recreational excursions at 29 cents per mile and cost of bus drivers' wages.

FRINGE BENEFITS — Approved a policy giving part-time employees fringe benefits in proportion to hours worked per week.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to 8 p.m. Feb. 5 for a closed session to hear charges against a district custodian.

Bridgeway District Approved By Council

The Sausalito City Council agreed last night to proceed with formation of an assessment district to finance extensive improvements to downtown Bridgeway.

City Clerk Miriam K. Ansell said the council now will have to set hearings on the district to give merchants and property owners in the area affected a chance to give their views.

The district would finance approximately $278,475 worth of improvements to the street, between Princess Street and the area north of Bay Street.

Sixty-four per cent of the area's property owners have signed a petition calling for establishment of the district.

Mrs. Ansell said several property owners appeared at the meeting to protest the move

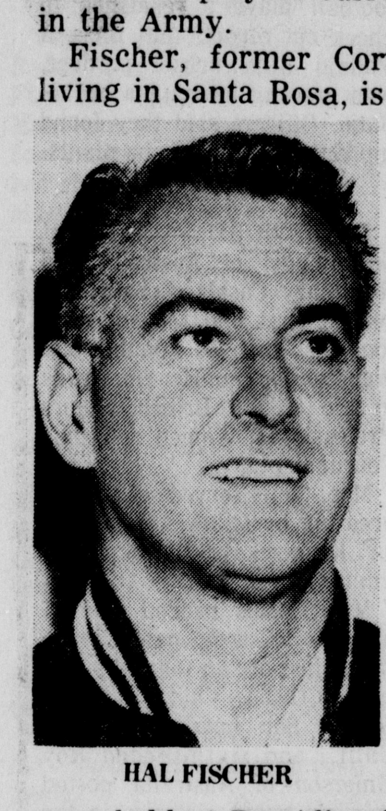
Soldiers Shooting Baskets, Not Guns

Hal Fischer was back at Terra Linda High School and with him were some of the best basketball players currently putting in some time in the Army.

Fischer, former Corte Madera resident now living in Santa Rosa, is head coach for the Army basketball team. Monday he brought some of his players to put on a youth basketball clinic for freshmen boys at Terra Linda High and for students from junior high schools in San Rafael. Fischer and his Army cagers will be back on the Terra Linda court Feb. 8 in the third annual East-West College All-Star game.



HAL FISCHER

That game will play a big part in Fischer's selection of a 12-man team to take into the Worldwide U.S. Interservice tournament, this year held at Presidio of San Francisco, March 6-7-8. That tourney will pit the best players from the U.S. armed services. There will be between 30 and 32 on the Army roster when the soldiers play in Terra Linda. That will be after the team is whittled down from 300 or so candidates.

"WE HAVE A LOT of talent," said Fischer glancing out on the court where his players were practicing some shots before the start of the clinic. "This is going to be the strongest team we've had in the last three years."

The players hail from all parts of the country, arriving these past few days from stations such as Fort Lee, Va., Fort Bragg, Ky., Fort Leavenworth, Kan., and Fort Rucker, Ala.

"We have just got in a new group of boys from Korea," said Fischer, who has coached U.S. teams in both Olympic and Pan American games. "Ill be flying back to Fort Riley, Kan., to look at another 80 candidates there. I'll probably pick up another 8 or 10 players from that group."

Hal has seven returning players from the East and West squads which played last year's game at Terra Linda High. "I'm fortunate to have that many," he said. In the Army there is quite a turnover, as you can imagine. Two years is enough for many.

AMONG THE RETURNEES is First Lt. James Oxley who was on the 1970 All-National Invitational Tournament (NIT) team when he was playing for West Point. An All-Army player the past three years, Oxley had to miss last year's game in Terra Linda because his wife was giving birth to a daughter that same day.

Another of the stars for Army is Gary Beck, a 6-foot-½ inch guard who was trying out for the professional Dallas Chaparrals before getting drafted into the Army. He had earned all-district small college honors while playing for Greenville College in Illinois.

"If he could stick with Dallas for as long as he did he should be able to make our club," said Fischer. "He doesn't look big but he's a heck of a player."

FOR SIZE THERE was John Ennis who had done his college playing at Guilford in North Carolina before being drafted in the Army. He's 6-6½ and 240 pounds. "The Army had a heck of a time finding some size 16 shoes to fit him," said Fischer.

The players work out two and sometimes three times a day leading up to the Interservice tournament. But Fischer could never push the players too much, for they would much rather practice basketball than carry a rifle or scrub pots at some distant post. As you would expect, there are no discipline problems with the Army cagers.

For the game next month at Terra Linda High, Fischer will divide the team in half, those from eastern colleges opposing players from western colleges. If the crowd matches those of the past two years, it would be a sellout or near to it.

DUNDEE CYNICAL

Foreman-Ali Fight Proposed To Champ

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) — George Foreman, the new heavyweight champion of the world, says he'll let the people dictate his next opponent — and the voice of the people roared back today in a rising swell.

"Give us Foreman vs. Muhammad Ali," they said.

That blue ribbon pairing is unlikely to come off this year. Ali, 31, and faced for the second time with a long period of ring rust, may be forced to cool his heels for a couple of years.

"I think Foreman will make us wait a while," said Angelo Dundee of Miami, Ali's trainer who predicted Foreman's victory over Joe Frazier. "He doesn't want us too soon.

"But it would make one whale of a fight."

Meanwhile, there were other complications. Foreman and his manager, Dick Sadler, must dispose of a mysterious paper admittedly signed by Sadler agreeing to a return bout with Frazier in Houston.

Harry Barnett, Washington, D.C., attorney for Sadler, said it was just "a piece of paper and not valid."

Other contenders, such as Jimmy Ellis, Oscar Bonavena and Jerry Quarry, who happened to be bypassed in Foreman's impressive sweep to 38 straight victories, are lining up and demanding recognition.

It's now a big payday for anyone who fights the strapping, 24-year-old former Golden Gloves champion, who floored Frazier six times in 4 minutes 35 seconds and scored a stunning second round upset in Kingston's National Arena Monday night.

Spahn Is Hall Of Fame Pick

NEW YORK (UPI) — Warren Spahn, the winningest lefthanded pitcher in history today became the only electee to the Hall of Fame by the Baseball Writers Associaton of America.

Spahn received 316 votes from the 380 writers participating in the balloting which required being named on at least 75 per cent of the votes cast.

The election of only Spahn, who won 363 games in 20 years in the majors mostly with the Boston-Milwaukee Braves, came as somewhat of a surprise in that so many worthy candidates were eligible for election this year. Included among those who had cleared the designated five year period for election to the Hall were Robin Roberts, Ralph Kiner, Bob Lemon, Gil Hodges and Whitey Ford. Of those five ford came the closest receiving 255 votes, only 29 shy of the 284 needed for selection.

Kiner was third with 235 .

In being elected to the Hall of Fame in his first year of eligibility, Spahn thus joins five other immortals—Ted Williams, Stan Musial, Jackie Robinson, Bob Feller and Sandy Koufax as the only men in baseball history to be so honored. Spahn, a high-kicking lefthander with a sharp downbreaking curve ball, set major league records of most seasons winning 20 or more games by a southpaw (13), most years leading in games won (8), most consecutive years leading the league in complete games (7), most games won by a lefthander during his career (363), most strikeouts by a left-hander (2,583) and most consecutive years 100 or more strikeouts (17).

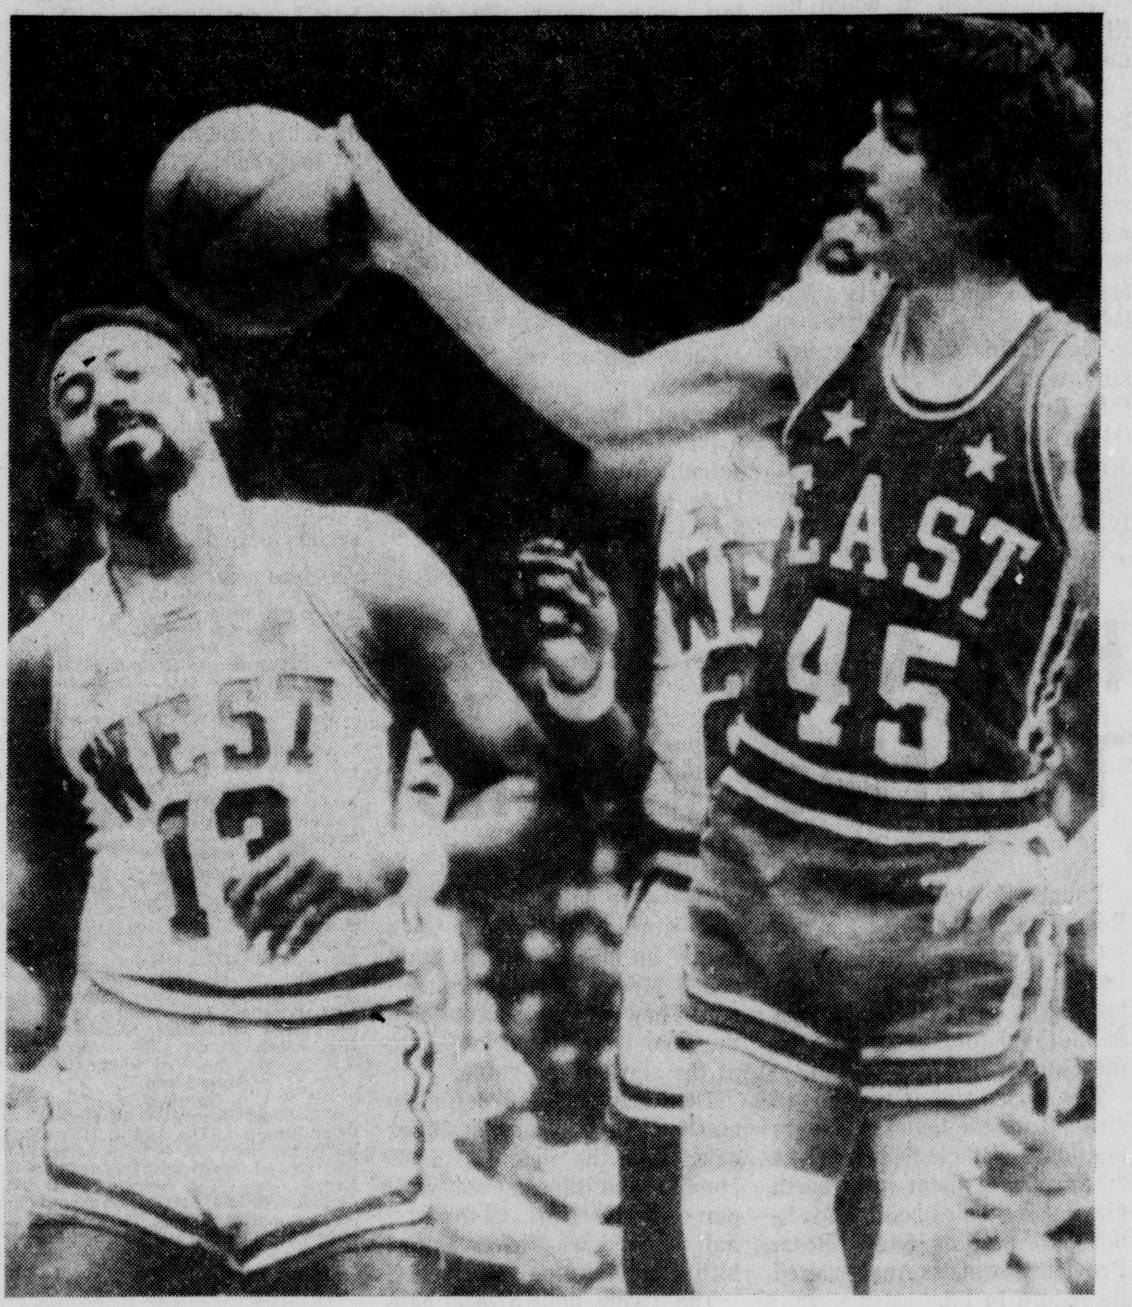
He also set National League records of most shutout games by a left-hander during his career (63), most games started (665) and most seasons pitched for one club (20).

A native of Buffalo, N.Y., Spahn stood six feet and weighed 180 pounds and pitched two no-hitters —against the Philadelphia Phillies in 1960 and against the San Francisco Giants in 1961. He won the Cy Young Award as the major leagues' No. 1 pitcher in 1957, pitched in seven all-star games and appeared in three World Series with the Braves. His World Series record was 4-3 with a 2.89 earned run average in eight games and 56 innings.

Spahn joined the Boston Braves in 1942 but spent the next three years in the Navy. He rejoined the Braves in 1946, posting an 8-5 record, and compiled a 21-10 mark with a 2.33 earned run average in 1947.

Despite his 13 20-victory seasons, Spahn is remembered best by some fans for his contribution to the Braves' pennant victory in 1948. He had only a 15-12 record that season but teamed with Johnny Sain (who had a 24-15 record) to pitch virtually every other day in the stretch run of the race.

Spahn was sold to the New York Mets in 1964 and was released by them and signed by the San Francisco Giants in 1965.



THAT'S NOT NICE — Atlanta's Pete Maravich (45) of the East All-Stars appeared to be bouncing the ball off the head of Los Angeles' Wilt Chamberlain of the West Stars in the National Basketball Association All-Star game in Chicago last night. Maravich was actually trying to control the elusive basketball as Chamberlain looked on. The East won, 104-84. (UPI Telephoto)

East Five Triumphs In Chicago

CHICAGO (UPI) — Tom Heinsohn's East All Stars put it all together to win the annual National Basketball Association All Star game 104-84, the victorious Boston Celtics coach said today.

"We controlled the boards, we got the ball out to our guards, we got our fast forwards down the floor and we played good defense," he said. "Defense won it for us."

Heinsohn, getting top scoring efforts from two of his own, center Dave Cowens with 15 points and forward John Havlicek with 14 points, wouldn't single out these two Boston stars for praise and instead distributed honors equally on his 14-man roster.

Every player on the East scored at least one field goal.

Heinsohn mentioned Elvin Hayes of Baltimore as "dynamic off the boards."

Cowens, who led both teams in rebounding with 13, was named MVP in the contest, earning 45 ½ votes. Only five other players drew votes and among them they had a total of 24 ½.

The East, with a 50-45 lead at the half, spurted in the final half while holding the West to 39 points. For the game, the East shot 41.6 per cent frrom the field with 47 field goals and the West, collecting only 33 field goals, hit 37.5 per cent.

It was the 15th win for the East against eight for the West in the series and the East victory broke a two-game West winning streak.

Nate Archibald, the league leader in both scoring and assists and a starting guard for the West, sat out both the second and third periods and stilled the West in both scoring, with 17, and assists, with five.

Marin Tar Five Routs Cosumnes

By RALPH CHATOIAN
I-J Sports Editor

Playing the role of Scrooge by holding Cosumnes River College to only 16 points the first half, College of Marin's Tars rolled to their 17th victory of the season last night, 77-54, before a sparse gathering of 200 in Kentfield.

The non-conference basketball game was never in doubt after Marin quickly broke things open with six straight baskets for a 15-4 lead over the visitors from Sacramento. Halftime score was 39-16. Marin's overall record is now 17-2 and last night's showing should keep the Tars in their lofty spot of No. 2 in the state behind Allan Hancock of Santa Maria.

Marin was playing without its head coach, John Panagakis, home in bed with the flu, and center Neil Traub, out of action with abdominal pains.

"We're hoping it's not appendicitis," said Marin assistant coach Jim Webster who took over for Panagakis last night. "The doctors will probably know for sure in a day or two," he said in reference to Traub's condition.

Marin forward Wil Garner was repeatedly left open under the basket for passes and took advantage for 29 points, game high scoring honors. Cosumnes guard Carl Roper, the only returnee off last year's team, led the Chiefs with 22 points after being held to only four points in the first half by the close guarding of Len Smith.

Marin's other starting guard, Joe DeMaestri, a sophomore out of Novato High, scored 14 points on seven fielders before fouling out early in the game, only four minutes and eight seconds into the second half. His replacement, 5-foot-10 Steve Pieper, did a very good job on defense, hustling all over the court.

"Pieper is starting to be the key guy off the bench for us," said Webster. "He's very heady, a smart player, and he really hustles."

Cosumnes came out in the second half and tried to speed up the play on Marin, a team that likes to play a steady, deliberate game. The Chiefs' full court press forced Marin into some mistakes, but also allowed some fast break baskets.

Forward Joe Casteel played his usual strong game on both ends of the court and his movement drew fouls which sent him to the free throw line 12 times. He made good on nine of the shots and ended up with 13 points.

Marin's big test will come Saturday when the Tars host West Valley College of Campbell, a team that is one game behind them in the Camino Norte Conference standings. That game will start at 8 p.m.

Cosumnes — Roper 8-6-22, Copeland 3-4-10, Jelaco 1-2-4, Spence 2-3-7, Berry 1-0-2, Fetsoff 0-1-1, Williams 0-1-1, Curry 3-1-7. Totals: 18-18—54.

Marin — Casteel 2-9-13, Garner 12-5-29, DeMaestri 7-0-14, Smith 3-1-7, LaFerriere 1-1-3, Forni 0-2-2, Lindquist 1-3-5, Hagler 1-0-2, Pieper 1-0-2. Totals: 28-21 — 77.

Rams Fire Prothro, Hire Knox As Coach

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Los Angeles Rams fired Tommy Prothro today and hired Chuck Knox, former Detroit Lions assistant, to replace him as head coach of the National Football League club.

Prothro, criticized for being unemotional and for failure to motivate his players during a disappointing 6-7-1 season, had three years left on a reported $90,000-a-year contract.

Carroll Rosenbloom, Ram owner, indicated Prothro would be paid off for the remaining years of the contract which he signed after many successful years as a college coach at UCLA and Oregon State.

Knox, 40, served for six years as Lions' offensive line coach under Joe Schmidt and was set loose when Schmidt was fired recently.

Knox never played professional football. He was an offensive lineman at little Juniata College in Sewickley, Pa., and

Novato '5' Edged By Redwood

By TOM THOMPSON

Novato High School's basketball team ran out of miracles with two seconds left to play yesterday and suffered a 67-66 loss to Marin County Athletic League rival Redwood in Larkspur.

Novato, which held the undisputed league lead over the weekend, fell into a three-way tie for first place with Drake and Redwood with 4-2 records.

The Hornets never led during the game, but Joe Robinson sank a field goal from inside the key to bring them within one point with 10 seconds left to play. Novato regained possession with two seconds left and Hornet coach Jim Caranica called a time out as most of the 300 fans were on their feet. Dave Brazell threw the ball into play but Redwood's Katsumi Johnson, with the help of a tip from Scott Trobbe, intercepted it to seal the victory.

Novato's last five games have been decided by three points or less, and the Hornets had won three of them in a row before yesterday.

Redwood center Mike Connor led all scorers with 25 points, and teammate Neil Hennessy added 18. Center Willie Barnes scored 22 for Novato, 16 coming during a Hornet rally in the second half.

Redwood overcame an earlier problem, winning the game from the freethrow line. The winners sank 15 of 22 free throws, while Novato shot 50 per cent, six of 12. Redwood committed only 11 fouls, to the Hornets' 16.

As Caranica said later, the Hornets "let them get too far ahead." The Giants shot an astounding 92 per cent from the floor in the first quarter to take a commanding 28-13 lead.

The Hornets came back from a 13-point halftime deficit, outscoring the hosts 23-11 to cut the margin to two at the end of the third quarter. Barnes rattled off his eighth consecutive basket 30 seconds later to tie the game for the first time. The Giants kept their poise, however. With about three minutes left Redwood went into a stall, forcing Novato to foul. Johnson then sank four clutch free throws within the two minute mark to give Redwood a 67-62 lead, thus clinching the victory.

Seals In Atlanta Tonight

Combined AP & UPI

ATLANTA — The California Golden Seals, smarting from their third loss this season to the only team with a worse record than theirs, invade Atlanta tonight for a National Hockey League game.

The New York Islanders embarrassed the visiting Seals 8-1 last night, their third victory over the Californians in four tries this season.

In fact, exactly half the Islanders' six wins have been against California which has won eight games overall.

New York's victory was insured by Craig Cameron who scored three goals, giving him eight for the season.

The Islanders went ahead 2-0 in the first period on goals by Bob Cook and Richie Grenier before Reg Leach got the Seals' lone counter.

San Marin Cagers Top Terra Linda

By LEW CODDINGTON

Terra Linda High School managed to shoot 54 per cent from the floor and lose a basketball game last night, which is testimony not to the ineptness of the Trojans, but to the superior offensive rebounding of San Marin High.

The host Mustangs rallied in the fourth quarter for a 71-63 victory before about 400 fans, thus evening both teams' Marin County Athletic League records at 3-3, but with a difference — San Marin has won two in a row, while Terra Linda has lost its last pair.

San Marin guard Hoza Wright scored 28 points, giving him a standoff in the scoring column with Terra Linda forward Mark Lowey. Each tied the highest production in the MCAL this year.

But it was the Mustangs' ability to hit the boards which made the difference. San Marin outrebounded the Trojans, 49-37, and 26 of the rebounds came on the offensive boards. As a result, Terra Linda's blistering 28-of-52 shooting was nullified. San Marin had 12 more attempts, and made one more field goal, hitting 45 per cent.

The Trojans got the worst of the under-the-basket warfare in another way, committing 22 personal fouls to San Marin's 14. The Mustangs' 13 for-26 performance from the foul line looked bad on the percentage charts, but gave them six more points than Terra Linda's seven-for-nine showing.

San Marin's 6-foot-5 John Tait got 13 rebounds, 6-5 Price (Skip)

Drake Wins; Takes Share Of The Top

By ROB MILLER

Drake High School, with John Channell scoring 11 of his 21 points in the fourth quarter, rallied from six points down to defeat San Rafael in a Marin County Athletic League basketball game yesterday, 63-61.

Drake's win before 400 fans at San Rafael boosted the Pirates back into a share of first place in the MCAL with a 4-2 record, tied with Novato and Redwood. San Rafael stands 2-4, and has lost four in a row.

The fourth quarter was the key as the Bulldogs saw their 55-49 lead at 5:07 dwindle to 59-58 with about a minute to play. The Pirates went ahead, 60-58, on a basket by Don Asay at :46. Channell added a free throw for insurance, but the scoring wasn't over.

San Rafael's Guy Perry made a shot with six seconds left to put the Bulldogs just one point behind. But Pirate Rick Herbert added more insurance than Drake needed on a free throw to make it 63-61. With one second left, Bulldog Steve D'Ambra took a half-court shot, but San Rafael's last hope was batted away by a Pirate defender.

"This was surely a good win," said happy Drake coach Pete Hayward. "We really hustled in the last couple minutes, and it turned out that we got the breaks, so we took advantage.

"We've been very poor at being able to take advantage all this year," Hayward added, "but this game we finally did it."

Down at the end of the first quarter due to some foul trouble, the Pirates managed to pull even, 32-32, at the half.

But a strong third quarter put the Bulldogs back in front, 49-42. This set the stage for the pivotal fourth quarter.

Surprisingly, San Rafael managed to build its lead without much scoring support from the league's top scorer, center Byron Stewart. Stewart, who was averaging 17.8 points per game, made only two points.

High scorer for the game was San Rafael's D'Ambra, who basketed 22 points. Other high scorers for the Bulldogs were Perry with 14, and Pete Neuwald with 12.

For Drake, besides Channell, Asay had 16, and Herbert had 12.

Drake	12	20	10	21—63
San Rafael	18	14	17	12—61

Drake — Howard 2-0-4, Schmitz 0-2-2, Chavez 2-2-6, Asay 8-0-16, Channell 9-3-21, Herbert 2-8-12, Carlisle 0-2-2. Totals: 23-17-63.

San Rafael — Perry 6-2-14, Stewart 1-0-2, Gallivan 2-2-6, Neuwald 5-2-12, D'Ambra 10-2-22, Ellingson 0-1-1, Zitek 0-2-2, Meyers 0-2-2. Totals: 24-13-61.

BOATING

By STAN DAVIES

Books—An Aid For Boating Knowledge

To acquire good boat handling techniques, experience is unquestionably the best teacher. Every skipper has to get the "feel" of handling a boat himself — and, incidentally, making a few mistakes.

However, I find that a lot of knowledge about boating techniques can be gained without ever having been afloat. And I firmly believe that beginners in the sport who have done a lot of reading, and perhaps thinking, about boating and sailing learn much more quickly when they do the thing for real.

So this is an admonition to get a few boating books this winter while the action is slow and study some of the basic principles of seamanship, piloting, navigation and motor or engine maintenance. You'll be better for it when the boating season gets back into full swing next summer.

I find, too, that people who know the most about boating generally know the most about safe boating specifically. Here are typical questions that could be answered quickly by anyone who had read even a rudimentary text:

Q. I have an outboard boat that is speedy and agile. Recently I drove a large powerful inboard boat. Response to the helm was sluggish. Is this normal?

A. Everything is relative and by comparison with a speedy outboard any big inboard is "sluggish." In an outboard when the motor is turned the whole thrust of the outboard is used to cause the boat to turn, but in an inboard there is never more than half the "discharge current" from the propeller or propellers acting upon the rudder.

Q. I have just read that sailing craft do not necessarily have the right of way anymore. . . is this so?

A. The law change is seven years old, but I guess some people still have not heard about it. The rule says that large ships have the right of way over small pleasure craft in harbors and narrow channels where maneuvering is difficult.

Q. It seems poor design, but the stern of my boat is so low that water comes in every time I stop the outboard motor. . .?

A. At one time the outboard motor manufacturers got together and agreed on a uniform 15-inch height for the transom — that's the flat area at the stern. This was to make all motors standard. However, now you can get long shaft motors — 20 inches. This will let you build up your transom and put in a self bailing motor well ahead of it. This will catch any water that comes aboard.

Q. What's a trim tab?

A. It's a gadget installed on the stern of the boat flush with the bottom, as a kind of extension of the bottom. Tabs, usually installed in pairs, can be adjusted so that they react on the water rushing under the boat to keep the bow down if it rides too high.

Q. If a boat livery rents you a boat, must it also supply lifejackets?

A. In some states, yes. Florida for example. But it is not required in some others. Read your state boating law. However, even if the boat livery operator isn't required to supply life saving equipment, it doesn't absolve the person who accepts the boat from having it aboard.

Speier's Goals: Less Strikeouts, More Wins

Chris Speier was the first man to report for the early bird pre-spring baseball workouts which the Giants set in motion this week at Candlestick Park, a month ahead of their regular spring encampment in Arizona.

Speier could hardly wait to put on his uniform. The young shortstop was bubbling with enthusiasm and optimism.

"I never predict," said Speier, "but I don't mind telling you my goals. First, of course, is to win. Second, I'd like to cut my strikeouts in half."

At the mention of strikeouts, Don Carrithers, sitting next to Speier in the Candlestick clubhouse, mused: "We must have had 1,000 strikeouts last season."

A REPORTER interviewing Speier flipped the pages of an official National League record book and began to recite "Dave Kingman 140, Bobby Bonds 137, Garry Maddox 97 —" when Speier interrupted:

"How many did I have?"

Advised that he struck out 92 times last season, Speier said: "I definitely have to do something about that this year."

Despite his impatience to get on the practice field, Speier didn't end the interview on a negative strikeout note.

"This spring I'm going to pace myself better so I'll be at a peak for the opening of the season," he said. "Last spring I think I peaked too soon."

Speier did push himself hard last spring. He always was last man to leave the practice field.

"There was a reason for that," said Speier. "Last spring I was trying to become a switch hitter which I finally decided wasn't for me a week after the season opened.

"BUT IF YOU think I worked hard last spring, listen to this. I learned during the winter that Cincinnati works out from 9 to 4 without interruption every day. I learned that from Joe Morgan. We were at a baseball clinic together.

"I don't think I could stand daily spring drills that long. You know another thing Morgan told me? He said that the Reds didn't work on double plays at all. Their initial DP work came in their first exhibition game.

"I CAN'T understand that but Sparky Anderson must know what he's doing. After all, the Reds won in our division last year."

Notwithstanding Anderson's style of conducting spring practices, Charlie Fox has his own ideas of what will be best for the Giants this spring.

FOX ALREADY has blueprinted the spring program of the Giants and it will stress defense.

"Naturally," said Speier, "I think our manager is right. Even though we had a lot of strikeouts in our lineup last year, we did score a lot of runs. We got hurt in a number of games on defense."

But the Giants didn't get hurt on the DP last season. Speier and his DP teammate, Tito Fuentes, turned over the double play in stylish fashion.

Basketball: Marin 'Cats Thrash Tam

Marin Catholic High School, utilizing a pressure defense which created offensive opportunities, devastated visiting Tamalpais in the first three quarters and went on to post a 57-43 Marin County Athletic League basketball victory yesterday.

Mike Mahoney scored 14 points, Ben Partee 11 and Dan Mahoney 10 for the Wildcats, who improved their MCAL record to 3-3 with their second straight victory, and moved into a three-way tie for fourth place with San Marin and Terra Linda, one game behind trileaders Novato, Redwood and Drake. Tamalpais occupies the cellar at 1-5.

"We pressed 'em, and they turned the ball over," said Marin Wildcat coach Dave Gonsalves. "Our press was especially effective early." The 'Cats led at halftime, 31-20.

Marin Catholic came up with 22 steals and interceptions, with Partee getting seven and Bill Reilly five. Passes following those steals often resulted in easy baskets, and the Wildcats shot 49 per cent from the floor (20 of 41) for the game, making 11 of 17 in the first half.

Tam, by contrast, hit only 35 per cent (14 of 40). "We forced some bad shots," Gonsalves said.

Hollis Owens was the only Tam player to score in double figures, netting 10 points. Forward Jared McFerrin appeared in his first MCAL game of the year, scoring three points.

Starnes 11, Wright 10 and Fred Doar seven.

Terra Linda shot out to an early 24-12 lead, but San Marin pulled ahead just before halftime on a six-point play triggered by Wright, who drove for a basket, was fouled, made the free throw, paused as Doar sank a technical foul shot, then hit a field goal after San Marin in-bounded the ball.

Terra Linda went ahead in the third period, 45-39, as Lowey made his first five shots, but San Marin outscored the Trojans over the next eight minutes, 27-13, for an insurmountable 66-58 lead. Larry Butti came off the bench for three key Mustang baskets.

Wright hit 12 of 27 shots, most of them from points only slightly east of Bolinas. "He also did an outstanding job controlling the ball, especially against the press," said San Marin coach Andy Frauenhofer.

Redwood Tops Tam In Frosh Basketball

Lenny McLoud scored 21 points yesterday to give Redwood High School's freshman basketball team a 66-52 victory over Tamalpais and keep the Giants on the heels of Marin Catholic in the Marin County Athletic League race.

Redwood is 5-1, but the Wildcats kept their record clean at 6-0 by beating Terra Linda, 53-42, behind Gary Johnson's 22 points. In the other game, San Rafael upset Drake, 40-39, on a free throw by Mike Roberts with two minutes remaining.

Wells, Rivera To Box Russians

Amateur boxers in the heaviest and lightest divisions will represent Hamilton Air Force Base and the United States against a Soviet Union team Saturday in Las Vegas.

The Novato base's Nick Wells, a 205-pound heavyweight, and Claudio (Chicky) Rivera, a 106-pound flyweight, will be among the American boxers facing a heavily-favored Russian team. The Russian delegation, laden with veteran talent, is expected to notch its fifth consecutive U.S.-Russia meet victory.

However, the visitors are expected to get a stern argument from the likes of Wells and Rivera, two seasoned fighters with excellent records. Wells, with 64 wins and eight losses, has scored 54 knockouts. Rivera, a slick boxer, sports a 54-7 log.

The Marin pair will receive stiff tests when encountering their Russian foes, both Munich Olympic Games' veterans. Wells faces Juriy Nesterov, while Rivera boxes Valadimir Ivanov.

Wells and Rivera have been sparring with members of the Police Athletic League team in San Francisco in training for their fights Saturday. Additionally, Wells has sparred with former state heavyweight champion Henry Clark. Clark has said that Wells is an "impressive prospect."

Wells, Rivera, and their coach, Gene Cooper, were to leave today on their flight to Las Vegas. The fighters will "loosen up" tomorrow and Friday, says Cooper. He adds, "we're going in with the idea we can win."

If the U.S. team is to snap the Russian victory streak, stout performances will be needed by the likes of light middleweight Reggie Jones, light welterweight Billy Miller, featherweight Louis South, Wells and Rivera.

These fighters will be center stage Saturday at Caesar's Palace hotel in Las Vegas. Bay Area fight fans can see the action on video tape Sunday, 12:30 p.m. to 2 p.m. on CBS Sports Spectacular, channels 5 and 10.

Hot Analy Cagers Top Host Rancho

By PAUL DWORIN

Rancho Cotate High School of Rohnert Park suffered another setback to its Sonoma County League basketball title hopes last night as visiting Analy of Sebastopol totally dominated the Cougars for a 66-46 win.

The loss was the second straight for the listless Cougars and lowered their SCL mark to 2-2, dropping them into fourth place, two games behind Cardinal Newman of Santa Rosa. Previously winless Analy raised its record to 1-3.

"We were outhustled, outshot and outplayed in our own gym," an upset Rancho Cotate coach Mike Francis commented. "They even beat us out onto the floor from the locker room at the start of the game."

The Cougars were definitely outshot as the Tigers hit 51 per cent from the field (25 of 49) compared to Rancho Cotate's 34 per cent (19 of 57). In the first half, Analy was even hotter, hitting a blistering 62 per cent.

The Tigers built a 35-20 halftime lead behind the board work and scoring of Mark Gonnella, who had 13 points, and the Cougars never came closer than that except for an early third quarter rally which cut the margin down to 43-33.

Analy was led by Gonnella with 19 points, Ken Moylan with 12 and Jay Bartholomew who came off the bench to score ten points and block at least six shots.

Petaluma Beaten By Hogan '5'

Petaluma High School had the ball and a two-point lead with 30 seconds to play last night, but Rick Mathews made three free throws in the last ten seconds to give the Hogan Spartans a 64-61 North Bay League basketball victory in Vallejo.

The loss dropped the Trojans into a four-way tie for third place with Santa Rosa, Napa and Hogan at 2-3, three games behind undefeated Vallejo, which they host Friday night. Overall, Petaluma is 6-11.

With a 61-59 lead and 30 seconds left in the game, Petaluma had a one-on-one free throw situation, but missed the first free throw giving Hogan the ball. The Spartans tied it up on a field goal, and then stole the ball to set the stage for Mathews' heroics.

Mathews converted a one-one-one situation, and then sank a technical foul shot. Mathews, who was high point man for the game with 27, hit all 11 of his free throw attempts in the fourth quarter.

The Trojans had leads as big as 14 points in the second half after taking a 36-28 halftime margin, but both Kirk Smartt and Bill McDonald fouled out early in the final period, and Hogan kept chipping away at the lead.

St. Helena Guns Down Tomales '5'

Host Tomales High School ran into a hot shooting St. Helena Saints team last night and dropped a 59-38 non-league basketball decision.

The Braves, who resume North Central League II play Friday night in Petaluma against the strong St. Vincent Mustangs, are now 3-8 overall.

"We just looked like a 100 per cent zero out there (last night)," Tomales coach Jim Clahan said. "They played tight defense, outhustled us and shot well from outside."

The Braves, led by Russ Sartori's 16 points, shot only 29 per cent from the field. Pete Mackey paced the Saints with 20 points.

Adams' Pin Gives Win To Redwood

For the second match in a row, Redwood High School's wrestling hopes rested on the shoulders of heavyweight Ted Adams, and for the second match in a row he came through, pinning his opponent yesterday to give Redwood a 30-27 victory over host Tamalpais.

His efforts catapulted the Giants into undisputed first place in the Marin County Athletic League standings with a 3-0 record, and dropped Tam into a tie for third at 2-1. In other matches yesterday, Terra Linda moved into second place at 3-1 with a 53-11 victory over Novato, and San Marin tied Tam for third by whipping Drake, 55-10.

Last Thursday, Adams won by a decision to break a 28-28 tie and give Redwood a 31-28 victory over San Rafael. Yesterday, his task was harder, as Redwood trailed, 27-24. An ordinary decision victory would only have tied the match, but Adams pinned his man in the second period.

Sudden-Death Loss For Leach

Combined AP & UPI

MORENO, Calif. — David Sheff, a former Arizona State golf team member, snaked in an 18-foot birdie putt to capture a sudden-death playoff from Ray Leach of Novato yesterday for first place in the $25,000 Western Tournament Golf Association weekly tournament.

Sheff, 23, Fountain Valley, Calif., earned the $5,000 first prize money on the second sudden-death hole, a 420-yard par four.

Sheff and Leach each shot 73s, one over par, for 36-hole totals of 147, three over par, at the Qual Lake Country Club. Leach won $3,000.

There was a two-way tie at 148 between Steve Veriato of Bryan, Tex., and John Beetham of Yorba Linda, Calif. Beetham shot a 72 and Veriato wound up with a 75, and each won $1,750.

Basketball

CHICAGO — The Philadelphia 76ers, the losingest team in the National Basketball Association, have a new coach today.

Kevin Loughery was tapped last night to replace fired coach Roy Rubin.

Loughery, a player-coach, thus becomes the youngest coach in the NBA at 32. He came to Philadelphia in a trade Oct. 18, 1971 after playing 11 years with Detroit and Baltimore.

The new coach received a two-year contract not including the balance of this season.

Football

SANTA MONICA — Dick Bass, former star running back of the Los Angeles Rams, and a friend, Barbara Ann Price, 27, have been found guilty of possessing marijuana by Superior Court judge Edward Brand.

A second charge of cultivation of marijuana was dismissed.

Bass, 35, and Miss Price were arrested at Bass' apartment here last June 19. Police said they went to the former pro football player's residence to check out reports that Bass, a Vallejo high school product, was growing marijuana on his patio. Officers said they found more than 20 marijuana plants.

Tennis

INGLEWOOD — Margaret Smith-Court of Australia and Rosemary Casals of Sausalito, seeded first and second, each took less than 50 minutes last night to post quarter-final wins in the $25,000 British Motors Professional Women's Tennis Tournament.

Mrs. Court served six aces in breezing by fellow Aussie Karen Krantzcke 6-1, 7-5 in 49 minutes.

Miss Casals needed only 37 minutes to sweep past Valerie Ziegenfuss of San Diego 6-2, 6-1.

LA COSTA, Calif. — Fifth-seeded Bob Lutz of Tiburon, Calif., and sixth-seeded Roy Emerson of Australia posted opening round victories in the $50,000 World Championship of Tennis Michelob Classic yesterday.

Lutz was a 7-6, 6-4 winner over Milan Holocek of Czechoslovakia while Emerson defeated England's Gerald Battrick 6-0, 7-6.

Commission Charge Confuses A Reader

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. Could you give me some information on the cost of buying and selling stock? I read that for odd-lots of stock it cost 12½ cents a share for transaction on the New York Stock Exchange. I just sold 100 shares at 48⅛ and paid $69.10. I also sold 50 shares at 49⅞ and paid $44.85. I am confused, can you explain this to me? — C.E.

A. First of all you are confusing two separate fees, the odd-lot charge and the broker's commission. The former, the 12½-cent fee which you read about, is collected by the odd-lot dealer for his services in bunching small orders into round lots. This ⅛-pound differential is included in the execution price. Thus, if the last round-lot transaction was at 50, the following odd-lot transaction would be at 49⅞ for a sale or 50⅛ for a purchase.

The broker's commission charge is another matter entirely. As of March 24, 1972, a new minimum commission rate schedule went into effect for the New York and American Exchanges. The minimum charge allowed for your round-lot sale would be $65.00. In addition there is a non-resident New York State Transfer Tax of $3.25 and an S.E.C. fee of 10 cents. The additional 75 cents which you paid might have been a handling or postage fee or a local tax. On the odd-lot sale, the total money amount involved was less than $2,500 but more than $800, making the commission rate 1.3 per cent plus $10.00 or $42.42. In addition, the transfer tax was $1.63 and the S.E.C. fee 5 cents. Again the 75 cents extra paid on the transaction could be one of the items mentioned above or if American Depository Receipts were involved some brokers charge a minimal amount to cover certificate transfer.

In order to satisfy your curiosity, I suggest you ask your broker what the additional charge was for.

County's Building Booming

Building permits for construction valued at $7,703,801 were issued during December in Marin County, an increase of almost 76 per cent over the $4,380,847 in December of 1971, according to figures compiled by the Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau.

Total value of building permits issued during all of 1972 came to $99,176,581, which was a 4.3 per cent increase over the $95,043,989 in 1971. Of the total construction, $24,958,000 worth of permits were issued in the unincorporated areas of the county. The remaining $74,218,600 were issued in incorporated cities as follows:

Belvedere $875,700; Corte Madera $1,890,900; Fairfax $1,188,200; Larkspur $5,260,100; Mill Valley $1,205,600; Novato $20,865,500; Ross $1,402,000; San Anselmo $2,915,900; San Rafael $30,061,400; Sausalito $3,247,900; and Tiburon $5,305,300.

Economy Worries Dip Stocks

NEW YORK (UPI) Stocks Stock declined sharply and broadly in active trading today on the New York Stock Exchange as investors' concern over economic worries outweighed the Vietnam cease-fire announcement.

Standard & Poor's 500 stock index was down 1.39 to 116.83. Declines outnumbered advances by about a 10-to-3 margin among the more than 1,809 issues on the tape.

Prices were sharply lower and active on the American Stock Exchange also.

Market behavior demonstrated the emotional impact of Vietnam has been drained out by too many false rumors of peace, analysts said.

"They cried wolf too many times for the actual ceasefire agreement to have any impact," one analyst said.

Concern the administration won't be able to hold the lid on inflation was a primary factor causing prices to fall. There is a fear also interest rates will rise.

"Increasing interest rates are a magnet that draw from the market," said Monte Grodon, analyst for Dreyfus Fund.

INCOME TAX FACTS

By PETER J. WIKEL, C.P.A.

Standard Deduction Has Big Benefit To Low-Income Person

The standard deduction looks better this year than it has ever looked before.

Also, you can use Form 1040A, let Uncle Sam figure your tax and not have to pay someone to do it for you.

The standard deduction is 15 per cent of your adjusted gross income with a maximum allowable deduction of $2,000.

Also, the low income allowance is now $1,300.

The only way to claim the low income allowance is to use the tax tables and not itemize your deductions. It is only allowable in connection with the standard deduction.

The low income allowance is only for individuals who have less than $10,000 of adjusted gross income and who do not itemize their deductions.

The low income allowance is included in the computations in the optional tax tables.

The optional tax tables give you the higher of the percentage standard deduction or the low income allowance whichever is going to result in the lowest tax for you.

If you adjusted gross income is more than $13,334, your maximum allowable standard deduction is $2,000. If it is less than $13,334 your maximum allowable standard deduction is 15 per cent of your adjusted gross income.

If you are the dependent of another person, the standard deduction applies only to your earned income and does not apply to your unearned income and you cannot use the optional tax table.

If your dependent is the beneficiary of a trust set up for him or if he owns stocks, bonds or receives interest or otherwise has unearned income, the unearned income is not subject to the low income allowance and you cannot have him file a tax return for himself and use the optional tax table.

He may claim the standard deduction on his tax return to the extent of his earned income only, so that if he were workng part time he would be able to claim the standard deduction of 15 per cent from the amount of his earned income.

If you do not have large deductions for state income taxes, real estate taxes, mortgage interest or heavy medical expenses, chances are that you would be a lot better off to use the standard deduction.

If you do have sizeable deductions, it's still a good idea to compare the deductions you have with the standard deduction and see which way you come out best.

If it is very close, the standard deduction is preferable because there is no possibility of your being audited on account of your deductions, perhaps losing some of them and certainly being put to a good deal of inconvenience.

NOW WE'RE NUMBER ONE!

At Number One Bolinas Road in Fairfax. The first Savings and Loan Association office close to your home.

Our name is First Federal Savings and Loan Association of San Rafael. Our community services include the Highest Interest Rates permitted under current regulation, with Interest Compounded Daily, on First Federal Insured Savings Accounts; Free Travelers Checks; Mortgage Loans; New Construction Loans; Certificates of Deposit; Government Bond Redemption; Payment Services on Tax and Insurance Premiums and Loans, and Free Collection Service on Second Deeds of Trust.

That's our business. But we take more than a business interest in every community we become part of.

To become an active part of the area surrounding our new Fairfax Office, we're bringing along two of our most important traditions. Community involvement. And excellent management. Our new office manager will be Mrs. Terry Lehman, who made innumerable friends through her expertise and warm personality during her four years at our San Rafael Office. A mother and professional, Mrs. Lehman is a graduate of San Rafael's Terra Linda High School and a resident of San Rafael.

To keep our tradition of community involvement alive and meaningful, we're asking for your help. Let us know the name of the community project that means the most to you. Like donating Redwood saplings to a nearby park project. Or giving encouragement to a local Boy Scout or Girl Scout troop. Whatever interests you most, please come in and tell us about it. We would like to make a Number One contribution to your community. And ours.

Just drive in to the Free parking lot, right across the street from our office. Come in and get acquainted with us and our new address at Number One Bolinas Road. We believe you'll like us enough to come back. Regularly.

After all, would you expect anything less from the only home-owned, Marin-based Savings and Loan Association? Just a few minutes in our new Fairfax Office should be enough to convince you that we are definitely Number One. For you.

SHOWN AT GALLERY

LaFon Photos Crisp And Lucid

By ADA GARFINKEL

Young Ron LaFon, who has studied with Ansel Adams, is exhibiting a group of his photographs at the Bull's Eye Gallery in San Anselmo.

LaFon, who is 25 years old today, began his association with Adams in 1970. Each of the 14 photographs is from this period.

Crisp and lucid, each carefully selected site or subject is filled with the aura of a concrete presence. Some of the shots are of familiar places or phenomena, but the "view" is his own.

"These images are from places within me which I had not dreamed existed until the image came into being, and I see them as my response . . . to being alive in front of the unknown", according to LaFon.

"Fog, Marin County" focuses on the sun behind a transparent corona-like veil of fog dancing lightly above softly rounded hills.

The glint of light behind two starkly barren trees, their branches touching in symbolic salute against the gathering dusk, breathe a mystic stillness into "Bristlecone Pines and Sun."

"Roger Barr, Sculptor," a portrait of the sculptor in his studio concentrates on the intense eyes, firm, sensitive lips and short, silvery beard of this dedicated artist.

The complete lack of contrived sensationalism in LaFon's work is apparent in another portrait, that of "Natalie," a serious young woman in a garden setting.

Only the similarity of location relate "Sunrise from Zabriskie Point" and "Sunset from Zabriskie Point." A close-up shot of the former shows a pattern of dark, spiky prone shapes formed by the cast shadows of the hills, while a distant shot of the latter results in an extremely low horizon and an almost flat surface.

LaFon, who had once planned to be a commercial artist, discloses a sardonic sense of humor in his title "The Grim Reaper" — a grain farm machine resting on a grassy knoll amidst a vast expanse of rolling, verdant country.

"Ice, Tenaya Lake" and "Ice Reflections" dramatically convey the rapport that LaFon shares with the environment.

The exhibit will continue through Feb. 28 and may be seen from noon to 4 p.m. Monday through Sunday. The gallery is located upstairs at 21 Mariposa Street.

Dominican Announces Lecture, Film Series

A lecture and film series built around the theme, "New Dimensions in Thought," will be held Wednesdays at Dominican College of San Rafael from Feb. 7 to April 4.

The programs, from 10 a.m. until noon, will begin with a film interview with John Kenneth Galbraith, "The Idea of the City." Afterward Jack P. D'Amico, assistant professor of English at the school, will lecture.

Other films will include: "Ideas on the Theater," an interview with Harold Clurman; "Picnic in Space," with Marshall McLuhan; "Primer of the Universe," with Buckminster Fuller; "Homage to the Square," with Joseph Albers; "Roots of the Cold War," with Arthur Schlesinger Jr.; "The Writer and the City," with Alfred Kazin; and "A Time for Learning," with Jerome Bruner. There will also be three short films on artist Richard Anuszkiewicz, photographer Eliot Porter and painter Hieronymus Bosch.

Several Dominican College faculty members will lecture during the series, which is designed for adults who want to continue their education.

Leary Is Returned To State Facility

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Calif. (UPI) — LSD advocate Timothy Leary was back "home" today —in the California prison camp from which he escaped 28 months ago—and faced charges of breaking jail and dope smuggling.

Leary, 51, unsuccessfully sought asylum in half a dozen countries on three continents, but was finally taken into custody by a U.S. narcotics agent in Kabul, Afghanistan and returned to the United States last week.

Paternity Case Hearing Is Closed

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A paternity suit filed against entertainer Flip Wilson was ordered closed to the public Tuesday at the request of attorneys for both sides.

Mabel Robinson, a professional dancer, claimed in her suit that Wilson is the father of her son, Joseph, born May 26. According to court record, Wilson denied it. Superior Court Judge Harry L. Hupp ordered the proceedings closed to the public, portions of the court record sealed and extra bailiffs to keep out would-be spectators. The courtroom windows were covered with paper to prevent the curious from looking in. The hearing was continued until Feb. 20.

Emergency Herring Bill Signed

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

SACRAMENTO — An emergency bill to save the herring in Tomales Bay from destructive commercial fishing was signed into law late yesterday by the governor, but the state Fish and Game Department reversed itself and said it may not need the new law.

The department had warned early last week that if more than 500 tons of herring were taken, the resource could be "severely depleted." The warning triggered an unusually rapid passage of the bill in one week by Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael.

Yesterday, however, the department backed off, saying its biologists had "taken a new look" at the situation, and that the danger line had been "slightly revised."

The department now places the limit at 750 tons, an increase of 50 per cent over the earlier figure. Charles Fullerton, deputy director of the department, told the Independent-Journal that objections by commercial fisherman to a cutoff of the herring harvest had nothing to do with the department's new stance.

Despite arrival of three more trawlers yesterday in the bay, no cutoff may be needed, Fullerton said. As of yesterday, he added, about 350 tons had been taken by the two boats that have fished there six days.

He said the department will watch the situation, and impose the ban authorized by the Behr bill (SB 67) if necessary.

Fullerton's new danger margin of 750 tons falls halfway between the expectations of the commercial fishermen.

Zeke Grader, manager of Ocean Traders of Sausalito, whose firm is packaging all the herring for export to Asia, said he expected to harvest 500 to 1,000 tons in Tomales Bay this season.

Grader claimed that "back in the 50s they took 100,000 tons a year out of there, and the stuff kept coming back. We don't want it fished out any more than anyone else," he said.

His claim of such large harvests in the 50s, however, varied from department figures. They showed the largest take for the entire state, most of which come from Tomales Bay, was in 1952 — when 4,748 tons were taken.

Coupled with a new department study that found only 1,600 tons enter Tomales Bay a year, the heavy harvests of the 50s suggest severe depletion then of the herring resource.

If the 1,600-ton estimate is correct, Fullerton's new limit thus would allow taking virtually half of all the herring that enter the bay.

Behr's bill originally had been slated for final passage and the governor's signature last Friday, but lobbying by commercial fishermen delayed the bill. It was ready for signature before lunch yesterday, but another half day was lost because the department delayed in getting its required documentation to the governor so he could sign it.

The bill, hurried through both houses yesterday morning for adoption of amendments, was the second measure signed this year by the governor. It expires in 60 days, which will be after the herring have left the bay. Behr said he will introduce permanent legislation later.

Youth Ordered Held For Trial In Motor Theft

A youth linked to a burglary by an outboard motor was bound over yesterday to Marin Superior Court on a felony charge of breaking into a San Rafael sporting goods store.

Ordered to appear Jan. 31 by Municipal Court Judge David R. Baty was William Edward Petro.

Petro, 18, of Santa Venetia, and a 17-year-old companion were arrested Dec. 29 after a witness to the burglary at the Western Sport Shop gave police a licenee number traced to Petro's car.

In the car, police said was the stolen boat motor.

Burglars smashed a window to enter the store at 902 Third Street, according to police.

Little Jubilation, But Great Relief

It was not like the endings of other wars. There was little disposition to ring bells or dance in the streets when President Nixon announced last night that agreements had been initialed to end the fighting in Vietnam, and that the cease-fire will take effect Saturday.

There was, instead of jubilation, a great feeling of relief.

Even the President showed little emotion. He spoke in the careful, slow, sober way that characterizes his television speeches. He, too, seemed relieved. A tremendous burden is about to be lifted from his shoulders — and from the shoulders of all of us.

THE PRESIDENT stressed his old theme of "peace with honor." He specified, carefully, that the cease-fire is to be internationally supervised, and that all American prisoners of war are to be released within 60 days. These were the hard-won concessions that he had wrung with bombs and terror from an intransigent enemy, the ingredients upon which he had insisted for "peace with honor"

The President noted with sadness that Lyndon Johnson will not be with us for the signing of the cease-fire. The last rites for Mr. Johnson will be held tomorrow.

IT HAS BEEN a long time since President Johnson won from the Senate authority to use "whatever means necessary" to avenge an attack on two destroyers in the Gulf of Tonkin — authority that the senators gave him with no inkling of what those means would prove to be.

It has been a longer time since President John F. Kennedy sent American army "advisers" to join the Army of the Republic of Vietnam in the field.

It has been a long, long time —two full decades — since President Dwight D. Eisenhower sent American airplanes to lift the defeated French from Dienbienphu, and cast our lot with the French-backed government in Saigon lest "all of Southeast Asia fall to the Communists like a row of dominoes."

WE MAY ASK what Presidents Eisenhower (with Nixon as vice president), Kennedy and Johnson accomplished by getting us into Vietnam. We know what President Nixon accomplished. He got us out.

And in his inauguration speech last Saturday, Mr. Nixon showed that he, at least, has learned the lesson of Vietnam. For he said:

"The time has passed when America will make every other nation's conflict our own, or make every other nation's future our responsibility, or presume to tell the people of other nations how to manage their own affairs."

That was a lesson learned in blood in Vietnam, in discord at home; learned slowly and oh! so painfully.

Let us pray that all of us have learned it well.

SACRAMENTO SCENE

If This Is 'Bare Bones,' What's Fat Budget Like?

By RUS WALTON

Well, here we go again. Governor Reagan has presented his annual state budget. Another year, another billion.

I don't suppose it does much good to point out that the $9.26 billion budget for 1973-74 is about $1.6 billion larger than last year's, or twice as large as the $4.6 billion budget of seven years ago, or three times the 1963-64 budget of $2.8 billion.

Those things roll off your back like the taxes roll off your paycheck.

State Finance Director Verne Orr says it's a "lean" budget. I'd hate to see his idea of a fat one. This is cut, squeeze and trim?

REMEMBER WHEN then-Gov. Pat Brown came out with a "bare bones" budget of $4 billion. We yelled and kicked and screamed. Now we're just numb.

The financial wooly-woofers try to salve our wounds by telling us the big hike in the budget is due to hefty increases in local assistance payments — meaning that they only collect the money at the state level and ship it back to the cities and counties.

Well, no matter how you shfit or shuffle it, or where you spend it, the whole darned $9.3 billion comes out of the taxpayers' pockets. What the state giveth, the state taketh — beforehand.

It is true that the local assistance part of the budget comes to $5.3 billion for 1973-74. That is a jump of 28 per cent in one year.

But the fact is that the legislature and the governor enacted the bills that mandated most of that increase. And the fact is that it will cost just about $4 billion next year just to grease the wheels of Babylon's in-house machinery. That $4 billion is as much as it cost to run the whole state apparatus, local assistance and all, in 1966-67.

THERE WAS SOME excuse for the ever-rising budget in the 1950s and '60s, when California was going through its post-war population explosion. Not that the entire increase in state costs during those years was due to population growth; it wasn't. The budget went up faster than the population.

But the population big bang is over and state government just keeps on spending. From 1970 to '73, California's population increased only 4 per cent while spending went up 16 per cent and next year it will be almost 21 per cent higher than last.

State government is on a spending spree. Easy come, easy go. Take education, for example. What the taxpayers said "no" to at the local level gets a big fat "yes" from the Sacramento politicans.

NO DOUBT some of the school districts do need more money. At any rate, the state has decided to give them some —of yours.

The Moretti-Reagan "tax reform" act of 1972 will give the schools an extra $561 million this coming year. That will bring the total state aid (kindergarten through high school) to $2.4 billion a year. And there will be more "new" money in future years; $668 million in 1974-75, and $768 million in 1975-76.

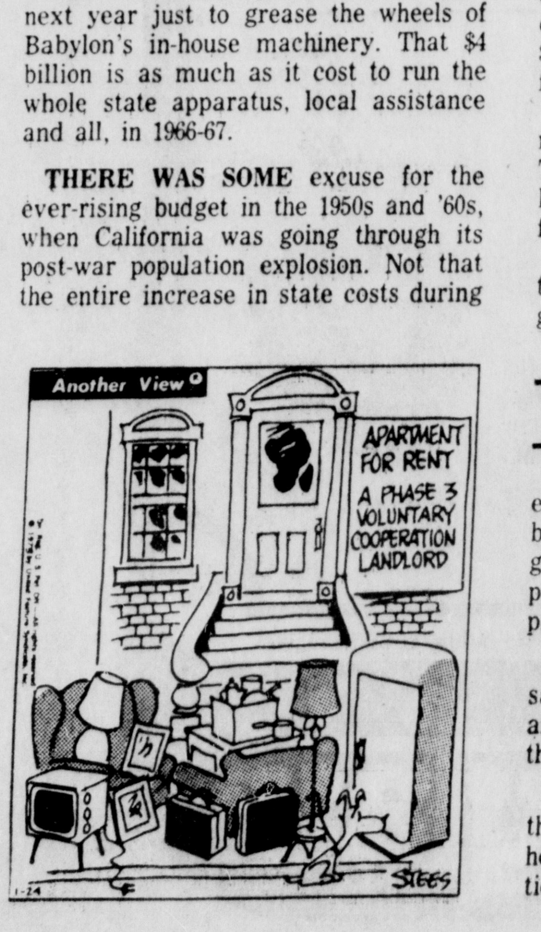
It all works out to more money for fewer students. The total enrollment in public schools (K-12) is going down. Of the state's 58 counties, 33 report declining enrollments.

But we are going to keep pouring money into the pot. There must be a hole in the system, somewhere.

WE'LL BE POURING more money into the health and welfare pot, too. The tab for public assistance and Medi-Cal costs, and other welfare programs, will come to about $2.1 billion. That is about $300 million more than it was for the fiscal year ending June 30.

All together, the per capita cost of the new $9.3 billion budget comes to $440. That's $440 for every man, woman and kid in the state — $1760 for a family of four.

The Chinese are right on. They call this the year of the ox — and our ox is being gored.



WORTH SAYING AGAIN

When we are young, we are slavishly employsd in procuring something whereby we may live comfortably when we grow old; and when we are old, we perceive it is too late to live as we proposed. — Alexander Pope.

Denunciation of the young is a necessary part of the hygiene of older people and greatly assists in the circulation of their blood. — Logan Pearsall Smith.

It i not until we have passed through the furnace that we are made to know how much dross there is in our composition. — Charles Caleb Colton.

Sticks To His Guns On Post Exchanges

Moral justification: Who gets to write the last word? I believe the major's retired pay is adequate.

The problem of the draft, well, the Vietnam War is an unpopular one. . .

One can understand the need for post exchanges and commissaries at remote military bases, but it is hard to understand how one in the military can order an American made automobile in Manila and have it delivered here cheaper than what the local dealer can buy and sell it for here.

I still stick to my original guns on who really pays for those services rendered to regular and retired personnel, including dependents as mentioned in this letter and previous one. . .

Why mustMr. Richard M. Nixon be so conservative about money funds for the U.S., but he will casually spend four million dollars for his inauguration "coronation"?

X-Rated Scenes Shown At 'Family Movie'

Two weeks ago my husband and I decided to take our children to the drive-in theater located near the Marin-Sonoma County line. There were two "G" rated musical comedies playing that evening.

After the first movie was over, a short film was shown explaining the rating system used by that particular theater. After we were familiarized with the theater's rating system we were then shown some of the rawest scenes from three "X" rated films. When I say raw, I am not talking about nudity, but intercourse, oral copulation, etc.

Needless to say, we were shocked and embarrassed. . .

I personally am against censorship. However, I do feel that these things should be seen by people who choose to see them. The theater manager has no right to force these films on the unsuspecting and people who do not wish to see them and especially not children. Furthermore, we will not patronize any theater with our children until this practice is stopped. To other family theater goers, "BEWARE". We have a theater manager that believes that we are not adult enough to make our own decisions about whether or not we should see this sort of film. He made the decision for us as well as our children. Our right to see what we want to see has clearly been violated.

Zola Would Accuse Nixon And Pentagon

On the contrary. If Emile Zola were alive today he would no doubt be saying "J'accuse" to Richard Nixon and the pariahs in the Pentagon, exactly as McGovern, Dellums et al.

A look at the Dreyfus case shows Zola to have been speaking out against racial hatred (Dreyfus was Jewish and anti-Semitism was a major issue) and the unbridled power of the military elite. It is but a small mental step to imagine Zola speaking out against the genocide America is attempting in Southeast Asia, and against the unbridled power of our own military elite. . .

Drunken Driving Arrests Topped 2,000

Earlier this month the I-J's front page carried a story giving the total of drunk driver arrests in Marin during 1971 as 1,674. As stated, these were arrests by the California Highway Patrol.

Not stated was the fact an additional 492 drunk drivers were arrested by the county's other law enforcement agencies. Thus the year's total jail bookings for this offense was actually 2,166. Another 108 potential drunk drivers were arrested last year for being drunk in or about a motor vehicle.

Mildly hopeful is the 1972 decrease by 259 from 1971's all-time high of 2,425 drunk driver arrests. Not unexpectedly, December was the peak month in both years — 291 in 1971; 243 in 1972. For no apparent reason, April and November of 1971, with 274 arrests each, were the next highest, while March and June were next highest last year with 195 and 192 respectively.

Fishing Needed At Civic Center, Too

I would like to give three cheers to our senior citizens Perry, Perry, Week and Riegelhuth for requesting more accessible fishing in Marin lakes.

They cite terrible roads and a need for handrails for safer access to MMWD lakes.

Several years ago I wrote to the I-J fish and game columnist, the "Fishing Fool." I asked him why the fish taken out of the Civic Center Lagoon were so small and bony and requested information on how and if trout could be planted in that water.

In response to my letter he stated in his column that planted trout certainly could live at the lagoon to make excellent fishing for all to enjoy. He went on to say the probable reason the fish are small and bony was that their growth had been stunted by over-population and inadequate nourishment.

At the "Fishing Fool's" suggestion I wrote to the county parks and recreation department and the state fish and game commission requesting stocking of this water.

Millions of dollars have been spent under and on the beautiful blue bubbles called Marin Civic Center. How about blowing a bubble for our senior citizens and youth by spending a few dollars to stock the beautiful blue Civic Center lake with trout?

I ask what the senior citizens have asked, "How can one get action?"

Reasons For Federal Secrecy Dark, Unjustifiable, Illegal

WASHINGTON — You will recall the infamous Tuskegee study, in which several hundred black men were used as guinea pigs to determine (by autopsy) just what happens to the human body when syphilis is allowed to go untreated for years and decades. At any rate you should recall it, for it is the kind of government service to the people that should not be forgotten.

However, not surprisingly, the government itself is trying to avoid further embarrassment over the scandal, which was first disclosed last summer — 40 years after the Alabama experiment was begun by the U.S. Public Health Service. In doing so, it is defying the spirit and apparently the letter of a presidential executive order and a law duly passed by Congress requiring that the business of government advisory committees be open to the taxpayers.

That presidential order was issued more than six months ago. The law, passed in October during the closing weeks of the 92nd Congress, became effective Jan. 5. Yet not only did the ad hoc committee investigating the Tuskegee experiment meet in secret late last year but it scheduled another secret session in New York today.

WHY THE SECRECY? Because the testimony deals with national security, and its disclosure would help the Russians with their antimissile defenses or something? Not even the federal bureaucracy can make such a pretense in this case.

In a 35-line release, purportedly summarizing subcommittee sessions held last month, the panel offered several excuses for shutting the press and public out. One of the subcommittees is charged with determining "whether the study was justified in 1932 and whether it should have been continued when penicillin became generally available." (Penicillin never was given the suffering men and, as of last July, only 78 of the original 400 survived. They never were told what they were suffering from.) While the answers to the subcommittee's query seem self-evident, it wants to buttress its findings with further interviews.

However, interviewing the principals in open session would be "particularly difficult," the panel said. Its first reason: "The tendency toward sensationalism by the media."

Anyone without the bureaucrat's defensive habit can see that it is impossible to make the Tuskegee study anymore sensational than the bare bones of the case. The study might be going on yet, undisclosed to the public, had it not been for the terse, unsensational reporting of it in the first place —by Jean Heller of the Associated Press.

TO ANY GOVERNMENT official, reporting of facts he would rather keep discreetly concealed is sensationalism. In America, however, it is not supposed to be left to that official to decide for the taxpayers that his fear of sensationalism is reason enough to keep the public business secret.

True, the panel added that the potential for lawsuits and the "probable inhibiting effect" of publicity on witnesses were additional reasons. Fear of the press was named first, however.

Today's meeting in New York was secret for none of those reasons, according to the announcement in the Federal Register. This time the subterfuge was that all the business was to be strictly internal, about whether the rights of human subjects in continuing health experiments supported by HEW are adequately protected.

The announcement cited a directive of the assistant secretary of HEW as grounds for secrecy. Last year, the committee was operating under a notice from Elliot Richardson, then HEW secretary, which said in effect that the President's executive order opening advisory committee meetings should not be taken too seriously — that meetings still could be closed because of the department's "obligations of confidentiality and administrative necessity."

The bureaucrats' imagination in dreaming up different reasons for secrecy is unlimited, as you can see. Most of the time, the real reason is the same: fear of accountability to the public.

If you, your colleagues or your predecessors had knowingly let several hundred innocent men suffer and die even after medicine that might cure them was commonly available, you could think up a lot of reasons for secrecy about it, too.

Impossible Dream Coming True: 'Honorable Peace' In Vietnam

WASHINGTON — The impossible dream has come about — a negotiated settlement which gives South Vietnam a decent chance to survive. What looks like an "honorable peace" is no longer a dream; it is reality.

What brought it about? How did the President achieve it against such terrific odds?

There are four forces which contributed most:

1—Richard Nixon.
2—American public opinion.
3—The U.S. peace movement.
4—The South Vietnamese.

WHAT THE PRESIDENT DID — He totally rejected a policy of cut-and-run, of peace at any price, on the ground that such a course would mean that in the future no ally could rely on American commitment and no adversary could be deterred by it.

Mr. Nixon dared to risk for a time massive unpopularity when he used strong military measures to persuade Hanoi that it couldn't win on the battlefield and, therefore, must negotiate seriously.

He removed U.S. ground involvement, thereby radically reducing casualties. He continued U.S. involvement in the air. The first was politically indispensable and the second was militarily successful.

The President thought he could get Moscow's help to end the war — and he did. The China and Russia summits had purposes beyond Vietnam. They persuaded both Peking and Moscow that better relations with the United States were far more important than supportung North Vietnam.

We will never know what might have happened if we had abandoned South Vietnam at Hanoi's dictates. We will shortly see the consequences of staying on the Nixon course.

WHAT PUBLIC OPINION DID — In the end American opinion gave steadfast support to the Nixon policy of holding on for a decent peace. Last year's election showed Hanoi that it couldn't win the war in the United States. North Vietnam had only two choices — to continue a stalemate war or to negotiate seriously.

Last month it tried one final ploy — by breaking off negotiations — to see if Mr. Nixon couldn't be pressured into accepting an unenforceable cease-fire to bring the war to an end before inauguration. Mr. Nixon held firm by resuming the bombing. The American public held firm. Hanoi didn't.

WHAT THE PEACE MOVEMENT DID — I think we will come to see that on balance it helped. Obviously it increased opposition to the President's course and for a time tempted Hanoi to believe that America would become so divided that President Nixon would have to accept any kind of peace. It influenced him to withdraw ground forces more steadily than he might otherwise have done. This withdrawal itself demonstrated to Hanoi that Mr. Nixon wanted to get the United States out of Vietnam whenever a fair settlement could be had.

WHAT SOUTH VIETNAM DID — The South Vietnamese did very well. They successfully resisted the onslaught of the Tet offensive in 1968. When Americans were being told that South Vietnam was going to fall apart, it stuck together. For a year now the South Vietnamese army has borne the brunt of the entire ground war.

Whether South Vietnam can secure this peace and build on it, events still to unfold will tell.

"At this point in time" is a pet phrase of bureaucrats and other jargonists when they mean "now."

Whatever happened to the ancient art of saying what you mean in the fewest number of words?

It's possible, though not popular, to say a mouthful without using all the words in your mouth.

Faulty System At College Not Only Polluter Of Air

This is, I'm afraid, mostly a collection of grumbles. Those in search of cheer should look at the comics (but not at "Love Is.")

Grumble One: A letter from Larkspur City Council took nine days to reach the Independent-Journal. Less than a mile a day is hardly first class mail.

Grumble Two: The Marin Community College District is spending up to $5,000 on a consultant's investigation of the poor heating and air conditioning system in its smart new Harlan Center and Science Center. Installed a year ago at a cost of $200,000, the system functions so poorly that while some pockets in corridors are roasting hot, offices have been registering 58 degrees, and students alternately shivering and sweating. Legal action is possible.

GRUMBLE THREE: Last year following legal action, the College of Marin's RCA computer was returned, after RCA went out of the computer business, and another computer will be bought this summer. The college district doesn't seem to be having much luck with its shopping lately. It certainly makes you hope its multi-million dollar spending spree for Indian Valley Colleges will have a little consumer consciousness somewhere along the line.

Grumble Four: The Ross Valley Sanitary District board's action in appointing a new board member without making the vacancy public has raised grumbles on all sides. S. Stanley Knowles, who owns Knowles and Co. in San Rafael, a heating and sheet metal firm, was appointed Jan. 2 after Ray I. Johnson resigned.

Johnson had narrowly led a field of four candidates in election to the board last June. He resigned pleading press of business, but his resignation wasn't announced.

One of the unsuccessful candidates in the election, Joan Seminario, told me she was "very disappointed" that the board hadn't contacted her or the other unelected candidate, Roger Bockrath. She didn't feel she ought to have been appointed, she said, but she did think the board should have opened the vacancy for public interview.

Board president Eugene Ostaggi told me the board had no legal requirement to call for applicants, and he didn't feel they should have.

GRUMBLE FIVE: Associated students of College of Marin spent a few hundred dollars mailing out ballots to more than 6,000 students in an effort to pep up interest in this semester's student government election. When it came to the count only 488 students had bothered to vote. A little old-fashioned campaigning and razzmatazz would undoubtedly have been cheaper, and might have generated more interest. And the money could have been spent on cheer leaders' uniforms — a request turned down last semester by the all-male board of directors of Associated Students.

Anti-Grumble One: What with the flu and the floods and general depression, I can only offer the latest fifth-grade joke: Did you hear about the glow-worm who had a nasty accident? He was delighted.

Petaluman Held For High Court

A Marin Municipal Court judge ruled yesterday there is enough evidence to try Stanley Herbert Mitchell, 21, of Petaluma, for the armed robbery of a hitchhiker.

After hearing evidence against Mitchell, Judge Robert A. Smallman ordered him to appear in Superior Court Feb. 7 on the felony count.

Mitchell was arrested in Marin City Jan. 14 after 19-year-old Robert Gorman of Fairfax, found looking for his clothes in Mill Valley, told police two men robbed him, then forced him to disrobe before leaving him in Mill Valley.

Gorman told police he was seeking a ride from Santa Venetia to San Anselmo, but found himself being robbed in Larkspur. Police have not captured a second man believed involved in the robbery.

THE PEOPLE'S SCHOOLS

Uninformed Minority May Elect School Trustees

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

In more than 1,000 California school districts, voters (some of them) will go to the polls on April 17 to elect school board members.

The people they elect can control the kind of public schools Californians have for the next four years. They can — but it is doubtful whether they will.

UNLESS THERE IS a departure from the past, in most districts a minority of the electorate will choose the school board members. Turnouts of over half the eligible voters for school elections are the exception rather than the rule.

Unless there is a departure from the past, in most districts there will be little definition of issues in the campaigns, and the campaigning will be principally of the neighborhood "kaffee klatsch" variety. Of the minority who go to the polls on April 17, a much smaller minority will know much about the candidates, the issues and problems those elected must face, and the stands (if any) on those issues and problems taken by the aspirants for office.

The low-kay approach usually taken in school trustee elections in California arises largely from two causes: the non-partisan nature of the elections, and the prevailing notion that, anyhow, it is better to leave running the schools to the educators.

PARTISANSHIP in school government — although standard practice in some states — has obvious drawbacks. But a partisan election has the advantage of bringing into action established political organizations to back candidates and force issues into the campaign. In non-partisan school elections, the lack of such organizations tends to keep the campaigns insipid, unsubstantial, and for many people almost invisible.

As a result, school board service has often become, as H. Thomas James, former professor of education at Stanford University, aptly described it, "one of the last remaining opportunities in the political world for the 'gentleman in public office.''' And as Professor James also noted, "'gentlemen in public office' have a marked distaste for controversy and public uproar." Therefore, the school board members elected in non-controversial campaigns generally turn the tough questions over to their superintendents, to avoid the unpleasant chore of making decisions themselves.

The result is that the elected boards are reduced to housekeeping chores, worrying about the budget, and trying to find support for increased taxes to pay the spiraling costs of over-administered school systems. As James D. Koerner pointed out in "Who Controls American Education?":

"In theory school boards hire administrators to carry out the basic policies of the board and look after the details of running schools, but in practice more often than not the administrators establish the basic policies and the boards worry about the details."

WHETHER THIS continues to be true in California depends partly on what kind of candidates stand for school boards this year (the filing period ends Feb. 16), how well they are scrutinized during the campaign, and how many voters turn out to cast ballots in April.

"Leaving it to the experts" has not produced unalloyed satisfaction with the public schools. A suggestion for both candidates and voters may be found in Koerner's book:

"Laymen badly need to sensitize themselves to the limitations of educational expertise . . . Whether it is a question of educational aims or philosophy, of what subjects should be studied and for how long, of whether and how schools or teachers should be evaluated, of whether and how students should be divided by ability, of testing intelligence and what intelligence means, of 'compensatory' education, or of any other substantive matter that can be named, the expert's knowledge is not good enough for the rest of us to leave the policy decisions to him, not nearly good enough."

It is often said that local school boards lack power. In fact, however, they generally fail to exercise the power they have.

California Gold Rush

When gold was discovered on this date 125 years ago at Sutter's Mill in California, tens of thousands rushed to the West Coast to make their fortunes. Workmen abandoned fields and factories, soldiers left their units, and sailors deserted their ships. In July, 1849, there were about 500 empty ships crowded into San Francisco Bay. People came to the gold fields from as far away as Europe and Australia. Lucky winners of a French lottery received a trip to California. Between 1848 and 1852, California mines produced an estimated $200,000,000 worth of gold.

DO YOU KNOW — What were the miners who came to California in 1849 called?

Flood Delays Outfall Line Into Bay

Completion of the Novato Sanitary District's outfall line to San Pablo Bay has been delayed further by last week's flooding, according to Dist. Mgr. Charles A. Joseph.

The project, first delayed last year when the line moved in boggy soil, might not be completed by the Feb. 15 deadline set by the Regional Water Quality Control board, Joseph said. He expected that an extension of the deadline would be granted.

The area around the outfall line is too wet to work in and the district intends to wait until the soil is dried out, he said.

Joseph reported to directors Monday night that there was "lots of infiltration" of storm water into district lines during the floods, but all the intruding flow went through the treatment plant.

Directors authorized spending up to $2,500 for television camera inspection of trunk lines to seek out infiltration points.

Directors also agreed to have joint meetings with the Novato City Countil on mutual problems, with the first meeting scheduled at 7:30 a.m. Feb. 13 at Sambo's restuarant, Novato.

Junking Of Title Jargon Asked At Redwood High

By PAT PERRY

What's the difference between an assistant educational leader and a dean?

None at all, except that one title has four letters and everyone knows what it means. The other title has 26 letters and represents the height of administrative jargon.

Or at least that's what Redwood High School students, teachers and administrators say. They have voted overwhelmingly to return to semantic sanity and do away with the ponderous titles of "educational leader," "associate educational leader" and "assistant educational leader" that have lain heavy on the school since last year.

Four letter words will prevail.

Jack Ralph Baat will be known as the assistant principal at the Larkspur school. Paul V. Bosque, Richard F. Frakes, Nicholas J. Gennaro and William D. Wilkinson will carry the neat titles of dean.

Donald Kreps wants to be known as principal, although he has to get permission from the Tamalpais High School District's board of trustees, since they originally designated him "educational leader."

Kreps said the other changes — voted Monday afternoon by the school's department chairmen council — will take place immediately.

In effect it means that the old titles will be put back on the administrators' doors . . . no one had thrown them away.

Kreps said almost everyone in the school was in favor of simplifying the titles, and student representatives were among the strongest advocates.

Elsewhere in the Tam district, Thomas M. Lorch at Sir Francis Drake High School in San Anselmo basks in the resplendent title of leader of educational planning, supported by a program coordinator, an administrative director, a dean of boys, a dean of student activity and a part-time dean of girls.

Lorch, who isn't at all sure why he's a leader of educational planning while his counterparts at the district's other two high schools are educational leaders, says the titles haven't led to confusion.

The administrative director's position is closest to that of assistant principal, explained Lorch, while the program coordinator, Jack Hayes, coordinates classroom curriculum and pupil services.

And at Mill Valley's Tamalpais High School, the man in charge, Lawrence Sheppard is known as the educational leader. He's backed up by principal Raymond J. Bell, associate principal James Hanretty, assistant principal Theodore Mitchell, another assistant principal Anthony Compagno, and a dean of student activities, John McSween.

Crackdown Set On Hard Core Delinquents

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The county Board of Supervisors has ordered a crackdown on juvenile delinquents, particularly the 850 youths on a police list of "hard core offenders."

"Each has a minimum of 10 and as many as 28 previous arrests," said Supervisor Kenneth Hahn Tuesday.

"They are legally on probation or are free in the community. They should be given intensive supervision and a concentrated effort must be made toward cracking down on the offenders when they are involved in future crimes."

The board unanimously adopted a motion by Hahn to set up an "emergency program" within 30 days to deal with the 850 youths, who were listed by the Los Angeles Police Department.

Today is Wednesday, Jan. 24, the 24th day of 1973 with 341 to follow.

The moon is approaching its last quarter. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus, Mars and Jupiter. The evening star is Saturn.

American sculptor Paul Wayland Bartlett was born Jan. 24, 1865.

On this day in history:

In 1908, the first Boy Scout troop was organized in England by Sir Robert Baden-Powell, a general in the British army.

In 1922, Christian Nelson of Onawa, Iowa received a patent for his "Eskimo Pie," a brick of ice cream encased in a coating of chocolate.

In 1965 the world mourned the death of famous English statesman Sir Winston Churchill, known as the first citizen of the Free World and leader of Britain during the darkest days of World War II.

In 1972, President Nixon sent Congress a record $246.3 billion budget and announced a current deficit of almost $39 billion.

A thought for the day: Sir Winston Churchill said, "Dictators ride to and fro upon tigers they dare not dismount and the tigers are getting hungry."

San Rafael air quality yesterday:

Oxidants, clean air.

Nitrogen dioxide, clean air.

Carbon monoxide, clean air.

Smoke particles, clean air.

Other areas:

San Francisco, clean air.

San Jose, significant air pollution.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources, while the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

Acute Anxiety Masquerades As Many Types Of Ailments

Anxiety, the most common emotional problem, masquerades as nervousness, tension, panic, restlessness, or fatigue. All of us have a touch of it now and then. An acute spell may last a few minutes, hours, or days. The victim feels as apprehensive and fearful as though some catastrophe had overtaken him.

But this does not concern him as much as his racing pulse, pounding heart (palpitation), tightness in the chest, shortness of breath, tension in the scalp, or dizziness. Symptoms of these kinds make him restless, tremulous, agitated, panicky, and terrified.

THE INTERPRETATION of these attacks is all important. Some victims are positive that they are having a heart attack. Still others believe they are losing their mind or are about to die. The individual and his family are sure that the sudden distress is a warning of a major disease and frequently rush the victim to the hospital. Once the complex is fixed in the victim's mind, it may be difficult to erase.

Acute anxiety is not difficult to recognize. Delays aggravate the situation and the sooner the individual is told about it, the quicker the anxiety can be brought under control. It is reassuring to know that the heart is normal or the individual is not going insane.

TESTS, SUCH as an electrocardiogram, may be needed to substantiate the diagnosis.

Meanwhile, a sedative or tranquilizer may be needed, especially when the individual is panicky. When calmness is reestablished, it becomes necessary to get down to the nitty-gritty. Anxiety of this sort usually stems from emotional stresses and strains that have 'piled up' for many years and have been aggravated by recent events.

Actually, the individual was indeed fearful and 'scared to death'. The symptoms were not imaginary, but were somewhat similar to stage fright. A few follow-up discussions are most helpful, and more so, if the person has had previous attacks of acute anxiety.

Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.

HAS ULCER

M.Y.H. writes: I am in my late 60s and learned to swim as a child. However, I have done practically no swimming in recent years because of an ulcer. Would swimming be harmful to me now?

REPLY

No, assuming it is an internal lesion, such as a peptic ulcer. Swimming might also be helpful especially if the activity is relaxing and the exercise improves your feeling of well-being. If you have a leg ulcer, swimming may be beneficial, but you must think of others.

AUTISM

W.M. writes: What is meant by autistic tendencies in a child?

REPLY

An autistic child does not respond normally to his environment and fails to develop a meaningful relationship with his parents. Many of these youngsters are brain damaged; they cannot respond to love and affection.

FOOT FATIGUE

H.B.T. writes: What would help calf and foot fatigue?

REPLY

Muscle conditioning is most helpful when the individual lacks physical fitness and is otherwise healty. In older persons, the circulation must be improved.

Woman Admits Charges Of Pot, Mischief

A 29-year-old San Rafael woman — arrested in the ravaged apartment of her ex-husband — pleaded guilty yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to malicious mischief and a reduced misdemeanor count of having marijuana.

Justine Virginia Thompson pleaded guilty after the district attorney asked Judge Robert A. Smallman to reduce the felony pot count against her. Sentencing was set for Feb. 16.

Mrs. Thompson was arrested Dec. 17 by San Rafael police, who received a report that furniture was being hurled from the window of the apartment at 804 A Street.

Found on the bed in the battered apartment was Mrs. Thompson, police said. A routine search at the Marin County Jail produced three packets of marijuana, police said.

State Files Suit Over Oil Spill

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The state filed suit Tuesday against the Hong Kong owners of the freighter S.S. Liberty Manufacturer, charging that the ship spilled up to 60 barrels of oil into Los Angeles harbor when it ran aground last year.

The suit, filed by state Attorney General Evelle J. Younger, said that at the time of the grounding off Point Fermin Oct. 7, the ship discharged five to 10 barrels of oil into the water.

Another 25 to 50 barrels were spilled by the time the freighter was pulled free from the rocks weeks later, the complaint said.

The suit, filed against Manufacturers Navigation Co., seeks $6,000 in civil penalties and another $2,090 for supervision and aid in removing and cleaning pollutants caused by the spill.

Deported Priest From Philippines Will Speak

Rev. Bruno Hicks, an American priest deported from the Philippines for allegedly "subversive activities," will discuss the present upheaval in the Philippines at a dinner meeting of the Marin division of the World Affairs Council Monday at the Sausalito Yacht Club.

Father Hicks, ousted last October, raised the ire of Philippines President Ferdinand Marcos with his broadcasts over a Franciscan radio station, warning against the militarization of the Philippines. Father Hicks also contends his work toward land reform and in exposing injustices of the plantation system angered sugar planters and local landlords.

Reservations may be made before Friday by contacting the World Affairs Council at 406 Sutter Street, San Francisco. Father Hicks's 8 p.m. speech will be preceded by dinner at 7 p.m. and cocktails at 6:30 p.m.

Law Group Is Opposing No-Fault Insurance Bill

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The board of governors of the State Bar Association yesterday opposed the only no-fault auto insurance bill currently before the legislature.

While endorsing the concept of no-fault insurance, Leonard S. Janofsky of Los Angeles, president of the state bar, said the measure (AB50) by Assemblyman Jack Fenton, D-Montebello, and Sen. Alfred H. Song, D-Monterey Park, was not in the "public interest."

Under no-fault, a motorist is paid damages by his own insurance company regardless of who is to blame for an accident.

Janofsky declared the Fenton-Song bill had an excessively high threshhold of medical expenses—$1,000—that must be incurred before an injured person could sue.

He said the measure was "unfair to persons who are wrongfully injured in automobile accidents."

Janofsky said the board of governors voted last week to modify their position last year calling for a $500 threshhold.

Instead they proposed a $250 threshold with a provision that a person with medical expenses between $250 or $1,000 could accept the no-fault benefits or submit his claim to arbitration. Beyond $1,000, a person would retain his current rights.

Richard A. McCormick of Fresno, vice president of the bar, said the threshold and arbitration provisions would allow 60 per cent of injured persons to make legal claims for damages compared to 6 per cent under the Song-Fenton bill.

How You Can Help In The Energy Crisis

EDITOR'S NOTE: (It will take more than experts to cope with the world's growing energy shortage. Here are some simple, practical measures that you can take at home, work, or play to bring major energy savings.)

By PETER TONGE
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

When David Rose fitted radial tires to his 1958 Aston Martin, he calculated he would save a significant amount of gasoline. He did. It came to something better than $30 worth of fuel a year as reduced road friction cut consumption by 10 per cent.

Doctor Rose is a professor at the Masschusetts Institute of Technology (MIT). His specialty is energy conservation. Hence his interest in radials, in fluorescent lighting, and in storm windows, among other items, and in such things as shade trees and windbreaks.

They all save energy to a degree that makes economic sense. They can also contribute substantially, when practiced on a wide scale, to holding back what many see as an approaching energy crisis.

They represent practical measures individuals can take to help prevent this crisis from developing. The old-fashioned familiarity of some of these things, such as storm windows, shouldn't hide their relevance as important energy-savers.

The United States and Europe particularly appear vulnerable to energy shortages in the decades ahead. In fact, outside of the Middle East and the Soviet Union, few nations have satisfactory energy reserves, Rose contends.

Known oil reserves, according to Lawrence Rocks and Richard P. Runyan ("The Energy Crisis," Crown Publishers), will last some 20 years at 1970 consumption rates; 15 years at the present growth rate. Natural gas is put at 40 and 30 years respectively. Only coal, among the fossil fuels, is relatively abundant and could last 300 years.

The U.S. energy bill, including transportation of fuels, now stands at $100 billion. That's one-tenth of the gross national product. Overall energy demands will double in the next 18 years while the population grows 30 percent, says Rose. Pure industrial energy consumption is rising at a considerably faster rate, according to Rocks and Runyon — 7 to 1.1 in relation to population growth.

Half of everything transported in the U.S. today is fuel. More petroleum has been consumed here since the mid 1950's than in all history up to that point. Electric power consumption, now twice what it was 10 years ago, could rise to between four and six times its present level by the turn of the century, according to some projections.

Total rate of energy use in the U.S. now is about 10 kilowatts for each man, woman, and child according to Rose. This is not just electricity, but also gas, gasoline, heating oil, and so forth. It includes not only what each one uses personally, but also his or her share of the coke in the steel mills, of jet transport fuel, and the like. The total is prodigious. It amounts to more than one third of all the power consumed in the world today. Put another way, 6 per cent of the world's population expends 33 per cent of its power output.

That so much energy is spent, much of it in cavalier fashion, suggests that much can be conserved by plugging the leaks.

A study, "The Potential for Energy Conservation," put out by the President's Office of Emergency Preparedness suggests that by 1980 the U.S. could save the equivalent of 7.3 million barrels of oil a day by steadily implementing such measures as:

Improved insulation in homes; adoption of more efficient air-conditioning systems; shifting intercity freight from highway to rail, "short-haul" passengers from air to ground travel, and urban passengers from automobiles to mass transit; and through the introduction of more efficient industrial processes.

The average man on the street can help in many ways too, and help his pocket book at the same time, say the experts.

The radial tires mentioned earlier are a case in point. Their greater expense tends to be balanced by longer life (40,000 miles). From Rose's point of view their improved traction, coupled with reduced surface friction on the road, is the important thing.

Tests he has carried out show the reduced friction improves gasoline mileage by 10 per cent. That is an important factor in view of the anticipated 12 per cent increase in gas consumption brought about by higher exhaust emission standards.

Buildings, too, are prolific wasters of energy. Nearly every home in the U.S. spills heat needlessly into the winter air just as it fails to keep out unwanted heat in summer.

Better housing designs and optimum insulation of buidings would cut energy consumed for heating and air-conditioning by more than 25 per cent.

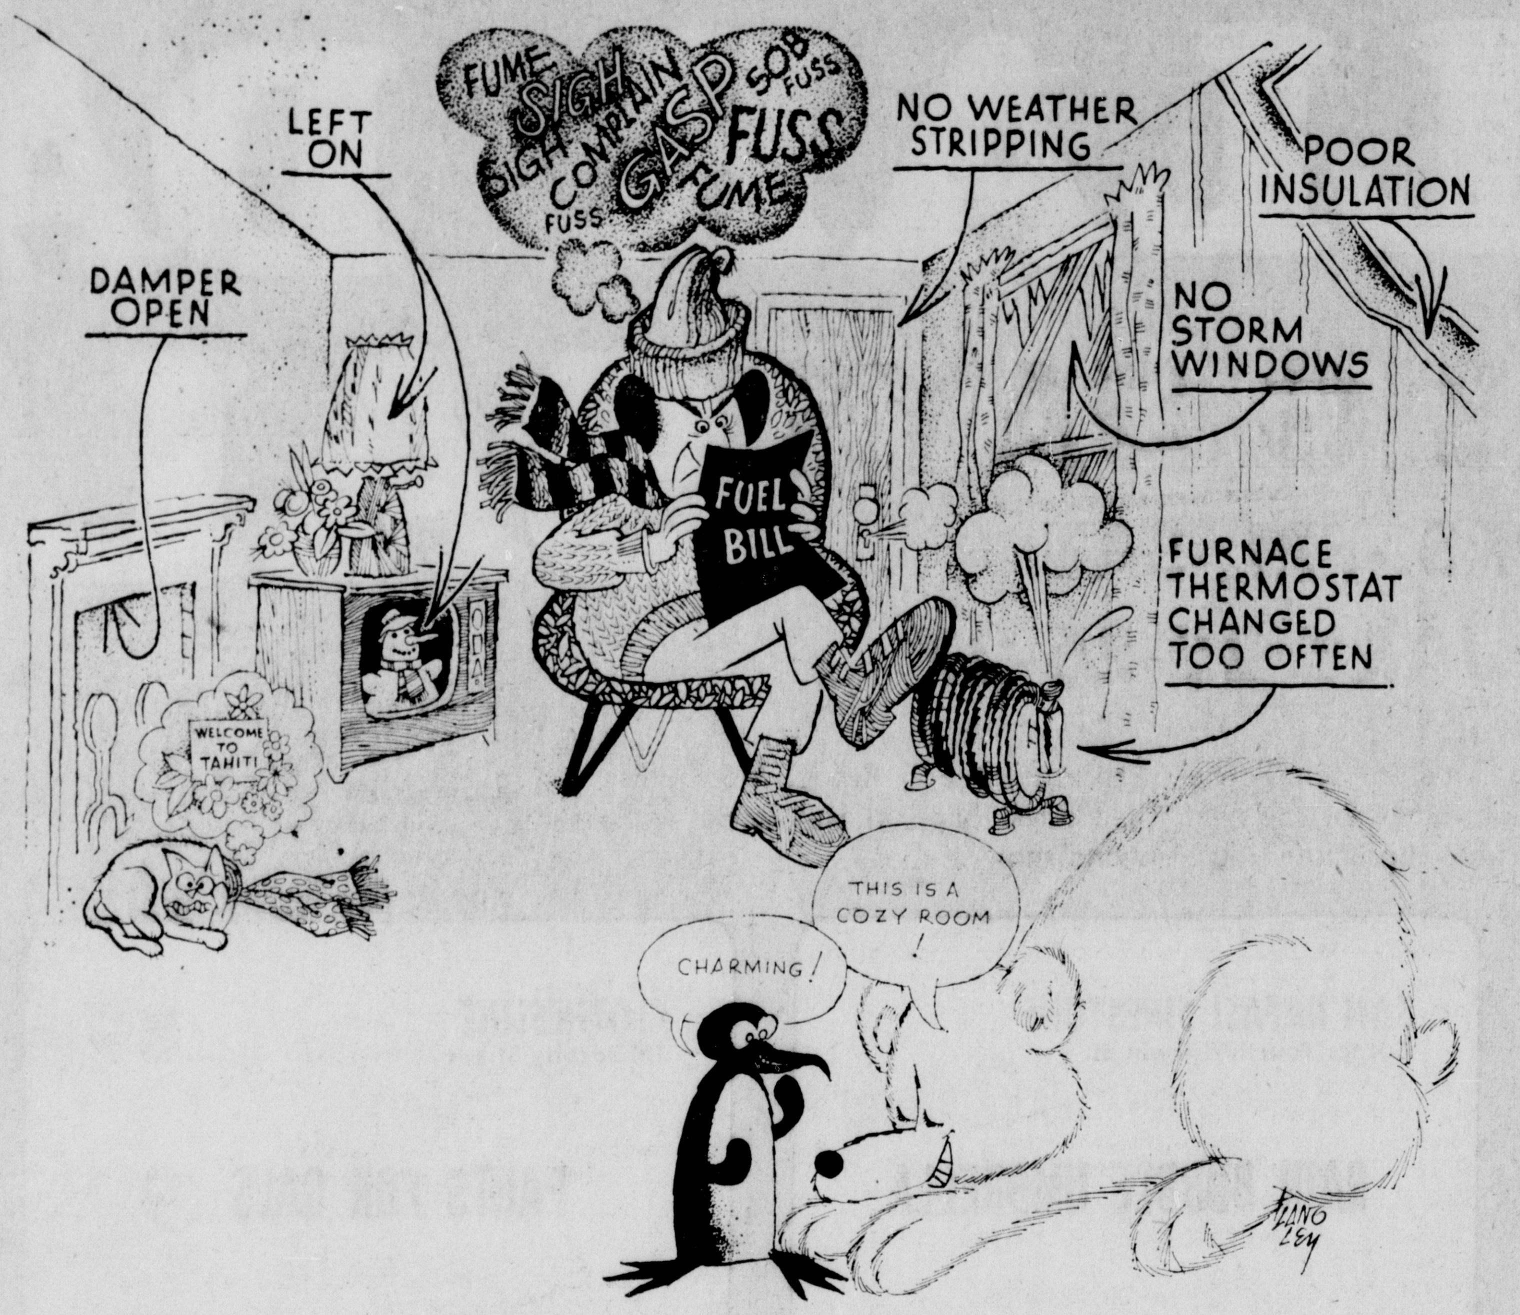
The cost of this additional insulation during construction of a medium-sized house, Rose estimates, would come to $200. It is a small sum compared to the annual heating cost of around $400 a year for the same home inadequately insulated.

Tests at MIT suggest that the cost of storm windows can be recouped through a saving in heating costs in six years. The double glazing creates a dead-air space, reducing heat loss.

Other significant savings result from having blinds or drapes, or both, at every window. Draw them the moment the sun goes down. The more dead-air spaces between room and outside window the better the heat retention.

every little leak. The constant flow of cold air coming through the keyhole is balanced by an equivalent outflow of warm air — air your oil or gas bill shows you have paid good money to heat.

Another tip: If you have a fireplace, keep the damper shut whenever there's no fire in the grate. Warm, invisible air bil-lows out of an open chimney just as smoke does.



Humidity can also be important. A home that's too dry must be kept warmer than one with the proper humidity level to give the same degree of comfort, according to the Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University at Blacksburg, Va. The Institute suggests a humidifier may be a worthwhile investment in those areas where the winter air gets very dry.

Never turn down a thermostat in home or office more than about five degrees for short periods such as overnight. Otherwise, it may take more energy to restore heat to the home than was saved by the reduction.

A protective row of conifers down the side of the house exposed to the prevailing winds can cut down quite significantly on heat loss. A building, says Rose, is subject to the chill factor, just as people are. In contrast, deciduous trees on the sunny side of the house provide shelter from summer sun. They shed their leaves in winter, allowing the warm rays through when they're most needed.

Savings on electrical power consumption in a home can be considerable. As anti-pollution needs place increasing strictures on power generation and as fuel supplies decrease to push up the price to consumers, the practicality of such savings will become obvious.

Says a spokesman for the electrical appliance industry, "Turning off the light when you leave the room will become a meaningful thing to do. Penny-wise today it will become nickelwise tomorrow."

Many little things can bring further energy-money savings. Here are some suggestions:

Refrigeration: If your freezer isn't self-defrosting, defrost it when the ice becomes a quarter-inch thick. A greater ice thickness cuts down on the cooling power of the coils. A self-defrosting refrigerator, by the way, consumes up to 50 per cent more electrical current than the standard model.

Keep your freezer full. The costly cold is retained by the food whereas 80 per cent of the cold air spills out every time you open the refrigerator door.

Cooking: Never boil more water than is necessary to cook with. Use pots and pans that fully cover the elements. Use plug-in appliances such as skillets where possible. They are generally fitted with thermostats and can be set for exactly the amount of heat you need.

Prepare double quantities of such things as soups or stews which take a long time to cook. Then freeze the unused portion for future use. It is less power-consuming to hold the food in refrigeration and warm it up when needed than to cook up a new batch. Plan your meals. Several dishes can be baked in an oven as economically as one food item. Remember, too, every time you open your oven door you lose at least 20 per cent of its heat. For some dishes a pressure cooker cuts down considerably on cooking time and therefore on the amount of energy used.

Bathing: A shower generally uses a lot less water than bathing in a tub. To be really economical try the Navy method. Soap yoursef thoroughly. Then step into the shower for a quick rinse down.

Remember, hot water left in the pipes represents wasted heat. When installing a new heater have it located as close to your bathroom or kitchen sink as possible. Sometime in the future, waste hot water from bath or sink will be made to pass over the inlet pipes, in such systems, thus pre-warming the water before it reaches the heater.

Washing: Always wash full loads. It saves time, hot water, and electricity. Use cold water and cold-water detergents whenever they can do the job.

Drying: Don't overdry clothes. It is costly in heat and puts wrinkles in the garments.

Lighting: Fluorescent tubes use one sixth of the power as your electric iron in a 110-volt circuit. On the other hand, you use a lot more lights and burn them longer than you use irons. So it pays to turn off unneeded lights, and the television set nobody is watching.

Contrary to popular belief, turning a light on and off does not use more electricity than leaving it on.

Airconditioning: An efficient airconditioner will use as little as half the current of an inefficient one to give the same cooling effect. A simple test when buying a new one is to divide the number of watts into the BTU's per hour. Both have to be listed by law. The quotient will vary from 3 to 11. The higher the number, the greater the efficiency of the unit. From 7 on up is considered good.

Put the conditioner in a window on the shady side of the house. See, too, that it is not surrounded by shrubs, bushes or other dense growth outside the window. This will prevent efficient discharge of the heat.

These are simple measures. Yet, in saving energy, they could have a mighty impact.

Mail To Go Electric In Cupertino Soon

CUPERTINO (AP) — The mail will go electric here soon — and officials think it will help the air and foil Fido.

Sometime in February the Cupertino Post Office will become the first postal facility in the nation to convert to all electric delivery cars when it gets 30 battery-operated vehicles, Postmaster Alvin R. Carter said yesterday.

They cost far less to operate than conventional cars, create no smog and offer an advantage to the harried mailman — they move through neighborhoods so quietly they won't wake sleeping dogs.

"That's a formidable achievement in the eyes of a mail carrier," said Charles Nelson, assistant vehicles service manager for the Postal Service's western region.

Carter said Cupertino will serve as a test point for a fully electric mail car fleet, and if the experiment succeeds, the vehicles may be introduced in post offices throughout the country.

He said the Cupertino Post Office was selected for a test of prototype battery-powered delivery vans, "because we are a typical residential community, but the terrain here is also hilly, so we could see how well the cars performed."

After eight months of testing two prototype models, an English-designed Harbilt unit, powered by a 72-volt, 10.5 horsepower motor, did the best job, and the U.S. government has ordered 30 of the vehicles to replace conventional models in Cupertino.

The San Francisco firm of Electric Vehicle Co. was given the contract to build them and plans to rent the vehicles — equipped with right-hand drive, four wheels and hydraulic brakes — to the Postal Service for $46 a week.

The cars, which can reach a top speed of 35 miles per hour, have a range of nearly 50 miles on a single battery charge. Carter said most routes in Cupertino cover 10 to 12 miles.

The cars can be recharged overnight at a cost of about 16 cents a day — compared to an average cost of more than $1 a day in gas for conventional postal vehicles.

A Clothes Craze Rugby Jerseys

CHRISTCHURCH, N.Z. (AP) — A local clothing company has exported $60,000 worth of rugby jerseys to the west coats of the United States, and says the market has great potential.

The sales campaign followed reports that the cost of outfitting a gridiron team was forcing many young Americans to turn to rugby.

The company also says the colorful "rugger" jerseys have caught on among young people as a zany fashion craze for casual wear.

Man Is Just At Fringe Of Depths

CHICAGO (UPI) —To explore the ocean man will go to great depths. So do turtles, seals and whales.

In free dives, without special equipment, man has gone about 200 feet beneath the ocean's surface, according to Encyclopaedia Britannica. Turtles and seals go five times that depth.

But sperm whales regularly swim along the ocean bottom at depths as great as 3,700 feet. The physiological mechanism that permits them to accomplish this feat has not been explained.

Cheap Food Era Ends In Britain

By JOHN ALLAN MAY
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

LONDON — It is the end of an era.

The price of the roast beef of old England now is almost too much for young England. Since the pay and prices "freeze" began Nov. 6, it has risen 37 per cent. Rump steak is the equivalent to $2.40 a pound, filet up to $3.60.

Many young families, and many retired folk, find they cannot afford the traditional Sunday joint any more.

Minister of Agriculture Joseph Godber had roast lamb for Sunday lunch instead of beef, as of course did many other Britons. But the price of lamb also has gone up 50 per cent in the same period.

Prime Minister Edward Health has appointed a special panel of three experts to undertake an urgent inquiry, particularly into the price of beef, and to report by Jan. 13.

One member of the panel is Dame Elizabeth Ackroyd, chairman of the Consumer Council until it was axed in almost the first official action of the incoming Conservative government in 1970.

Doubtless Heath hopes to establish without fear of further argument that it is not Britain's entry into the Common Market that has put food prices up.

If the panel found it were — which is most unlikely — Heath and his government would be in real and immediate trouble. They have reported again and again the pledge that entry will increase food costs by only 2.5 per cent per annum. Thirty-seven per cent is a great deal too much.

But the plain fact it, whatever is responsible for this particular price explosion, the era of cheap food for the British has come to an end.

That era was made possible by purchases on favorable terms in the British Commonwealth and in the rest of the agricultural and developing world, plus a "deficiency payments" policy that in effect subsidized consumers.

It was also the case that demand elsewhere for traditional British foods was light.

Now Commonwealth preferces have gone. The subsidy for the consumer has gone. The Common Market's "dear food" policy has been adopted. And at the very same time, world demand for food the British prefer, particularly beef, has risen markedly.

Everywhere it is the age of rising expectation.

Experts here say it is therefore very unlikely there will ever be cheap food again in Britain.

This will have important consequences. Many British farmers, for instance, now may switch from milk to beef and wheat.

The British diet will change.

But even more importantly, the ending of the pay freeze will be made still more difficult for the government to handle. Pressure for large pay increases inevitably will grow.

Meanwhile, the cost structure of British industry will be dramatically altered. There will be even more incentive to save on labor.

But there also will be pressure radically to improve British productivity — which would do the country, and most individuals, a great deal of good in the long-term.

However, at this precise moment the most obvious, and politically potent, factor simply is that Mrs. John Bull needs more money for the housekeeping.

Smoking By Students Problem For Schools

By JULIA MALONE
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

Increased cigarette smoking by high-school students in America is forcing schools to take a new look at smoking rules.

When not allowed to smoke during school, students crowd into rest rooms to smoke illegally, creating a smoky nuisance for nonsmokers. Often school property is damaged.

At Brookline (Mass.) High School a junior comments, "So many people smoke that the smoke oozes out of the doors of the rest rooms." Inside, she says, "you can hardly breathe."

Across the country the story is often the same. Federal estimates indicate 30 to 40 per cent of high-school students are smokers.

Smoking is an "increasingly serious problem which plagues a vast majority" of high-school principals, according to the National Association of Secondary School Principals.

No-smoking rules are hard to enforce, to say the least. The usual penalty is suspension from school. But as Fairfax, Va., School Superintendent John Davis points out: "Often we called homes and the parents would say, "We permit him to smoke'."

Some parents, health authorities, and teachers want student smoking prohibited for health reasons. Roy L. Davis of the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare's clearinghouse on smoking and health at Bethesda, Md., says he receives about one letter a week from high schools with smoking problems.

"Everyone agrees that schools should offer health training," he says, adding that harsh action against smokers is not always the answer. "There is considerable evidence that smoking is compensatory. If the school is too punitive, it may be putting down the very kids that need help — and may even be encouraging them to smoke."

In Montgomery County, Md., school officials are trying a different tack. They for the youngest children, using gentle persuasion to steer them away from cigarettes.

Students form their attitudes about smoking long before they reach high school, according to William F. Hauptman, health program supervisor for Montgomery schools. For part of his campaign to reach younger grades, high-school students go into elementary schools to present anti-smoking skits, films, and talks.

Hauptman says whether the campaign will affect smoking habits later, he can't tell, but "right now we have them on their side."

In Montgomery high schools, however, smokers congregated in rest rooms caused enough damage to force officials to change the rules. Since 1969, students have been allowed to smoke outside.

Hauptman thinks the move is unfortunate. "My idea is that we shouldn't allow smoking on school grounds," he says. "I don't think they have that much of a habit. This gives a chance for the habit to grow."

With the growth of student rights, many young people are arguing that they should be able to smoke just as adults in schools may smoke. At Bethel High School in Spanaway, Wash., for example, students asking for a school smoking area claim smoking as a right, not just a privilege.

Many schools now are relaxing rules. Davis estimates that a third of U.S. high schools allow smoking outside buildings.

Fairfax schools have gone that route for almost a year. So far, the plan has run smoothly, according to officials. Five schools report their rest rooms are smokeless.

At the high school in Swampscott, Mass., students are allowed to smoke during free periods if they move off school grounds. Geoffrey Aronson, a senior, says the new rule saves the lavatories. In the past, he says, smokers congregated in rest rooms, sat on basins, and often broke mirrors. Damage has decreased since smokers have gone outside.

The right to smoke outdoors doesn't guarantee an end to rest-room problems, however, Brookline High has allowed smoking for some time. But that hasn't ended the smoke filled lavatories — especially when temperatures outdoors bounce around zero.

Paris, Developers Unite For Massive Rebuilding

By FRAN P. HOSKEN
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

PARIS — Seen from the Trocadero terrace facing the Eiffel Tower, the gray silhouette of Tour Montparnasse mars one of the best views of Paris This is why the city's first real skyscraper has created a celebrated uproar among Parisians and urbanists around the world

It is doubtful now that another developer will soon risk a similar scandal Nevertheless, as Paris expands and rebuilds to meet the needs of its burgeoning modern population, public authorities find the help of private developers urgently needed

Here and elsewhere in France they are showing the world how such help can harmonize with public planning in ways that both reward developers and build an exciting, satisfying environment for people.

As L Guillet, architect of Paris s largest reconstruction project, Operation Place d'Italie, explains, "It is not at all necessary to build that high (as Tour Montparnasse)."

His project shows one can make money keeping within some height limits and without attracting undue attention.

These vast rebuilding projects throughout Paris are politically sensitive, as they involve enormous investments and profits. But the city itself simply cannot affort to do what is necessary on its own, according to the Paris Planning Office So it arranges to call on large private developers "We have waited too long. Now many of the obsolete areas of the city simply must be renewed all at once." the planners say Thus Paris is changing faster than any other capital in Europe and Paris builds out as well as up

For everything built inside Paris several times as much is being built elsewhere Indeed, outside of many cities all over France large new satellite communities are appearing. Some are planned as independent, self-sufficient cities, attracting all kinds of industry, including some from Paris

Those businesses that cannot leave the Paris region will be encouraged to move into one of the five new towns, or "areas designated for intensive urban development " By the end of the century each should house several hundred thousand people and be part of a complete new transportation network that will interconnect the whole area

These five areas of "concentrated urban development" organize growth that is bound to occur anyway into a cohesive, planned pattern that preserves the handsomest recreational areas along the Seine Valley By creating centers of growth with public support and with public transportation, the economic prospects of the whole area are enhanced the quality of life of everyone is vastly improved and the natural environment is protected

At this stage, two of the five planned new towns are growing rapidly — Cergy Pontoise and Evry While the prefecture, the regional administrative center, was the only building of the new town of Evry in the spring of 1971 by now thousands of apartment units are under construction Some already are inhabited

Evry is on flat land. Therefore it is easy to build. It can be reached quickly on an existing expressway from Paris, just beyond the airport of Orly

Farmland in this area consists of large holdings, easy to acquire. By declaring land "designated for development" by a public authority, the government automatically removes it from speculation. The land continues to be used for agriculture until it is actually needed. This avoids that dreadful interim stage seen around American cities where speculators buy acreage in the path of future growth and it promptly becomes an unsightly wasteland.

The typical process in France is for the public authority to make a general land-use plan Then development priorities are assigned. Sector by sector, private conglomerates and teams are asked to submit plans for certain areas in a staged-competition form. The different parcels thus made available to private developers — who must provide their own financing, construction, architecture and management — are very large. They involve several thousand housing units at one time plus all roads, services, infrastructure, schools, public buildings, and so forth.

Last summer I saw the architectural models and drawings submitted for the second or final stage of a sector of Evry. This sector will house some 25,000 people in some 7,000 housing units with all services and transportation. Indeed, it will be a whole community in itself. These models filled the entire floor of a Paris office building. They detailed financial plans as well as all kinds of innovative software such as new educational facilities They were supplied by the four finalists selected from the first stage of the competition

These proposals showed quite a new way of thinking in solving the everyday problems of living expressed in some very exciting new architectural form

The project that won first prize totally departs from the rectangular monotonous high-rise apartment buildings that offer good financial returns, are efficient to build, but have become symbols of alienation all over the world The new community looks like nothing so much as a group of pyramids of various size interspersed with greenery Each pyramid consists of individual apartments each with its own private outdoor space They are piled up in seemingly random fashion, complete with trees, parks, schools, and shopping. They preserve the linear scale, while urban densities prevail.

Vehicular traffic and people are strictly separated. This by now is a rule observed in practically all new communities designed in France.

There were many new imaginative ideas and solutions proposed such as multifunctional schools that serve the whole community — public buildings that are combined with shopping and recreation so they do not stand idle on weekends and after 5 p.m One of the projects proposed an internal monorail which runs the length of the linear high-rise town while each apartment has an unobstructed view over the countryside. What fun it would be for the children to be able to move freely about town on a train. Yet they would have ready access to playing fields, sports facilities, and a series of recreation and education centers placed on the ground alongside the sloping apartment blocks.

In France, this innovative and fresh view of life, creating an untraditional and imaginative environment, is juxtaposed with preservation, rehabilitation, and conservation of handsome well-used historic buildings.

Grenoble certainly is a case in point. Located at the foot of the Alps — indeed the site of the 1968 Winter Olympics — Grenoble has a bracing climate, a spectacular environment, and a most handsome historic city center that has been lovingly restored.

Grenoble is, in the orbit of the powerful Mediterranean city building traditions, also an area of some of the greatest growth of France. Companies in fields of electronics, circuitry, computers, fine machine tools, and the like have located there. They are drawn, in part, by the excellent university and the availability of a skilled labor force Recreation also is a growing income source for the region.

On the outskirts of the old city, a great deal of new building is going on. To prevent haphazard, wasteful growth, the city fathers decided that development must be rationally planned and controlled. One reason for having the Winter Olympics in Grenoble was that the city could get more and faster support from Paris for its building projects. The Olympic village was planned from the start to be the first stage of a new community.

I visited Grenoble last summer. Echirolles and New Grenoble, including the former Olympic village, now are functioning new communities full of children and activity and with much more construction under way A traditional street market is set up every day in one central area There are shops with gay awnings, fountains and playgrounds, gardens and arcades

"We asked the people who came here first how they like to live here. They are mainly industrial workers and most of the buildings here are subsidized." said Laurent Lefebvre, an architect who is working in the site development office for the new communities and Grenoble.

"The people enjoy living here to be sure But they all said they wished that they had a place where they could all meet Often they do not see one another, as the stores are too dispersed What they wanted most was a real center for all activities.

"So when we planned the next stage of the development we did just that. We concentrated all the shops, all activities, even the multipurpose schools that serve as community centers, in one area.

"These schools furthermore are initiating a new educational experiment for all of France. We are developing a pedestrian street where everything and everyone will be together right underneath the apartment buildings."

A pedestrian mall on the ground floor of the Y-shaped, connected high-rise apartment blocks concentrates all the people and activities Shops are planned for either side of these walkways, which open up every so often to green recreation areas beyond. Vehicular traffic and parking are concentrated to one side in one area.

A Department of Animation, which has the help of some sociologists, has been created to help plan these zones of intensive, concentrated activity This is an innovation that should be carefully watched by planners elsewhere, because there is nothing more devastating than the boredom and the unused empty spaces that characterize many new communities.

But the most exciting visual innovation is the use of brilliant colors — bright red, blue, yellow, and purple plastic paint applied to the high-rise concrete structures. This has attracted people from all over the area to the new town. And it has created special pride in the inhabitants, who enjoy the gaiety and distinction. It has turned the concrete high-rise buildings, produced under strict financial limitations of public subsidies, into distinctive new living environments of gaiety and imagination at hardly any extra cost.

Last summer the buildings were only partly inhabited More were still under construction But one could already see the emergence of quite a different way of living It's a new kind of urbanism that retains the excitement and activities of a city, yet sacrifices none of the amenities of clean air, a beautiful view, greenery, and nature next door.

Individual dispersed houses, as in the U.S. suburbia, cannot be publicly financed in France, as this would cost too much. It also would waste too much land and would create impossible transportation problems for the inhabitants.

The most interesting technical innovation of this imaginative new development is a built-in vacuum system that disposes of all refuse and garbage without any mess, fuss, or bother.

Disposal chutes are built into the high-rise buildings. These connect underground by large diameter pipes to vacuum locks at critical points A central station controls these locks electrically

PARIS SKYSCRAPER — In this view from the Eiffel Tower, the unfinished gray concrete spire of Tour Montparnesse, Paris's first real skyscraper, rears up beyond the majestic 18th-century Ecole Militaire and the Champ-de-Mars (middle foreground.) The tall building which has stirred outcries from Parisians and urbanologists all over the world, is an example of the kind of thoughtless development French planners are determined to avoid in the future.

BREEZING ALONG — It's fun to ride a double-hulled catamaran. It's a favorite pastime in Hawaii, such as this sailing, called "flying a hull," at Keehi Lagoon near Honolulu.

Double-Hulled Vessels Grace Hawaii's Waters Just For Fun

By JODI BELKNAP
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

HONOLULU — Double-hulled sailing vessels that ply the pounding surf are not new to Hawaii. The islands' first discoverers, thought to be daring navigators from the far-off Marquesas Islands in the South Pacific, probably arrived in twin-hulled "surfing" canoes over a thousand years ago.

But a new sort of double-hulled craft graces Hawaiian waters today. It surfs. It races And it "flies a hull."

The versatile boat is an asymmertrical, centerboardless catamaran with a trampoline deck and molded fiber-glass hulls. These craft are providing hours of fun for families in Hawaii. Being centerboardless, the boats can be put directly into the water from the beach.

"The islands are a paradise for the boat because of our fine weather, winds, and manageable surf," says enthusiast Tom Bartlett, owner of a 14-foot Hobie Cat. "The speed of the boat gives a sense of freedom and independence that's super-exciting." The lightweight boats skim the seas at speeds of 20 to 25 miles per hour.

The thrilling sport lends itself well to competition. Skippers sail in solo races or with a crew member who sometimes balances precariously in a canvas trapeze over the side of the boat. The object of the sport is to encourage developing individual sailing skills without artifical aid.

Hobie Cat sailors from the United States mainland, Europe, South Africa, South America, Puerto Rico, Canada, Australia, New Guinea, and Japan were recently in Honolulu. Taking advantage of steady offshore trade winds and balmy tropical weather. they raced from the Outrigger Canoe Club on Waikiki Beach to Keehi Lagoon. just east of Honolulu International Airport, and back. Catamaran skippers tested their abilities in such competitions as the Don Ho Regatta, an annual event held in May. The famed Hawaiian entertainer and his family sail both a catrig (with one sail) and a sloop rig (with a mainsail and a jib).

In addition to competitive racing, Rich Naish, a Kailua resident, enjoys sailing with his wife and three children. "You can take half a dozen passengers out on the boat if you're not worried about how it rides," he said recently.

A favorite gathering place is Kailua Beach on the windward side of the Island of Oahu, 10 miles from Honolulu. Here a broad beach affords easy access to a semiprotected sailing area with plenty of gusty onshore winds.

Conditions near the Outrigger are often ideal for one asymmetrical catamaran specialty — surfing. Skippers sail skillfully out to sea through a narrow channel cut in the coral reef. Then they wait patiently for just the right ocean swell to propel their boats on an exciting ride back toward the beach. Nearby, board surfers linger a while longer to catch a good wave, without the aid of wind in a sail to supply a faster ride.

In flat Keehi Lagoon winds are favorable for another maneuver, "flying a hull." As the boat picks up speed, one hull glides silently into the air. For skipper and crew it's a thrilling adventure into what seems like time suspended. Lifting to precarious angles over the water, the boat balances on one hull as it races along.

If a sudden gust should threaten to tip the craft into the ocean, there's a split second for the skipper to release the mainsail and regain control. If he misses, the boat may go over on one side or even "turtle," meaning to turn upside down.

Knowing The Odds Will Help You Execute Correct Line Of Play

When the opponents hold six cards of a suit, the odds are almost 2 to 1 against a 3-3 break. Far more often, one of the opponents will have four of those six missing cards. Sometimes the right line of play depends on allowing for this 4-2 break.

WINS IN DUMMY

West opened the jack of spades, dummy put up the queen and East won with the ace. East returned a spade, and South discarded a diamond as dummy won the king.

Declarer drew two rounds of trumps with dummy's king and queen, discovering that West was bound to make a trump trick. The contract now depended on managing the clubs properly.

Declarer led the ace of clubs from dummy and next led a low club to his own king. The key play came next, when South led a low club instead of trying to cash the queen.

WEST RUFFS

West gave declarer a hard time by ruffing with the ten of hearts and leading a low diamond. South would ordinarily be tempted to play a low diamond from dummy, but he knew it would be fatal to let East win the trick since East would return another club to let West ruff again.

The only hope was to put up the king of diamonds, and this play turned out well. South easily made the rest of the tricks by drawing the last trump and running the clubs.

LOW CLUB CORRECT

South would have lost his contract if he had led the queen of clubs instead of a low club on the third round of that suit. West would ruff, cash the ace of diamonds and return a trump. Now South would still have to lose a club to East's jack.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner bids one no-trump (16 to 18 points), and the next player passes.

You hold:

♠ - A 8 7 4 2
♦ - Q 10 8
♣ - J 10 8 2.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two spades.

You expect partner to pass this weak response, and you expect two spades to be a safer contract than one no-trump. If partner unexpectedly raises to three spades (promising good spades and 17 or 18 points) you will accept the invitation to game.

Highway Stampede

BRERETON, England (AP) — It took wild horses to convince Cheshire motorist Eddie Swindells he was not having another nightmare. Driving home late one night, three terrified wild horses stampeded across his path, wrecking the car. Swindells, who was slightly hurt, said later: "At the time I couldn't believe it. Imagine what the insurance people are going to say."

EATING TIME — Hsing-Hsing, one of two pandas that were the gifts of China to the people of the U.S., turns his back on an admiring public, and sits behind his glass-walled cage to have a snack. The pandas have created a lot of excitement from visitors because of their general appearance and antics. (Christian Science Monitor photo)

Rollicking Fun-Loving Pandas Drawing Raves

By CHARLOTTE SAIKOWSKI
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Ling-Ling was rolling in a wooden bucket when her breakfast arrived. In moments she was sitting on her haunches, nimbly clutching the food pan with her forepaws and devouring the rice gruel with undisguised pleasure.

"Look, she eats like a person," squealed a 12-year-old boy, as Ling-Ling polished off her morning repast with a carrot and bamboo leaves.

"I can't believe it!" exclaimed a svelte New York fashion model. "I fabricated a trip to Washington just to see them, and now I can't tear myself away."

"Neat!" screamed a giggly girl in braids.

There's no other word for it. Ever since their arrival in April the two giant pandas China gave to the American people after President Nixon's visit to Peking have been the talk of Washington's National Zoo. With their white coats, black eye patches, chubby figures, and rollicky sense of fun and vivacity, Ling-Ling and Hsing-Hsing have become the biggest attraction the zoo has ever had, drawing record crowds that sometimes line up for a quarter of a mile and wait an hour or more.

So important are these natives of Kansu and Szechuan Provinces that the zoo now has a full-blown Panda Division, consisting of a director and three keepers.

Separated from their admirers by a plate of glass, the pair seem oblivious to the laughter and whoops of glee that inevitably greet their antics. But they are thriving in their new American home. On a diet of rice, fruits, vegetables, bamboo, and a ration of meat like that fed to the zoo's cats, Ling-Ling, now over 2 years old, has grown from 136 to 180 pounds. Hsing-Hsing (pronounced Shing-Shing), the male, has almost doubled in weight from 74 to 130 pounds. When fully grown, by about late spring, they will weigh some 300 pounds and stand six feet high. By then Hsing-Hsing will have the edge in size.

"They are the least frustrated animals in the park," said Curley Harper, one of the keepers, as we watched Ling-Ling nibbling a bamboo stalk. "Look at her —that's a sign of perfect contentment."

The pandas, classified at present in the raccoon family, although some zoologists consider them bears, have a lot of spirit. In their waking hours — they are active in the morning and late afternoon and sleep during the day and at night — they are turning somersaults, clambering up the pyramid of logs in their dens, running around, rolling in the wooden tubs which they have unceremoniously emptied of the bamboo stalks, or batting a ball.

"It's more than a mere existence of eating and sleeping," says a zoo official admiringly.

Ling-Ling has the more outgoing personality and is more playful. When she was younger, recalled Harper, she would balance herself on the edge of a high log and see how far she could roll over before falling off.

"She always fell off and then started all over again," the youthful, bearded keeper remarked with a laugh.

Hsing-Hsing, for his part, is shyer and warier of people; but he, too, is amusing to watch, and is said to be intelligent.

Although zoo officials are under constant temptation to give the pandas "tender love and care on a personal basis," they are making every effort to keep contact with them to a minimum so that when the animals reach maturity, in another three or four years, they can be bred. If Hsing-Hsing and Ling-Ling grow too fond of humans — or of each other —they may refuse to mate.

Their living conditions at the zoo seek to simulate to some extent life in the wilds, where pandas are basically solitary animals. The two are in separate dens, which are kept at an air-conditioned temperature of 50 degrees. Only in their grassy outdoor yards, which are divided by a mesh fence, can they see each other and there they often cavort together, rolling on their backs and somersaulting. Even indoors, however, they are aware of each other, as Ling-Ling demonstrated when she stood up against the dividing door and tried to peer through a peephole.

The keepers — there are three so the pandas do not become too attached to one man — maintain their distance. They enter the dens only at feeding and cleaning time, and there is always a backup man at the door in case anything untoward happens. Pandas, which have five fingers plus a protruding wristbone that serves as a thumb, can clutch objects as primates do; they also have powerful teeth, and therefore can be dangerous. Ling-Ling one day grabbed the boot of a keeper and would not let go until Harper entered the den and gave her a sturdy whack on the rump.

Because of their rarity and value, and to forestall incidents by political or other cranks, the pandas are under 24-hour guard.

If the zoo should succeed in breeding the popular twosome, one can only imagine the "pandamonium" an offspring would occasion. But that is a way off, yet, and for the moment the zoo is concentrating on expanding and remodeling the panda house. By late 1973 these royal Chinese residents, who cannot complain of their quarters even now, will have, as one official puts it, "the most lavish accommodations in all pandadom."

Hsing-Hsing seems not in the least dissatisfied with his present home. After stripping a bamboo stalk clean of its leaves, he moseyed over to a log, flopped down, and settled himself into position for a long, contented snooze.

Exclusive Kentucky Crop Is Endangered

PRINCETON, Ky. (UPI) —A combination of declining prices, lack of hand labor and competition with other crops is endangering an exclusive Kentucky product—Green River tobacco.

The dark air-cured tobacco is produced in nine western Kentucky counties and is used in the manufacture of plug, twist and fine cut chewing tobaccos along with snuff and some pipe and cigar tobacco.

Supervisors Kill Plan To Use Hamilton

Board Votes To Oppose Commercial Flight Use

By ERIK M. INGRAM

Marin's 10-year flirtation with joint use of Hamilton Air Force Base ended abruptly yesterday as three county supervisors voted to oppose commercial aviation at the facility. (Other board of supervisors stories, pages 14, 15.)

The vote, which came after an hour of discussion, was followed by a major shakeup of the county's aviation commission — branded earlier by one supervisor as a "lobby for joint use."

Both actions met with approval from a large audience made up primarily of Novato residents who snickered and scoffed at those speaking in support of joint military-civilian use.

Leading the attack was chairman Arnold M. Baptiste, for whom yesterday's action culminated a long political struggle that started a year ago when he was the lone voice of opposition.

He was joined by new Supervisor Gary T. Giacomini and Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr., who in the past has been receptive to joint use proposals.

Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere, after arguing at length in support of further study, abstained from voting, saying the issue amounted to a major shift in county policy and had not been set for a public hear-

Open Space Bond Issue Approved

Marinwood residents gave overwhelming approval yesterday to a $600,000 bond issue to acquire 350 acres of undeveloped land as open space.

The measure was approved by a vote of 1,125 to 172, with 2,334 registered voters eligible to cast ballots in the election. Voter turnout was 55 per cent.

Marinwood Community Services District directors, who had predicted a 75 per cent favorable vote, were overjoyed today by the 86 per cent favorable outcome. A two-thirds majority of the vote cast was needed to pass the measure.

"It's more favorable than anyone expected," declared board member Frank Solomon Jr. "We're extremely pleased."

Director Ellis D. Jaquette, who headed the board's bond election efforts, said the next step is to continue property acquisition negotiations with landowners.

He said that acquisition of the 350 acres eyed by the community as open space "might take as much as two years," but that the board would know "who we'll have to go to the mat with in the next two months."

Though the district board already has come to terms with one landowner, some parcels may have to be acquired through condemnation, he said.

Twelve parcels have been recommended for purchase through bond monies by the open space committee of the Marinwood Homeowners Association. The community services district board has endorsed purchase of the parcels and has appraised the total value of the land at about $600,000, Jaquette said.

Nine of the parcels are clustered in a 328-acre package at the community's northwestern corner. Two parcels, totaling about 21 acres, are located near the community center while another is at the end of Limestone Grade adjoining Highway 101.

Land acquired through the bond money will become the property of the community services district with district directors acting as trustees. Public access will allow recreational uses such as hiking, horseback riding and picnicking.

The Marinwood measure follows similar bond issues in other communities aimed at acquiring open space.

Last April, Lucas Valley residents approved a $315,000 open space bond by a 22 to 1 favorable vote. More recently, San Rafael citizens passed by 3 to 1 a $2.25 million open space bond issue, and Tiburon residents embraced a $1.25 million open space bond by about the same ratio.

War's Tempo Increases In Spite Of Cease-Fire

SAIGON (UPI) — The Vietnam War increased in tempo today despite the announced cease-fire, and highranking U.S. military sources said American ground troops, helicopter and airplane crews will continue their present war missions during the last three days of the war.

"There has been no change in missions," one ranking officer said.

UPI correspondent Alan Dawson reported from Da Nang, 370 miles north of Saigon, that U.S. aircraft were carrying out their normal duties from the sprawling airbase there.

South Vietnamese command spokesmen also said their troops had no change in their current battlefield orders for the last three days of the war.

Dawson reported that as of

SOME SKEPTICISM

Peace News Is Met With Joy

Joy and happiness at the news of a peace settlement in Vietnam was mingled today with a degree of skepticism by many Marin and Southern Sonoma residents, who maintained an "I'll believe it when I see it" attitude.

In a random telephone poll conducted by Independent-Journal reporters, many of those reached tempered their enthusiasm with such statements as "I am a strong advocate of not counting my chickens before they are hatched."

Others, though, praised the president and Henry Kissinger and called the settlement an "honorable peace."

Here are the reactions of residents of Marin and Southern Sonoma called today.

Ken Pengelly, 27, carpet store owner, 941 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, Kentfield: "Fantastic — hard to believe; so many things will happen in the next few months that we are going to see a continuous change. My only question is, will the men be cut loose from the Army?"

Anne Fromhagen, accounting supervisor, 30 Sunview Avenue, San Anselmo: "Absolutely wonderful; I'm really thrilled. Everyone should be very proud of the President. I think that Kissinger and everyone connected with it should be commended."

Mrs. Lawrence A. Lindberg, 44, teacher, 53 Golden Hinde Boulevard, San Rafael: "I feel terribly sorry for all the people who will be killed or maimed between now and Saturday. It has been a long war. It should have been over a long time ago.

Families Of Prisoners Happy Their Ordeal is Nearly Over

By MARY LEYDECKER

For a 6-year-old San Rafael boy, last night's news of a Vietnam peace settlement seemed to mean that his "Daddy would be home by Saturday."

But a 7-year-old Ignacio boy went to school today, still not knowing whether the father he does not remember is dead or alive.

One is the son of an Air Force captain, a prisoner of war since November 1967. The other's father is an Air Force senior master sergeant, missing in action since 1966.

Little Peter Butler and his sister Sheila, 5, listened to the news last night "with great excitement" and understood what it was about, according to their grandmother, Mrs. Claire Davis, who was staying with them at their San Rafael home.

The children's mother, Julie Butler, wife of Capt. William W. Butler, was in the Virgin Islands on a brief vacation with another POW wife, and could not be reached by phone today.

JESSIE HILL
'Numb' over news

Mrs. Butler has worked for years with the National League of Families of American Prisoners and Missing in Southeast Asia, tirelessly speaking and traveling on behalf of her husband and other prisoners.

"Like all of us, they can't believe it," Mrs. Butler's mother said today about her grandchildren.

She added that her daughter was expected home this week, but she knew Mrs. Butler realized it might take months before she and her husband were reunited. She has had several letters from the captain from a North Vietnam prison and released prisoners have reported seeing him.

For Mrs. Robert L. Hill of Ignacio, the peace news was "so confused."

She has never heard a word about the fate of her husband since he and the rest of his airplane crew were reported missing in October 1966.

Although she said she is "hoping and praying he is still

Nixon Sees Peace For Southeast Asia

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Vietnam cease-fire ending America's longest and most unpopular war will be followed by similar peace agreements to stop the fighting in Laos and Cambodia, Henry A. Kissinger predicted today.

President Nixon's chief adviser also told a one-hour, 40-minute news conference that the first contingent of nearly 600 American prisoners of war will be flown out of Hanoi —in U.S. planes —within 15 days after the cease-fire comes Saturday at 7 p.m. EST.

The first liberation could come even before the 15 day period ends Feb. 11, Kissinger said. The prisoners will be flown out in four roughly equal groups every two weeks or 15 days —probably to Vientiane, Laos as the first step on their return home.

Kissinger made these other points:

There are no restrictions on U.S. forces in Thailand he said. The United States will continue to maintain air power at bases in Thailand and navy forces off the Vietnam coast after the cease-fire is signed. At the outset, those will be geared for war duties if necessary but will be de-escalated to a peacetime footing if the North Vietnamese keep their cease-fire pledges.

Both China and the Soviet Union will participate in a general conference to be convened in Vienna within 30 days to further guarantee peace in Southeast Asia.

Asked why peace could not have been achieved at the outset of Nixon's presidency four years ago, Kissinger said that until last Oct. 8, the North Vietnamese had insisted that "political victory be handed to them" and the present Saigon

Nation's Capital To Pay Johnson Homage

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The body of Lyndon Baines Johnson was returned to Washington for the final time today, for a slow procession through the streets of the city he once dominated as the nation's 36th President.

President Nixon, Johnson's widow and family were leading the mourners, with a caisson drawn by six white horses — followed by a single, riderless horse —starting from near the White House and drawing his flag-draped coffin up Constitution Avenue to the cadence of muffled drums.

His final journey to Washington from Texas, where he suffered a fatal heart seizure Monday at his ranch, was aboard the same blue and white presidential jet —made available by Nixon —in which Johnson took the oath of office Nov. 22, 1963,

Day Of Mourning Brings Holiday To Most Offices

A national day of mourning for former President Johnson's funeral will bring a holiday tomorrow to most government employees and in some cases will enable a four-day weekend for schools.

All national and state offices will be closed in both Marin and Southern Sonoma counties, and only special delivery mail will be delivered.

Hamilton Air Force Base and other military installations will be closed, except for essential services.

Marin and Sonoma County offices and courts will be closed.

City offices in Sausalito, Mill Valley, Tiburon, San Anselmo, Fairfax and Cotati also will be shut. San Rafael, Belvedere, Corte Madera, and Novato city offices will remain open, however, Other cities had not decided whether to close late this morning.

Although Mill Valley city offices will be closed, the city council, which was not expected to have a quorum tonight, will meet at 7:45 p.m. tomorrow in adjourned session.

All public schools will close.

Meanwhile, the Dixie, Fairfax, Lagunitas, Larkspur, Lincoln, Mill Valley, Nicasio, Reed, Sausalito and Union elementary districts and Tamalpais High School District and Novato Unified School District are scheduled to hold teacher workshops for Friday, meaning schools will be closed that day as well, providing students with a four-day weekend.

The Marin County Library and all of its branches will be closed. The Larkspur and San Rafael libraries will remain open.

Banks, savings and loans, supermarkets and other stores will remain open.

Jazz Trombonist Edward Ory Dies

HONOLULU (UPI) — Edward "Kid" Ory, the legendary Dixieland trombonist who gave Louis Armstrong his first job and composed "Muskrat Ramble" and "Savoy Blues," died Tuesday. He was 86.

Ory and his wife lived in Sleepy Hollow in the late 1950s. They sold their home at 160 Legend Road in 1959, just prior to making a European tour. After the tour they settled in San Francisco, and in 1961 they moved to Los Angeles.

Ory figured prominently in the news in 1958 when he underwent surgery for removal of a nonmalignant abdominal tumor, and there was an urgent call for blood donations. He was given the last rites of the church but recovered after three months of treatment.

Ory brought the trombone to prominence in the early days of New Orleans jazz with his "tailgate" style. He had been hospitalized for two months with pneumonia.

"His heart just gave out," said his wife, Barbara.

Ory had a jazz career that spanned almost 70 years—starting in the famed Storyville district of New Orleans at the age of 10.

EDWARD (KID) ORY
Legendary jazz musician

He played for Buddy Bolden, one of the first of the modern jazzmen and the man Ory credited with originating the Dixieland style. According to Ory, Bolden jazzed up religious music and tunes of the roustabouts and put them through his cornet.

Ory formed his own band at age 15. It played from a pair of horse-drawn covered wagons with Ory sitting at the tailgate to keep from hitting fellow musicians with his trombone slide. Many jazz giants, including Armstrong and Joe "King" Oliver, got their first jobs with his band.

"Louis was a little fellow then and he wasn't used to playing with an orchestra, just marchin' bands," Ory said of "Satchmo" a few years back. "I loaned him some money to get some clothes and then offered him the first real job he had. At that time, he knew only five numbers."

Armstrong and jazz later moved to Chicago, but Ory and his band headed to Los Angeles in 1919. He joined the Chicago scene six years later at the insistence of Armstrong, Oliver and Jelly Roll Morton.

He retired and became a poultry farmer for several years before making a comeback in 1944, playing jazz clubs from coast-to-coast and eventually buying a San Francisco nightclub, On The Levee. He moved to Los Angeles in 1961 for his wife's health and to Hawaii five years later.

Testimony Of Network For Campaign

WASHINGTON (UPI) -- President Nixon's campaign aides say their fear of violence to top Republicans during the presidential race led them to set up an "intelligence-gathering" network to provide protection, but their precautions did not include bugging Democratic national headquarters.

Jeb Stuart Magruder, former deputy director of the Committee for the Re-election of the President, and his assistant, Herbert L. Porter, testified at the Watergate political espionage trial Tuesday of widespread Republican fears of violence and even physical attacks as the campaign approached.

"By this time, we had indications of potential problems in areas we intended to go into, particularly our rallies where we wanted to send surrogate speakers for the President," said Magruder. He testified there had been "a number of death threats," particularly against then-campaign director John N. Mitchell and his wife, Martha.

Magruder and Porter testified at the trial as the lead-off administration witnesses. Former White House aide G. Gordon Liddy and former CIA agent James W. McCord Jr. are being tried on charges of conspiracy, burglary, bugging and wiretapping in connection with the June 17 break-in at the Democratic national committee offices at the Watergate complex. Seven men originally were indicted in the case, but five of them have pleaded guilty.

The trial was to continue today, but will recess Thursday to observe the national day of mourning for the late President Lyndon B. Johnson.

Magruder confirmed to the jury of eight women and four men that he had hired Liddy to set up a $250,000 network to gather information on leftwing and rightwing organizations in the nation and to learn what demonstrations were planned at the Republican national convention.

Special Meeting

A special meeting of Sausalito School District trustees will be held at 8 a.m. tomorrow in the district office at 630 Nevada Street to call for bids for the construction of toilets at Bayside School, according to Supt. Lawrence A. Lindberg.

Money Buys Anything In Dehmazang Prison

KABUL (UPI) — Michael Fleming, 25, son of a brigadier general in the U. S. Air Force Reserve, drew deeply on a hashish cigarette in Dehmazang Prison and described conditions there as "rock bottom."

"This is my 60th day in here," said Michael, who was jailed for possession of hashish following a raid in a hippie hotel.

Two U.S. narcotics agents participated in the raid which was prompted by the death of an American girl from a drug overdose.

The long-haired and bleary-eyed Fleming told this interviewer at the jail that a prison guard sold him the hashish he was smoking.

"You can make it here if you have money," said Fleming, of (878 W. Harrison St.) Claremont, Calif. "They don't give you any food. If I didn't have money I would starve."

He said guards bought food for him and the 30 or so other foreign prisoners at a bazaar just outside the mud walls of the prison.

"We don't have any beds," he said. "We sleep on the floor."

Fleming said he shared a cell with a friend from boyhood, David Weed, 26, from Glendale, Calif.

Fleming said he and Weed cooked their food on a charcoal burner in their cell.

"I've eaten a little opium here," said Fleming.

Asked if a guard secured that for him too, he nodded affirmatively but whispered "I can't talk now."

A guard, who understood and spoke a little English, stood beside Fleming as he talked in the visitors' room at the prison, a small room heated by a wood-burning stove.

Visitors, even embassy officials, are never permitted to see the cells.

"I've been through all drugs," Fleming said. "I've been a smack (heroin) freak. I've been an acid (LSD) freak. I was in the West Hollywood Drug Clinic for treatment. Do you know that place?"

He said that when his case is completed, he wants to visit his 7-year-old daughter in Mendocino, Calif. He said he and his wife had been separated for two years.

"I was halfway through getting my pilot's license," he said. "I want to finish that."

As for now, Fleming said the main thing he wanted to do was get out of Dehmazang Prison.

Shortly after the interview Fleming and Weed were freed on bail.

A Literary Note No Milk Policy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A congressman with literary flair today urged Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz to resist the blandishments of dairy leaders seeking to persuade him to increase the government support rate for milk.

Rep. Paul Findley, R-Ill., advised Butz in a letter to follow the example of the mythical Ulysses, who found a novel way to protect himself from attractions which would have led to the destruction of his ship.

"Chain yourself to the mast, and be not beguiled by the Siren songs," Findley said. He noted that dairy leaders have asked for an 18.4 per cent boost in milk supports, but urged Butz to grant only the minimum 4 per cent increase which will be required by law on April 1.

The Mountain Lion Population Is Up

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The state Fish and Game Department reports the number of mountain lions in California has at least doubled during the last 10 years and is more than four times greater than previously estimated.

The department reported the totals Tuesday in its first report on a mountain lion study ordered by the Legislature in 1971 when it established a four-year moratorium on hunting the animal.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Alexandros Dies

ATHENS (UPI) — Friends of Aristotle Onassis said today the shipping magnate is so upset by the death of his only son, Alexandros, 24, that he feels like "selling everything" and leaving Greece.

Alexandros died yesterday of injuries suffered in the crash of a private plane at Athens airport.

Friends said the 68-year-old shipping millionaire did not even want to see the body of his son.

The death, they said, made Onassis feel like selling his extensive holdings, which range from the Olympic airways to his private island of Skorpios, and leaving Greece.

Sentenced To Die

PROVO, Utah (UPI) — A convicted murderer was sentenced yesterday to die before the state prison firing squad by a judge who interpreted the U.S. Supreme Court's death penalty decision as a ban on life terms for slayers.

Attorney H. Grant Ivins said he would appeal a decision by superior Court Judge George E. Ballif to sentence to death James W. Winkle, 31, who was convicted of shooting two teenage girls to death in August, 1972.

Ivins said he would seek a clarification as to the state of the death penalty in Utah in his appeal to the State Supreme Court.

Robot 'Sleeps'

MOSCOW (UPI) — A two-week lunar night enveloped the Soviet Lunokhod 2 moon robot today for the first time, sending it into mechanical hibernation. A nuclear heater protected its electronic parts against temperatures as low as minus 200 degrees, the news agency Tass said.

The eight-wheeled vehicle rested on the edge of a crater on the sea of Serenity, one-half mile from where it rolled onto the moon Jan. 16 from the Luna 21 mothership.

Tass said Lunokhod 2 was making the first robot study of the lunar surface's magnetic field.

Shifting Base

BELFAST (UPI) — Security officials said today the Irish Republican Army (IRA) is shifting the base of its operations to the border area, along the dividing line between Northern Ireland and the Irish republic.

The reason, the officials said, is increasing pressure applied in Northern Ireland and the Irish republic.

Along the border, the officials said, IRA men can dodge back and forth across the frontier to evade capture and launch sporadic attacks.

They said the new emphasis on the border is the result of the British army's occupation of onetime IRA-controlled Roman Catholic areas of Londonderry and Belfast and a crackdown on the IRA in the republic.

Lava Nears Town

VESTMANNAEYJAR, Iceland (UPI) — Streams of glowing lava creeping down the sides of a volcano dormant for at least 5,000 years threatened today to bury the almost abandoned main town on Heymaey Island south of Iceland.

Only a few hundred volunteer rescue workers, police and firemen remained behind, hoping to save what they could on Iceland's most important fishing town.

The volcano Helgafjell erupted early Monday, tearing a two-mile-long rift across the 2½-mile wide island.

Clutching arms full of belongings, the 5,000 inhabitants were evacuated shortly after the eruption, fleeing as thousands of tons of burning lava, stones and ashes were hurled into the sky.

Rejects Petition

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Trade Commission today turned down a petition from an anti-smoking group which wanted it to move immediately against radio and television commercials for "little cigars."

The FTC said Congress should handle the problem, as it told the lawmakers yesterday in a report on the matter. The agency suggested in that report that Congress redefine the term cigarette for purposes of law so that "little cigars" would be covered, and their makers forced to adhere to the ban on broadcast cigarette commercials.

Continuance In Trial Is Granted

SANTA MONICA (UPI) — A superior court judge has granted a two-week continuance in the manslaughter trial of Susan Brophy, wife of former Assemblyman Bill Brophy, to await an appeals court ruling on a defense motion to supress evidence.

Mrs. Brophy is charged with felony manslaughter in the traffic deaths of Chris G. Panas, 48, and his wife, Elizabeth, 49, who were killed June 18 when Mrs. Brophy's car collided with theirs on Pacific Coast Highway.

Judge Laurence J. Rittenband Monday granted a continuance until Feb. 7 to await the appeals court decision on a defense petition to have blood samples taken after the accident disallowed as evidence.

Mrs. Brophy also is charged with one count of driving under the influence of drugs.

Park Use Policy Studied By San Anselmo Council

The San Anselmo City Council moved last night to draw policy on use of the city's Robson-Harrington Park in an effort to avoid future conflicts with the will governing the popular facility.

The council told parks director Gary S. Howell to draft a list of possible uses of the park for review by Robson Trust attorney Robert J. Dreher.

If guidelines provided by Dreher are too restrictive, the city will seek a court interpretation of the will governing uses of the park, according to Mayor Warren R. Perry.

The action came in the wake of a flap last November when city ownership of the park was jeopardized after Dreher learned the city had approved two political fund-raising parties at the Robson-Harrington Carriage House. The will governing use of the park and grounds prohibits political events or commercial ventures.

Dreher later dropped his investigation of the matter, saying the political uses were the result of an honest misinterpretation of the will. But the attorney warned the city he would go to court to seek reversion of the park to the Robson Trust if future violations occurred.

"We almost lost (ownership) of that park," declared Councilman Woodrow V. Capurro in urging development a clear-cut policy on rental and appropriate uses of the park. "As councilmen, if anything does happen, we're directly responsible," he added.

Councilman Martin G. Blinder urged colleagues to adopt "as liberal a policy as possible," saying the city should demand compliance only with those guidelines made specific by the will.

Howell, noting that the will is a broad and unclear document, said questionable uses of the facility include rental by individuals, rather than organizations, and consumption of alcoholic beverages at wedding receptions. "And how do we define an organization?" he wondered.

The 2.65-acre park was willed to the city in 1968 by the late Kernan Robson on condition the city pay $26,029 in back taxes, reserve use of the parcel for a "park and playground only," prohibit commercial ventures and not sell the land. The will governs use of the parcel until 1977.

In a later clarification of the document, Dreher told the city that use of the park for "political or semipolitical" purposes is also prohibited.

The city apparently violated the will when it approved a fund raiser at the park last summer for former supervisorial candidate William J. Filante and again in late October when Dorothy Blinder, wife of councilman Blinder, received approval for a similar event for former supervisorial candidate Barbara Boxer.

The San Anselmo City Council also:

PEACE — Heard Blinder declare the last 24 hours had been "momentous" in view of the death of former President Lyndon B. Johnson and the announcement hours later by President Richard M. Nixon of an imminent cease-fire and troop withdrawal in Vietnam.

DRAINAGE — Directed City Atty. Hadden Roth to review the city's legal position in connection with a drainage problem at 37 Carlson Court sparked by water which cascades from a pipe on Camino de Herrera.

APPEAL — Put over to Feb. 13 an appeal by James Cook of planning commission action which tabled his application for a use permit for a single-family residence at 28 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard.

LINCOLN AVENUE — Approved an appeal by William Waters of planning commission denial of a variance for improvement of a garage and construction of a breezeway and tool shed at 56 Lincoln Avenue. The council, faced with petitions by 31 neighbors who supported the improvement, said the commission action was inconsistent with the intent of the zoning ordinance and noted allowing the variance would save several trees.

HEALTH SERVICES — Put over a contract and fee schedule proposed by the county for inspections done in the city by the county department of health services.

TENNIS COURTS — Called for a joint meeting with the San Anselmo School District board at 8 p.m. Feb. 13 to resolve trustee objections to an agreement providing for joint funding of tennis courts at Red Hill School. At issue is total expense of the project, future maintenance of the courts and the status of the facilities should either side withdraw from the agreement.

FLOOD INSURANCE — Put over discussion of city entry into a federal flood insurance program until Feb. 13.

LIBRARIAN — Appointed Faith Merian as a junior librarian at a salary of $682 monthly.

STREET PROJECTS — Said plans to widen and install traffic signals at Sunny Hills and Shaw drives have been abandoned in the wake of school board and parental protest that the project would encroach on a nearby playground and school. Instead, the city will proceed with original plans to modernize traffic signals along Sir Francis Drake Boulevard from the Red Hill Shopping Center to the Fairfax City limits, according to City Engineer Charles T. Leitzell. The council also asked the county to provide $20,000 in matching funds from gas tax monies to improve signals and channeling at Red Hill Avenue and Sequoia Drive at Greenfield Avenue.

NEWSLETTER — Approved a proposal by Blinder for a bimonthly newsletter on council affairs and told staff to study the legal implications of such a service after City Atty. Hadden Roth noted the newsletter might enable city leaders to promote individual political aims. The newsletter, Blinder said, would be published free in a local weekly newspaper and is aimed at promoting citizen participation in government.

TOMPKINS PROPERTY — Referred to the citizens general plan committee for study a suggestion by Blinder that the city acquire the 1.5-acre Tompkins property across from Sequoia Drive and Bungalow Avenue. A house on the parcel should be preserved since it is the oldest in the city, Blinder said.

AERIAL SURVEY — Heard Blinder report his proposal to airlift city councilmen over the city for an aerial survey by helicopter would cost $135 an hour. Colleagues said the proposal would give them a new perspective on the city, but took no action on the matter.

TRUCKS — Awarded a $6,272 contract to Stan Wisnes Pontiac of San Rafael, low bidder, for two pickup trucks.

FEE — Set $25 as the fee for filing tentative parcel maps and $15 for map checking procedures.

BOND ELECTION — Formally called for a $500,000 open space bond election for April 17.

PROTEST — At the recommendation of the citizens general plan committee, declared the city will send letters of protest to President Richard M. Nixon and other federal officials in connection with a recent announcement that issuance of federal housing assistance money, public facility loans and open space acquisition funds has been halted.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to 8 p.m. Feb. 13.

SAN JUAN, P.R. (UPI) — Puerto Rico has one of the most equitable climates in the world with a seasonable variation of about six degrees in the coldest months, January and February.

Cease-Fire Pact Will Be Signed

government be dismantled.

Even though an end of combat was in sight, the war increased its tempo Wednesday and high-ranking U.S. military sources said in Saigon. U.S. ground troops, helicopter and plane crews will continue their present missions.

Intelligence experts foresaw intensive fighting between North and South Vietnamese units before the cease-fire becomes effective.

Of the further cease-fire arrangements which President Nixon hopes will bring "peace with honor" throughout Southeast Asia, Kissinger said the agreement concerning Laos would be a formal one to be negotiated by the warring sides.

The cease-fire in Cambodia will be a de facto cessation which will "come into being over a period of time," the President's chief peace negotiator said.

Kissinger declined to elaborate on further details of the additional cease-fire plans but said:

"It is our firm expectation that within a short period of time there will be a formal cease-fire in Laos which, in turn, will lead to a withdrawal of all foreign forces from Laos. And, of course, to the end of use of Laos as a corridor of infiltration.

The Cambodian situation is more complex, he said at the televised news conference, but he commented, "It is our expectation that a defacto cease-fire will come into being over a period of time."

The 587 American POWs the Pentagon says Hanoi holds will be evacuated by medical teams who will fly to Hanoi periodically.

All the prisoners are to be liberated and the remaining 23,700 American troops pulled out of Vietnam by March 28 under the agreement which is to be signed in Paris Saturday with Secretary of State William P. Rogers representing the United States.

It sets up a four-nation force of 1,160 men to supervise the truce and calls for an international conference within 30 days —probably in Vienna —to further guarantee the peace.

There was no reference to a withdrawal of the estimated 145,000 North Vietnamese troops in South Vietnam but Kissinger said any reinforcements would be prohibited. South Vietnamese and Viet Cong military contingents are to remain in place at the point when the cease-fire comes. The President's national security adviser said both the North Vietnamese and the United States "recognize that the South Vietnamese have the right of self-determination."

In Paris, Hanoi's chief negotiator, Le Duc Tho, who with Kissinger initialed the historic agreement Tuesday, said the negotiations were marked as "many particularly difficult and tense moments."

Tho described the conflict as "the most murderous war in the history of movements of national liberation by oppressed people in the entire war."

"This war profoundly distressed the human consciousness," he commented.

From Hanoi, the Soviet news agency Tass reported that North Vietnam Prime Minister Pham Van Dong hailed the cease-fire as a "great victory" and pledged his people would "march ahead in the cause of liberation of South Vietnam and the reunification of the homeland."

In Washington, Jerry Gordon, national coordinator of the biggest antiwar group, the National Peace Action Coalition (NPAC), said his group would go ahead despite the agreement with plans for an "out now" march on the Capitol Feb. 23.

Gordon claimed thousands of American advisers were still pouring into South Vietnam and "It is absurd to suggest that the signing of the agreement will inaugurate peace," he said. Kissinger said "we did not increase our demands" in negotiations with the North Vietnamese after a tentative agreement in October appeared to break down, followed by massive U.S. bombing of the North.

The United States, under the agreement announced to the nation by Nixon last night, will remove the mines sowed in North Vietnamese harbors while Hanoi will refrain from infiltrating troops and war supplies into the south.

The United States will be permitted to provide unlimited economic aid to South Vietnam and to supply military equipment replacement for the Saigon government forces.

The first test of Hanoi's good faith will come in the release of the American prisoners of war. The Pentagon says 587 are being held in North Vietnam and elsewhere.

The cease-fire will still the guns in the war 12 years after the first of 45,933 U.S. servicemen fell in battle in a country virtually unknown a decade ago by most Americans.

In his nationally televised 10-minute address, Nixon said "ending the war is only the first stop toward building the peace."

after the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

The departure from Texas was marked by a poignant scene harking back to the Kennedy funeral. When Johnson's body was transferred to the big blue and white plane, his grandson, Patrick Nugent, 5, saluted the coffin. The son of Johnson's younger daughter held his right hand at his eyebrow for two minutes.

It recalled the day of Kennedy's Washington funeral when his son John Jr., 3 at the time, saluted his father's casket as it was taken from the church for the procession to Arlington National Cemetery.

Johnson's body will lie in state all night beneath the ornate rotunda of the Capitol where he began his Washington career as a congressional doorkeeper 38 years ago.

Johnson's funeral is set for 10 a.m. EST tomorrow at the National City Christian Church. His body will be flown back to Texas for burial in a secluded hill country family cemetery.

Johnson's body had lain in state in a gray metal casket draped with a U.S. flag for 21 hours in the LBJ Library on the University of Texas campus.

At Bergstrom AFB, Tex., as the body was placed aboard Nixon's plane, a military band played "Hail to the Chief" and "Mighty Fortress Is Our God" and six Army howitzers boomed a 21-gun salute. Two hundred smartly uniformed members of the 2nd Armored Division and the 5th Army's "Hell on Wheels" Division ringed the jetliner as the Johnson family boarded.

Johnson will lie in state on the so-called Lincoln catafalque in the rotunda of the U.S. Capitol —the fourth time in a decade it has borne the remains of an American President.

Workers this morning placed the catafalque, a simple bier of boards covered with black cloth, in the middle of the rotunda at the exact center of the Capitol.

The catafalque was first used for President Abraham Lincoln and was last used in May for FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover. It also was used for honors for Presidents John F. Kennedy in 1963; Herbert C. Hoover in 1964 and Dwight D. Eisenhower in 1969.

2nd Shot Killed Haley—Thomas

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Judge Gary Thomas testified today that the shotgun blast that killed Judge Harold Haley outside the Marin County civic center in 1970 was the second fired inside the van where he, Haley and three others were held prisoner.

Testifying at the murder trial of Ruchell Magee, accused of killing Haley, Thomas said the first shot was fired by Jonathan Jackson at law officers outside the truck. No shots were fired at the van from outside before the blast that killed Haley, Thomas said.

Thomas was wounded during the incident and is partially paralyzed.

ing.

The lone dissenting vote was cast by Supervisor Michael Wornum, who said environmental and economic studies should be made before a decision is rendered.

Prompting the discussion was a proposal that the county finance an environmental impact report, which was requested last fall by Baptiste when he still was in the minority.

Yesterday, however, Baptiste urged the environmental report be scrapped as a waste of the taxpayers' money.

"I don't think an environmental impact report will make one iota of difference to the people of Marin," he said, adding his belief that opposition to joint use is countywide.

"I feel a policy decision is needed," he continued, "that the county of Marin is opposed to joint use of Hamilton."

He drew immediate support from Giacomini, who said he feared there would be no way to control commercial aviation if the Air Force ever abandoned the facility.

"I would rather explore alternative and improved uses of, Gnoss Field," he said.

Wornum countered that many arguments against joint use — such as pollution — may, in fact, be arguments in favor since statistics indicate more auto exhaust is created by persons traveling to San Francisco International than would be created by passenger jets flying out of Marin (on a per passenger basis).

He added that commercial flights out of Hamilton would lessen Marin's reliance on the auto and would create job opportunities — both called for in the proposed countywide plan.

Roumiguiere, meanwhile, said he wasn't convinced that joint use would be a detriment to the Novato area as some residents maintained.

He said criticism of the aviation commission was unwarranted since it had been following the direction of the board which in the past had urged joint use study.

Arrigoni, who last year agreed to write the Department of Defense saying a joint use plan would be forthcoming, likened the controversy to that which surrounded the Highway 17 extension which rocked the Ross Valley five years ago.

He said many of his constituents were opposed to joint use and therefore he wouldn't vote for it.

"No politician that supported Highway 17 is still in office," he reflected cautiously as he made the motion to oppose joint use.

Possibly most disappointed by the board's decision was Benjamin R. Ostlind, who drafted the first joint use plan in 1963 and has been a fervent supporter since.

"This will never be dead," he told the Independent-Journal after the meeting. "Nothing as important as this can be put down for political benefit."

Ostlind, who characterized yesterday's board action as "a sad display" since no public hearing had been called, said he had not expected Arrigoni to vote opposing joint use.

"I'm not through with this," he added. "I'll never give up."

Ostlind, as well as Alton Cox of the Greater San Rafael Chamber of Commerce, spoke briefly in support of the issue yesterday. But a parade of Novatans complained of noise and pollution.

Baptiste, who two weeks ago called for abolishment of the aviation commission, withdrew that proposal yesterday and suggested instead the commission be restructured.

After a session of give and take, the board compromised at leaving the commission at seven members, but giving three seats to Novato area residents.

Under the compromise, five members will be selected by supervisorial district, one on the recommendation of the Novato City Council and one at large from the Novato area.

With the proposal, approved 4-1 with Arrigoni dissenting, several members of the existing commission are expected to be axed.

Those include Richard P. Nave and David B. Vail, who were scheduled for reappointment, and Byron D. White, who represents Giacomini's district. Giacomini reportedly is looking for a replacement.

Joy Greets Nixon's Peace Announcement

It's hard to imagine how we got there in the first place."

Daphne Crawford Greene, 43, Willow Avenue, Ross, chairman of the board of the Graduate Theological Union in Berkeley: "My reaction is how does one have a peace with honor when the war began in dishonor? But I'm glad it's over."

Nancy J. Eitreim, 30, housewife, 17 Bolanose Drive, San Rafael: "I hope it's here. . .it's wonderful if it is. It's something we've all been working toward for a long time."

Kim M. Jnes, 23, housewife, 7 Elaine Avenue, Mill Valley: "I think it's a lie."

J. Curry Miller, 22, maitre d'hotel, 10 Kensington Court, San Anselmo: "If peace had been reached before Christmas, as was so cleverly announced, there might have been some cause for rejoicing. But most of us don't know how to feel when the war has gone on for so long and is apparently so politically manipulated."

Lucy Gutowsky, 48, housewife, 28 Echo Avenue, Corte Madera: "Very happy, of course. I have two sons, one 17 and one who took his physical but was never called. But I'm happy not only for them but for everyone else concerned. And happy for our country."

Mrs. Robert S. Nixon, 24, housewife, 627 Ignacio Boulevard, Novato: "I think it's fantastic if it goes through. I'm a little hesitant — we've been over there for so long. Both my husband and my brother spent a year over there. I'm so happy."

Bennett Wren, 44, clothing store owner, 2 Rolling Hills Road, Tiburon: "I'm very happy the war's over . . . I just heard Kissinger's speech. I want to read further what he has to say."

Mrs. Raymond H. Thayer, senior citizen who declined to give her exact age, housewife, 86 Culloden Park Road, San Rafael: "It's wonderful."

Mrs. Oscar Tiboni, housewife, 256 Montego Key, Ignacio: "Great — that's my reaction."

Carolyn Heinrichs, 34, secretary, 1258 Ramona Lane, Petaluma: "I don't know what to think about it. I'm tickled to death. It's about time."

Richard Lieb, 40, architect, One Highland Road, Petaluma: "It's great . . . that's what I think. I'm glad all the prisoners are coming home. Mr. Nixon seems to have gotten an honorable peace."

Carol Lloyd, 28, housewife, 120 Alma Avenue, Rohnert Park: "I think it's good if it works out. I'll believe it when the guys really come home."

Mrs. Earl H. Kissinger, 52, housewife, 206 Trestle Glen Terrace, Tiburon: "It's pretty wonderful, a step in the right direction. I don't know if Southeast Asia problems will ever be settled, I don't know enough about these things."

Frank Seewester, 22 hairstylist, 4 Belle Avenue, Fairfax: "I am a strong advocate of not counting my chickens before they are hatched. I really have no feelings at all yet, I'll have to wait until it is put in my hand. When every one is out of there and the fighting and dying is stopped, then it will be time to celebrate."

Mrs. Vera Miller, 63, housewife, 29 Valley Road, San Anselmo: "I am certainly all for it. They are making a great endeavor to make peace. Whether or not this is a permanent thing is another question. It certainly is wonderful news for the POW families and I pray it is true."

Mrs. Marie Dinger, 60, housewife, 400 Oak Court Road, San Anselmo: "I am very happy about it. I think things are finally jelling, they have been dickering long enough. I only wish it would have come a few days before so that former President Johnson could have known about it and before President Nixon's inaugural."

Mario Panichelli, 39, barber, of the Larkspur Barber Shop, Magnolia Avenue, Larkspur: "I am very happy about it, but I think it's kind of silly that they are not going to cease fire until Saturday — if they've ended it, it should be right away."

Mrs. Herb M. Kristal, housewife, 222 San Felipe Way, Novato: "At first I was wildly happy, but a lot of questions are being raised I have to think about. Just how much protection does South Vietnam have? This is what kept us in the war so long. I certainly hope this is a fair peace for all sides."

Gail O'Neill, Airline reservations clerk, 155 San Felipe Way, Novato: "I think it's fantastic that it is over. We're kind of holding our breath that it works."

Darlene Berg, housewife, 330 Marin Oaks Drive, Novato: "Finally . . . it could have been done long ago. We're anxious to get everybody back."

William Harrington, 19, print shop worker, 20-C Olive Drive, Novato: "It's great. I was just up for this lottery."

the 8 a.m. Sunday (7 p.m. EST Saturday), when the cease-fire goes into effect, unarmed U.S. helicopters will continue to fly administrative missions. But he said helicopter gunships and fighter-bombers would be ready to scramble to their aid if they are fired upon.

U.S. warplanes did not show signs of slowing down. During the 24 hours ending at 8 a.m. today, there were 348 sorties by American jet fighterbombers throughout South Vietnam, the U.S. Command said. In addition, B52 heavy bombers flew 29 three-plane missions in Vietnam and also hit Communist targets in Cambodia and Laos.

Before the cease-fire goes into effect intelligence experts predict heavy fighting as both the Communists and South Vietnamese move to consolidate their holds on contested territory.

There was a definite increase in Communist activity during the 24 hours ending at 4 p.m. today, military sources said. There were 116 Communist-initiated incidents, 80 of which were shellings, around the country during that period, they said. It was the highest level since 98 were reported Jan. 7.

Thirteen B52 strikes hit west of Quang Tri City, 404 miles north of Saigon. The demolished provincial capital is believed one of the prime targets of North Vietnamese-Viet Cong units in any landgrabbing assault.

She sent her son, Robert Jr., to school today so he would have something else to think about during the waiting period.

Little Robert, like the Butler children, knows his father only from pictures. Sheila Butler was three weeks old when her father was shot down and has never seen him.

The Air Force has told Jessie Hill that her husband was in line for a promotion. "But I'd rather have him home than any promotion," she said, gulping back a tear.

Pay Proposal Study Tonight

A proposal to pay salaries of up to $300 a month to directors of the Bolinas Community Public Utility District again will be considered by the district board at 7:30 p.m. today in the district office, 270 Elm Road.

At the board's meeting Saturday, it was proposed that salaries be paid to only two board members, Gregory Hewlett and Orville Schell. But Paul Kayfetz, Bolinas attorney, told the board that wages, perhaps up to $300 a month, would have to be paid to all directors if any are granted.

In the face of opposition from several residents who attended the meeting, the board continued the discussion until tonight's session.

Marion School Phase-Out Viewed

Novato Unified School District trustees, already considering closing Pacheco School in Raphael Village, looked last night toward eventual phasing out of Marion School in the downtown area.

Although the purpose of last night's discussion was originally to try to find a home for North Marin High School, now in a rented building which doesn't meet the state's earthquake resistant standards, trustees soon began speaking of long-range plans.

Trustees instructed the staff to develop plans to place North Marin High, the district's continuation school, in the district administration building at the Marion School site, move administrators to rented office space on San Marin Drive and move a portable administration building to Novato High School for an Air Force Junior Reserve Officers Training Corps building.

The vote was 6-1, with trustee Carolyn M. Crabtree, who opposed "accumulating three years of rent receipts" for office space for administrators, dissenting.

Originally, the board had planned to place North Marin High in portable buildings at the Marion School site at a cost estimated at $100,000.

Trustee Marret B. Boissevain had believed another choice would be to place North Marin High at Pacheco School, But Supt James C. Bunker said Indian Valley Colleges is interested in using Pacheco for classes.

Trustee William T. Eckhoff talked of "phasing out" Marion School and described the site, opposite the Novato Downtown Center, as potentially profitable.

Chairman Ronald D. Schenck said while the district administration was in temporary quarters, the board would have time to conduct a "feasibility study" on use of Marion School and prepare a long-range plan.

Boissevain said if the district abandoned Marion School, it probably could get enough money to build "a pretty good administration building and have some left over."

The Novato Unified School District board also:

BUDGET WORKSHOPS — Agreed to have the board as a whole, rather than a committee, conduct budget workshops with teachers and administrators, with dates yet to be set. Trustees said public comment would be welcome at the sessions.

WORK EXPERIENCE — Approved a five-year plan for work experience education after Alan L. Hopkins, district coordinator of vocational education, reported the program is "growing and popular" with students. At Novato High School, 155 students are in the program and at San Marin High School, 138.

SUMMER SCHOOL — Approved an outline for the summer school program, June 25 to July 27, for elementary pupils at Lynwood School and June 25 to Aug. 3 for junior and senior high school students at Novato High School and Hill Junior High School.

JOINT MEETINGS — Agreed to have joint meetings with the Novato City Council starting Feb. 27 at 7:30 a.m. at Sambo's restaurant.

GIFTS — Received $600 from the Lu Sutton School Parent-Teacher Association for Lu Sutton School and $228 from the Sinaloa Junior High School Parent-Faculty Club for equipment for the school library.

POSSIBLE HOLIDAY — Agreed that schools would be open Thursday unless Gov. Ronald Reagan declared it a state holiday rather than a "day of mourning" for the late President Lyndon B. Johnson.

INJURY CLAIM — Denied a $150,000 claim by Phillip H. Janer of 517 Fairway Drive in behalf of Nathan Janey for a broken jaw and tooth injury suffered on the Loma Verde School playground Nov. 20.

NEXT MEETING — The board adjourned until Feb. 6 at 8 p.m. at the Novato High School lecture hall.

Collegian Elected As School Trustee

HAWTHORNE (UPI) — A 19-year-old UCLA political science student won election to the board of trustees of the Centinela Valley Union High School District Tuesday to become the youngest school board member in the state.

Steven Ohren won the seat with a total of 777 votes of some 2,500 votes cast, defeating five other candidates. Runnerup was William J. Culhane, 18.

More Money Seen For Space Program

TOLEDO, Ohio (UPI) — Former NASA scientist Dr. Wernher von Braun Tuesday said "it would be reasonable to expect" more money will be spent on the space program now that the Vietnam War is ending.

"But the space program has always competed with other worthy programs and I expect it will continue to operate in a pinch like all the others," he said. Von Braun said he quit the program because there was a lack of money to implement plans and when "plans become dated, they become stale."

Boy, 6, Brings Aid To Injured Father

REDLANDS, Calif. (UPI) — When Kenneth Agerskov rode his motorcycle into a pothole on a deserted mountain trail and broke his leg, help was close at hand—his son, Greg.

Greg put a splint on his father's leg, built a fire and walked four miles to report his father's plight to a forest ranger, according to Agerskov.

Greg is 6 years old.

Court's Abortion Decision Lauded

The Planned Parenthood Association of Marin hailed Monday's Supreme Court decision knocking down state laws against abortion during the first three months of pregnancy as "the beginning of a new era of legal, safe abortions."

Mrs. Ian White, association president, said, "Planned Parenthood has always believed that abortion is a medical matter. Now we can reaffirm our position that preventing unwanted pregnancies is our primary objective, and we are pleased that we can concentrate more fully on contraceptive education. Our goal is to make every child a wanted child."

Alternate Program For Gym Suggested

Fearing the plans for a gymnasium at Rohnert Park Junior High School may hamper further construction of classrooms, the Petaluma Board of Education suggested last night working with the Rohnert Park Recreation Commission on a possible alternate program.

The board thought that because of a state law limiting square footage to be developed around the school, the gym could hinder construction of needed classroom facilities.

Despite the possibility of available financing for the gym, the board said, it still could not waive the need of the classrooms at the site.

The board said, however, it would be willing to try to work out a plan that would not penalize the educational program.

Beth Hoffman, a physical education teacher in the Novato Unified School District and a member of the Rohnert Park Recreation Commission, reported difficulities with indoor programs because of lack of a gym.

She said the City of Rohnert Park could provide some financial support.

James Pekkain, Rohnert Park recreation director, said he realized the program of square footage and suggested the city may be willing to change to double sessions at the junior high to enable the gym.

The Petaluma Board of Education also:

TEACHERS — Hired and set salaries for two new teachers, Corinna Gneri, $5,006 annually, and Norman Hansen, part time, $4,191.

RETIRED — Approved retirement of Warren Rose, a special education teacher at Kenilworth Junior High School, effective June 30.

MEETING — Agreed to meet next on Feb. 13.

El Cerrito Man Seeking Patrick Investment Back

An El Cerrito man filed suit in Marin Superior Court yesterday to void his distributorship with a firm in the William Penn Patrick empire and to get his $1,250 investment back.

The suit, filed by Berkeley attorney Peter N. Hagberg in behalf of Charles Smothers, claims Alexander Taylor and two of its employees, Lonnie Pitts and David Heath, made alluring promises but "have provided plaintiff with nothing for his $1,250 except catalogues and order forms."

The suit claimed Smothers would not have enlisted if he had known the clothing firm was not conforming to state laws barring "endless chain operations" and requiring disclosure of financial information.

The attorney general's office won an order two weeks ago from Marin Superior Court Judge Joseph G. Wilson requiring Alexander Taylor to furnish company recruits with financial data, although the company has appealed.

Smothers said he was promised that his distributorship "could be worth $100,000" and told he could "reasonably anticipate earning several thousand dollars a month." He signed up in 1971.

Inmates Beaten On New Church

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A federal court judge denied official recognition Tuesday to a convict-organized church whose rituals, he said, "seem to involve primarily, if not exclusively, the consumption of steaks and alcoholic beverages."

Judge Robert H. Schnacke's ruling concerned the "Church of the New Song" at San Quentin Prison.

He held that the suit filed by nine convicts seeking recognition was "patently frivolous."

The church was chartered by Kirby Hensley, who heads the Universal Life Church in Modesto, which has ordained thousands as "ministers."

Plan For Parks

A master plan for parks in the Strawberry area will be discussed by the Strawberry Recreation District board in an adjourned meeting at 8 p.m. today in the district office.

Finance Chief Likes Bond Idea

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Finance Director Verne Orr says there is "real merit" to canceling sale of construction bonds and building new projects with funds from the state's $852 million budget surplus instead.

Orr, chief fiscal adviser to Gov. Ronald Reagan, reported the proposal will be added to the governor's growing list of alternative ways to dispose of the surplus.

The list already includes rebates to income taxpayers and delaying imposition of the sales tax increase June 1. Orr said Reagan may announce his plan late next week.

Scrubbing the sale of nearly $860 million worth of authorized but unissued bonds was proposed by Legislative Analyst A. Alan Post, who opposes an income tax reduction. He said using cash instead of bonds to finance the construction would save taxpayers $447 million in interest payments.

Orr told the Senate Finance Committee during a hearing on Reagan's $9.26 billion proposed state budget that he had "deep reservations" about the Post proposal unless it contained a guarantee that the voter — approved bonds were effectively canceled so they couldn't be sold some time in the future and thereby double the amount of money authorized for the particular project.

Post suggested the state buy the bonds from itself at no interest cost and that the bonds never appear on the public market. He said this would cancel the possibility they could be sold later.

Orr told newsmen after the hearing the Post plan "becomes a feasible possibility to be considered along with return of the income tax and delay of the sales tax."

But outside the hearing room later, he seemed to toughen his position slightly when he told reporters that if the "bonds can be canceled-permanently canceled — and the money used instead, then I think there is a measure of real merit there."

The governor originally suggested that the surplus be rebated on a one-time basis to income taxpayers. He subsequently modified his position to the extent he would consider other alternatives as well, such as delaying implementation of the sales tax increase from five to six cents on the dollar.

California Fiscally In Fine Shape

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Controller Houston I. Flournoy reports the state treasury was bulging with $119,563,108 on Dec. 31, enabling California to complete the first half of the fiscal year without temporary loans for the first time since 1958.

Flournoy said Tuesday in a monthly report on the state General Fund that the cash status "contrasts sharply" with Dec. 31, 1971 when the treasury had $189,147 with a loan debt of $363 million.

Flournoy said cash receipts for the first six months of the current fiscal year totaled $2,588,178,225, a 29 per cent increase over the same period in 1971. Expenditures totaled $2,701,294,311, a 13 per cent jump over 1971.

Revenue sources during the six-month period included the sales tax, $982,743,466, up $26,162,079 from 1971; personal income tax, $818,152,759, up $410,553,436; and cigarette tax, $80,145,047, down $407,752.

Flournoy attributed the improved treasury status to state income tax withholding, which providing $658.3 million in revenue during the first six months of the current fiscal year.

Post Warns Tax Relief Clause Could Cost Taxpayers Plenty

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Legislative Analyst A. Alan Post has warned of an obscure provision of California's new property tax relief and school finance program that could cost state taxpayers billion of dollars.

The little-publicized section requires the state government to pay the bill of any new local government costs mandated by the legislature or executive branch and for any increase in the level of services already mandated.

Post told the Senate Finance Committee Tuesday that the legislature must develop some sort of guidelines immediately covering reimbursement by the state of local government costs.

He forecast that routine bills which sail through the legislature without opposition now will become "controversial"because they will have a major impact on state finances.

Post cited as an example the host of bills that create new superior court judgeships. Many pass the legislature easily and become law almost unnoticed.

But he said the legislature will want now to take a second look at such measures because in creating a new judgeship the bill also usually involves related support costs, such as a clerk for the judge, bailiff and office space.

Under the terms of the recently enacted property tax relief and school finance bill (SB90), sponsored by Gov. Ronald Reagan and Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti, those costs will become state costs, he said.

He told the committee that unless precise cost guidelines are adopted for virtually every bill with a fiscal affect, "You're going to be paying for things you never dreamed of."

Post added that guidelines should be adopted also that would assure that local costs would not be increased beyond what the legislature had intended through implementing regulations drawn by state and local agency bureaucrats.

Marin City Man Denies Safe Theft

A 21-year-old Marin City man, charged with taking a safe, thought to have contained thousands of dollars, from a Mill Valley home, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court.

Preliminary hearing for Kenneth Ray White was set for Feb. 6.

White, who, according to sheriff's deputies, tried to pass $1,000 bills in a Marin City store, was arrested Friday in a Marin City restuarant after a struggle during which deputies were kicked and trampled by a crowd of 70 to 100 persons, according to the sheriff's report.

One deputy reported being hit by a bottle and two others said they were assaulted by the crowd as they wrestled with White, but none was hospitalized.

James Cook, 25, of Santa Rosa, was arrested at the restaurant at 67 Drake Avenue, but Deputy Dist. Atty. Ernest C. Zunino said no charge will be filed against him until the case is investigated further.

Zunino said others may be charged as well.

The scuffle to arrest White was preceded by several anonymous calls to the sheriff's substation. Deputies first learned that a safe was being opened with an acetylene torch at 223 Drake Avenue, but two men fled as deputies arrived.

Inside the dwelling, according to deputies, was a safe door, acetylene and oxygen tanks and stereo equipment. The damaged safe was on the patio.

A subsequent call reported men trying to spend $1,000 bills at Smitty and Chuck's coffee shop.

The safe and stereo equipment had been taken shortly beforehand from the home of Leonard Lew at 32 Underhill Road in Mill Valley.

How much money was in the safe remained unknown today, but Deputy Dist. Atty. Ernest C. Zunino said there were at least some $1,000 and some $100 bills.

The final call reported White dropped three $1,000 bills during the scuffle with deputies. The cash was picked up by persons in the crowd, deputies said.

Victim Of Slaying From San Rafael

I-J Special Report

SANTA CRUZ — A San Rafael girl has been identified as the torso murder victim whose dismembered body has washed up in pieces on Santa Cruz and Monterey County beaches in recent days.

The murdered girl was Cynthia Ann Schall, 18, of 175 Clinton Court, according to Lt. Kenneth Pittinger of the Santa Cruz County sheriff-corone's office. Identification was made through fingerprints taken from the co-ed's right hand, found Friday by surfers at a beach near Capitola.

Miss Schall had been reported missing from a Santa Cruz home where she was a live-in babysitter while attending Cabrillo College, Santa Cruz Police Lt. Charles Sheer said. The city police are conducting the murder investigation.

The family with whom she lived reported she last was seen at 5:30 p.m. Jan. 8 when she left the Santa Cruz home to hitchhike to a 7:30 p.m. class at the college, about six miles away.

Sheer said investigators were almost positive that the hand, a headless torso found Jan. 17 at Natural Bridges State Park and a pelvis found Monday on the Santa Cruz beach all belonged to the same victim. However, he said, pathologists would not complete their comparisons of the remains until tomorrow.

The head, legs, arms and left hand still were missing today, Lt. Sheer said.

CYNTHIA ANN SCHALL
Murder victim

Investigators speculated the killer used a power saw and knife to dismember the body. Santa Cruz police have no firm leads to the killer's identity or where the murder took place, Lt. Sheer said.

Miss Schall was the daughter of Sue Schall McEvoy of San Rafael, and also is survived by a sister, Candice, 17, of San Rafael; a brother, Forrest Schall, 19, of Grass Valley, and her father, William L. Schall of Fresno.

Miss Schall was born in San Mateo. She attended St. Raphael's School and San Domenico School for Girls in Sleepy Hollow from 1960 through 1968.

Memorial services will be held Saturday noon at St. Sebastian's Church, Greenbrae. The family asked that memorial contributions be made to the Crisis Line, 1255 Post Street, San Francisco.

Cleaning Efforts On Birds Rapped

OAKLAND (UPI) — Dr. James Naviaux, a Pleasant Hill veterinarian who developed the technique for cleaning waterfowl soaked by oil, accused State Fish and Game employes today of sloppy and inadequate procedures in treating birds coated in Friday's 120,000-gallon oil spill in the Oakland estuary.

He said the birds did not receive initial shots of antibiotics and were cleaned with the wrong kind of solvent.

Law Student Released In Death Probe

I-J Special Report

OAKLAND — A 23-year-old law student has been released pending further investigation into the shooting death of a young Belvedere man, police said today.

Officers said there is insufficient evidence to charge Robert Prudhomme, 77 Fairmount Avenue, a second-year law student at Hastings College of the Law, with the slaying.

Homicide investigators are continuing their investigation into the murder of Jeffrey Simon, 26, of 330 Bella Vista. The body of Simon, a former commercial fisherman, was found early Monday, a bullet through the head, lying in front of an Oakland home.

Simon had been unemployed, doing occasional odd jobs at carpentry, and was apparently a well-liked person, investigators quoted as saying.

Found on his body were a College of Marin student body card, although records show he never had been enrolled there, and a Mill Valley post office box number.

Biggest Bird Egg

GREENVILLE, Del. (UPI) — The Delaware Museum of Natural History boasts the world's largest egg among its collection of 100,000 birds' eggs.

It is the 27-pound egg of the Elephant Bird of Madagascar, which has been extinct for three centuries.

MISS THE 'SWEET SPOT' ...who cares?

Fantastic new design for even weight distribution as written up in the leading golf publication. Weight is spread over a wider portion of the club face—even if the ball isn't hit exactly with the club's 'Sweet Spot', you still have to 25% more accuracy and distance. This makes the difference between hitting the green or missing it entirely. (Fact is, most golfers don't hit the ball with the 'sweet spot' every time, thus decreasing accuracy and distance.) The 'Pro Classic' club doesn't realize it hit the ball badly since all the weight is distributed evenly. So if you don't hit the ball perfectly every time, this set is for you. 'Self-Correcting' irons . . . they're here to stay!

MOVING DAY

Led by housing inspector LeRoy Thompson and cashier Virginia Dunn (foreground), staff members of the Marin County Housing Authority form a chain to move equipment into new authority offices at San Rafael's Northgate Industrial Park. The move yesterday from Marin City is designed to centralize operations, according to authority officials, and also enables added space. A small portion of the staff is to remain in Marin City for rent collection and tenant services in Southern Marin. The new office is at 47 Paul Drive.

Another 'Super Department' Is Proposed For County Govt.

A series of far-reaching proposals — including creation of another "super department" — was suggested yesterday by Marin County supervisors as part of their plan to streamline government by improving efficiency and services.

The proposals, termed "budget priorities" by the board, were greeted with enthusiasm by County Administrator John F. Barrows, who said it was the first time in 10 years with the county he had been given direction in preparing the county budget.

The administrator's office in the past has been criticized for "setting policy" when drafting a yearly budget which dictates expenditure and service levels.

Among the most sweeping proposals was one by Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. that study be given to consolidating all, or parts, of the planning, public works, and parks and recreation departments.

Work crews from parks and recreation might be mingled with crews from public works, for example, he said, giving greater manpower in the summer to parks and more manpower in the winter to public works.

Another reorganization, proposed by chairman Arnold M. Baptiste, suggested decentralization of the social services, mental health and probation departments.

Under this proposal, the departments would coordinate their programs through a "task force" working within Marin communities.

Supervisor Gary T. Giacomini's main proposal called for more assistance to the agricultural industry through larger staffs for the farm adviser and agricultural commissioner, larger state subventions and county help with waste water control problems.

Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere said his concerns centered on cutting the county's 1,600-man workforce by 2 to 4 per cent.

He said he also would be looking at services provided by departments during June budget hearings with an eye to reducing costs.

The main proposal from Supervisor Michael Wornum was an election to determine if voters are willing to increase the county transit district's tax rate of 5 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

He said opposition is being raised to construction of more roads in Marin and "if we're not going to build roads we have to put a lot more money into intracounty transit."

Wornum also urged continued landscaping of the Civic Center, saying that "more people come to Marin to see the Civic Center than anything else."

Other proposals suggested by Baptiste include a reduction in the sheriff's staff to reflect a decrease in unincorporated population caused primarily by the Terra Linda annexation to San Rafael.

$10,000 Put In Heerdt Marsh Fund

Marin County supervisors unanimously approved yesterday a $10,000 appropriation toward purchase of the Heerdt Marsh in Corte Madera, long viewed with concern by conservationists. (Another board of supervisors story, page 1.)

The $10,000 appropriation will be added to $10,000 raised by the Marin Conservation League as matching funds for a state grant conservationists hope to get to make up the difference in the land's $110,000 value.

The 74-acre marsh, located at the mouth of Corte Madera Creek, has been proposed for development six times and six times rejected by the Bay Conservation and Development Commission.

The Marin County Parks and Recreation Commission, in supporting the purchase, urged that the county share come out of the general fund reserve and not from the $700,000 allocated for open space last year.

The board disagreed and moved the funds out of the open space nest egg.

In related open space action, the board decided not to hold a tax rate election for the new regional park district but rather to seek special legislation exempting the district from SB 90, the state's property tax limitation law.

Meanwhile, in Sacramento yesterday, Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, said he would seek the special legislation next week if an attorney general's opinion on the Marin issue, due Friday, says a bill is necessary.

Bridge Collapse Blame Assigned

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The bridge scaffolding collapse which took six lives in Pasadena last Oct. 17 has been blamed on a combination of "inherent weaknesses" in the scaffolding, or "falsework," in the final report of a special investigating panel of engineers.

The report, released yesterday by the state Public Works Department, says the weaknesses, taken separately, "would not be expected to produce a total failure, but when combined in one location, proved disastrous."

Framework holding the Arroyo Seco Bridge for Interstate 210 collapsed while concrete was being poured. The report said the weight of the wet concrete was too much for the structure and triggered the collapse.

In releasing the report, the department said it was also taking legal steps to determine if the contractor — Polich-Benedict Constructors — will continue to be considered "a responsible bidder" for future state contracts.

Security Unit At Civic Center Cut

The Marin County Board of Supervisors yesterday reduced the Civic Center's 15-man security force by two positions and said another four will be cut in June.

The action came despite an appeal by Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos that security would be jeopardized by the trims.

The two positions cut are men assigned to the courts floor, though it is up to the sheriff whether he wants to make internal shifts to cover the reduced security.

The two men holding the positions will be phased out through attrition, the board said.

Four other positions recommended for deletion by County Administrator John F. Barrows provide security at the ground floor entrance to the sheriff's office and jail.

Mountanos said it would be unwise to cut the men until the proposed honor farm is operating in June to relieve jail overcrowding.

The board also agreed to keep the Civic Center Administration Building open until 11:30 p.m. on evenings the City-County Planning Council of Marin meets. Otherwise, it will close at 11 p.m., except Fridays and Saturdays, when it will close at 6:30 p.m.

Marin County Board of Supervisors Also:

WAR — Approved unanimously a resolution supporting the President's efforts to end the war in Vietnam; also disclaimed any part of an advertisement in Thursday's Independent-Journal by the Christmas Eve Peace Committee.

EMERGENCY — Approved unanimously a proclamation terminating the county-enacted state of emergency. The action does not affect homeowners' applications for disaster loans because of flooding.

LIBRARY — Approved on a 4-1 vote, with Supervisor Michael Wornum dissenting, closing of the Tamalpais Valley branch of the Marin County Free Library. The tiny library has experienced a downward trend in public use, according to county officials.

PARK AREA — Authorized a letter to the National Park Service, Department of Interior, and others, expressing concern over funding for purchase of Golden Gate National Recreation Area lands.

STUDIES — Authorized $19,000 for soils, geologic and hydrologic studies at the North Bay Front Park near Civic Center to provide information on siting of buildings, roads and utilities.

VOTE PURGE — Agreed to a recommendation of the county grand jury that the county consider introducing legislation to allow purging of voter lists every year. The proposed legislation will be reviewed at a later date.

WELFARE — Established a hearing officer procedure for general relief welfare cases. Such cases have been heard by the board but have proven time consuming. Asst. County Administrator Thomas F. Campanella will act as hearing officer. Applicants may appeal to the board.

MEETINGS — Approved an amendment to the bylaws of the juvenile delinquency prevention commission allowing for removal of members who miss more than two consecutive meetings.

HONOR FARM — Waived formal bidding procedures for $23,000 worth of renovation to the proposed new honor farm at the Nike missile site in Santa Venetia.

Poverty Worker Gets Jail Term For Extortion

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Poverty program executive Adam Rogers was sentenced to nine months in jail Tuesday on attempted extortion and battery charges.

The onetime troubleshooter for Mayor Joseph L. Alioto was arrested last October on 13 charges in connection with assaults on two poverty program officials. Police said Rogers, 28, and six other men demanded the poverty officials sign a $75,000 contract for 15 jobs.

The original 13 charges were reduced to attempted extortion and battery after Rogers' attorney negotiated extensively with the district attorney's office.

'Flying Squad' Will Combat Street Crimes

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A "flying squad" of 16 inspectors in plain clothes to combat violent street crimes against the elderly was formed Tuesday by San Francisco's Police Department.

Despite a 30 per cent reduction in street robberies last year, there were more elderly victims of pursesnatchers and muggers, chief of detectives Charles Barca said.

He noted the squad contains 13 veteran inspectors and said it would patrol on foot and in unmarked cars in areas where computers show a high incidence of crimes against the aged.

A similar "flying squad" was formed in 1949 and disbanded seven years later after a colorful career.

GOP Council Picks President

Robert B. Collyer of Tiburon has been elected president of the Marin Republican Council.

Other officers elected for the new year were Arthur Costamagna, executive vice president; Richard David, secretary; Rosendo Castillo, treasurer, and Roy Wonder, vice president for membership.

The council also set plans for its annual dinner dance on Feb. 10 at the Meadow Club in Fairfax, at which it will name the outstanding Republican of the year.

Terrorists Free U.S. Haiti Envoys

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (UPI) — Five Haitian terrorists today released U.S Ambassador Clinton E Knox and U.S Consul Ward Christensen in return for a government promise to fly them. 12 political prisoners and $70.000 ransom money to Mexico

They had been holding the diplomats at gunpoint since Tuesday night

A spokesman for the American Embassy in Port-au-Prince said the gunmen released Knox and Christensen unharmed at the airport at 11:40 a.m EST after the French ambassador intervened in the case

"The radio, which was covering the exchange at the airport live, said they were smiling and happy so I imagine they're quite all right." the spokesman said

A C46 plane of the government airline Air Haiti was ready to take off for Mexico with the five kidnapers, 12 political prisoners whose release they had demanded and $70,000 in cash aboard. Also aboard the plane were Mexican Ambassador to Haiti Armando Amador Duran, Papal Nuncio Luigi Barbarito and French Ambassador Bernard Dorin.

The embassy spokesman said the release of the hostages was the result of negotiations between the French, Mexican and Vatican ambassadors to Haiti as well as the Haitian government of 21-year-old President-for-life Jean-Claude Duvalier and special U.S. State Department envoys.

The gunmen had burst into Knox' private residence late Tuesday night and held him hostage against the political prisoners

Knox has been in Haiti for 3½ years He was the American ambassador to the regime of the late dictator Francois "Papa Doc" Duvalier and saw the country pass under the rule of his son

Knox, a native of Massachusetts, entered the foreign service in 1945 after earning a Ph.D at Harvard. He was consulor of the embassy in Honduras in 1963, ambassador to Dahomey in 1964 and won a State Department superior honor award in 1966. He is one of the few black career U.S. diplomats with an ambassadorial rank.

Items Are Stolen From Parked Car

James John Panagitaias of 158 Stetson Avenue, Corte Madera, told town police that thieves pried the right wing window of his Volkswagen when the vehicle was parked outside his home last Wednesday.

Stolen were sleeping bags, a tire and rim, a tool kit, a tent, a canvas tarpaulin, two tennis rackets and a pair of binoculars.

Marinview Residents Assured Of Close Look At Future Building

Worried Marinview residents won assurances yesterday from Marin County supervisors that new construction would not be approved if it is likely to cause a recurrence of last week's disastrous mudslides and floods

"You can be sure we're going to take a hard look . at future development." Supervisor Michael Wornum told a standing-room-only audience of Tamalpais Valley residents

The board's discussion of the Marinview situation was carried over from last Tuesday's meeting when Jo Julian of the Tamalpais Task Force requested the board to stop all construction

The area was hard hit by last week's storms, causing floods and mudslides in portions of the community. Hundreds of homes in the valley suffered varying degrees of mud and water damage

Irving Schwartz, a public works engineer, told the board 12 building permits requested by developer Allan-Marin have been frozen until spring at least.

Mrs. Julian said last week's problems should be used as a guide for future Marinview development, the next phase of which is pending further study in the planning department.

She noted a geologic survey of the area, done prior to the rains, indicated where problems would occur It was in those areas that they did occur, she said

She urged that present zoning be reviewed and density decreased, as well as possible consideration of a ban on building in areas listed as risk zones.

Other residents agreed, some calling for an independent survey of the danger to existing homes, immediate improvement of drainage and help in preventing new mudslides.

Several criticized developer Alan Allen of Allen Marin for failing to construct properly a "stump dump" near his subdivision and to include proper drainage within his development, which, in turn, caused flooding

Allen told the board he was "a convenient whipping boy" for many of the problems that have occurred during what he termed a 100-year rain.

He and his engineer, Kenneth Frost, said the geologic study cited by Mrs. Julian was taken out of context and could not be applied to specific sites.

He drew hoots from the audience when he told the board the only serious damage occurred when a house was knocked off its foundations.

Other residents told the board of the constant fear with which they live and urged county assistance.

Wornum told the board he would meet with homeowners to discuss an independent survey of hazards and would call a meeting of the Richardson Bay Flood Control Zone Advisory Board to discuss improving lowland drainage which acts as a bottleneck for waters draining from higher areas.

Mud Dredging Wins Approval

I-J Special Report

HAYWARD — Dredging of 77,000 cubic yards of bay mud off Sausalito was approved yesterday by the Regional Water Quality Control Board.

The maintenance dredging project by Sausalito Marine Corp will be in the deep water access channel to its boat repair facilities

Tests of the mud found it was polluted with organic material, the board's staff reported, but there was no financially feasible alternative to dumping the spoils off Alcatraz Island State and federal agencies concurred in the staff recommendation for approval, which was voted unanimously by the board.

Strawberry Unit To Pick Officers

The Strawberry Area Community Council will elect board members at 8 p.m. Monday in the Strawberry Recreation Center.

Eight seats will be up for election, according to Trudy De La Fontaine.

Supervisor Michael Wornum will chair the meetings and nomination from the floor will be accepted, she said.

Already nominated for the board seats are Joan Giacomino, Paul Trudel, Michael Adams, Phebe Brown, Katie Supinski, Stanley Gallagher, Marcel Ahrer and Monique Israel.

Discussion Set On Future Of Marin Transit

The future of Marin Transit Systems, the Marin City bus company disowned by county transit district directors, will be discussed at 9 a.m tomorrow on radio KTIM's "Marin Sounding Board"

Speakers will be Marin Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr.; Thomas T. Storer, attorney for the company; Marian Kelley, executive director of Wheels of Marin, a group which took over some of service being provided by Marin Transit, and a fourth person to be announced.

The program, for which questions are invited, will be repeated by tape at 10 a.m. Sunday.

Pact Can Bring Lasting Asian Peace—Mailliard

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON — The peace agreement hammered out in Paris can bring lasting peace to Southeast Asia, Rep. William S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District, said today.

Mailliard, who represents Marin and San Francisco, is spokesman for the House GOP on foreign affairs.

"One must be realistic about the peace," Mailliard told the Independent-Journal. "It can work provided everyone wants to make it work.

"There are some built-in incentives for North Vietnam to abide" by the agreement's terms, Mailliard explained. "The prospects of international assistance and reconstruction in which the United States might participate would seem to be advantageous to Hanoi."

Mailliard didn't regard the peace pact as providing any new detente between the U.S. and either Moscow or Peking, "but it obviously removes an impediment to better relations."

Mailliard foresaw no difficulties with Congress on approval of the pact negotiated by President Richard M. Nixon and Dr. Henry Kissinger — "but that doesn't mean the President may not run into difficulties with the Congress later" on programs Nixon may propose to follow up on the peace.

Mailliard said the agreement met no criticism when it was presented by Kissinger in a briefing session with 20 to 25 Congressional leaders today.

"Scoop Jackson (Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash.) questioned the President and Kissinger" rather sharply "but seemed satisfied," Mailliard reported. "Even Bill Fulbright (Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark.) said only that the peace should have come sooner."

Neither did Mailliard think that the agreement faced any difficulties with the Saigon government.

"It's rather interesting — the agreements provide North Vietnamese troop withdrawal from Laos and Cambodia," but not specifically from South Vietnam. "The release of U.S. prisoners of war by the Communists is equated with U.S. troop withdrawal rather than the release of North Vietnamese prisoners of war," he said.

Mailliard said this was a victory for Nixon because for months the negotiations were stalled by an attempt to equate release of U.S. POW's with political and civilian prisoners held by Saigon.

"This was a nightmare... one thing the President couldn't stand for," Mailliard said.

Lots Of Garbage

WESTPORT, Conn. (UPI) — Authorities estimate that each person in the United States generates 5.5 pounds of solid waste per day.

Reagan In Praise Of Viet Action

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan, declaring President Nixon followed a plan "from the very beginning" to bring a cease-fire in Vietnam, said last night he was "grateful to God for what has taken place and that at last this war has ended."

"The President has from the very beginning followed a plan," the Republican governor said. "It was a plan in which he had the courage to stick and not be diverted by those who would have had him falter or go for less than what was total justice for the people who have been our allies."

"I think all of us are grateful to God for what has taken place and that at last this war has ended," Reagan observed. "And grateful especially that the brave women and children whose husbands are prisoners of war or missing in action have at long last, as the president said, had their vigil ended."

Growers May Get Loss Loans

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Marin and Sonoma and 23 other Northern and Central California counties may be eligible for emergency loans to cover farm and economic losses caused by the December freeze if a state request to declare the county a disaster area is approved.

Gov. Ronald Reagan made the appeal yesterday to U.S. Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz. Reagan said the counties suffered $210.2 million in freeze damage, the heaviest to farm and nursery stock.

Damage to arin County, in which temperatures dipped into the teens during December, was estimated at $1,025,000. Sonoma losses were put at $50,000.

Reagan said a disaster designation by Butz would make individuals eligible for emergency, low-interest, long-term loans to help them overcome effects of the freeze.

Novato nursery owner Rick Burgi said damage to his stock was extensive.

"Actually, it's a lot worse than we originally expected," Burgi said. "Plants we thought would come back are not coming back, they're just dead."

Socks Can Tell

NEW YORK (UPI) —You can tell a man's character by the socks he wears, according to a noted British psychiatrist.

Thieu Announces Pact, But Rules Out Any Collaboration

SAIGON (UPI) — President Nguyen Van Thieu announced a cease-fire agreement today that ends South Vietnam's 18-year war with North Vietnam, but he ruled out any collaboration with Communists.

Real peace, he said, depends entirely on the Communists.

"After 18 years of what the Communists call a liberation war and destruction throughout South Vietnam," Theiu said in an emotional 40-minute national radio address, "they have been forced to stop the war because they have no more power to fight."

He said all parties to the conflict would sign an agreement Saturday, Saigon time, with a cease-fire coming into force Sunday throughout the country.

"My God, that's good news," a car washer listening to the broadast shouted.

But many other Saigon residents did not hear the broadcast and did not know about the end-of-the-fighting announcement. Some others who did know appeared to take the news casually, saying they would wait to see what happens before celebrating.

Along Highway 13, a major battle route north of Saigon, newsmen stopped army patrols to ask if they had heard about the cease-fire. None had—and continued their patrols.

Thieu's voice sounded strained at times during his speech.He raced through several phrases and listeners could hear him gulping for air.

"There will never be an abolition of the government of (South) Vietnam in favor of the Communists or a pro-Communist neutrality," Thieu said, warning against Communist "tricks" and "ploys" in the coming days.

"They (Communists) will take advantage of every chance they have," he said. "They probably will try to do something before the international supervisory teams get here."

He said Saigon would have difficulties until the moment the Communists show they will respect the provisions of the agreement. He said that peace was not guaranteed just because of signatures on a treaty.

Thieu always has demanded that any peace agreement recognize the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) at the 17th parallel as the dividing line between North and South Vietnam. He also has demanded the withdrawal of North Vietnamese troops from South Vietnam and refused to accept a coalition government with the Communists.

But Thieu said the National Liberation Front (NLF) can take part in South Vietnam elections and he also agreed to negotiate with NLF leaders on domestic political matters.

Tho Describes Peace Obligation

PARIS (UPI) — Hanoi Politburo member Le Duc Tho said today the "murderous" Vietnam War shook humanity profoundly and that the fight during the years of American involvement were the most difficult of North Vietnam's 30-year-old war for independence.

The Hanoi diplomat, who negotiated the cease-fire agreement with Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, said that to guarantee a durable peace, "all parties have the obligation strictly to execute the agreement."

"The just cause has won against the evil cause," he said. "The will to live freely won out over cruelty. Our people... will have to reconstruct their country, devastated by war, and consolidate and develop relations with the peoples of the world, including the American people," Tho said.

In answer to newsmen's questions, Tho outlined details of the agreement and said American personnel would go to North Vietnam to supervise the demining of rivers and estuaries. President Nixon had ordered the mining last year to cut off war supplies for the North Vietnamese military.

Tho skirted questions on the relations of Hanoi with South Vietnam. He said after peace was concluded, the PRG would set up its government "in a definite location in South Vietnam and you will know about that."

Tho told newsmen:

"The resistance of the last 13 years was the most difficult . . . in the centuries-old battle of our people against foreign invasion."

Tho, holding a rare news conference, told hundreds of journalists: "It was the most murderous war in the history of movements of national liberation by oppressed people in the entire world.

"This war profoundly disturbed the human consciousness."

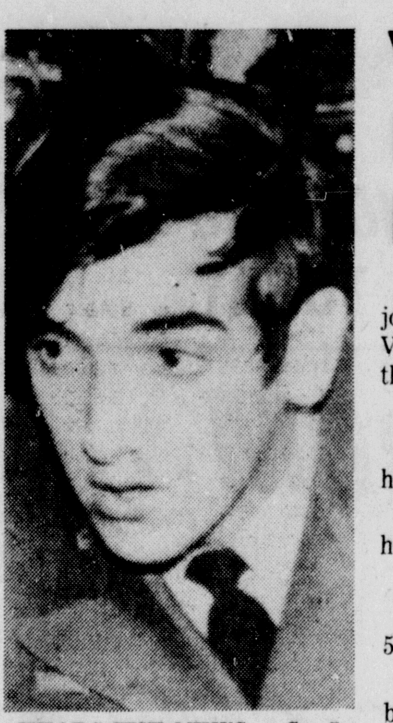
Tho said the negotiations between North Vietnam and the United States lasted nearly five years and "knew many particularly difficult and tense moments."

Valuable Bust To Be Auctioned

SHIPLEY, England (UPI) — "Fred" stood for years in the front entrance of Brian Smith's barber shop. Customers threw their hats on him.

Smith said today that "Fred" actually was the Duke of York, a Georgian marble bust worth as much as $94,000. He will sell it at an auction March 28.

Smith said eight years of research identified the 28-inch high white marble bust as the work of Joseph Nollekens. It has been tentatively identified as the long-lost original portrait of Frederick Augustus, second son of King George III, who lost the American colonies during his reign from 1760 to 1820.



HEARS THE NEWS — Sp. 5 Ronald Marrs listens intently as President announces on TV a cease-fire agreement in Vietnam. Marrs and about 60 other soldiers heard the speech last night at the Oakland Embarkation Center from where they were expected to leave for Vietnam in the next few days.

Woman Heads UC Academic Senate

BERKELEY (UPI) — For the first time, a woman presided Tuesday over the University of California's Berkeley campus Academic Senate.

Herma Hill Kay, 38, a law professor, was elected last June but was on leave in the fall.

She had told the faculty she prefers to be called "chairperson" rather than "chairman" and said no bylaws change was necessary, since it was a matter of personal prerogative.

War's Cost In Money, Lives Given

—Americans held prisoner: 589 confirmed.

—U.S. deaths from noncombat causes (accidents, illnesses, murders, etc.) 10,298.

—Other allied dead: 5,225.

Civil War Raids

FRANKLIN, Ohio (UPI) — Confederate raiders made many sorties across the MasonDixon line during the Civil War, reaching their northernmost point on the outskirts of Franklin, some 30 miles north of Cincinnati.

North Vietnamese Troops May Remain In South Under Pact

WASHINGTON (UPI) — No specific provision is made in the cease-fire agreement to require withdrawal of North Vietnamese troops from South Vietnam, but the United States expects these troops to be reduced by attrition if Hanoi abides by the accord.

Presidential Adviser Henry A. Kissinger, at a news conference, said today "our judgment is that North Vietnam cannot live up to the agreement without a reduction in the North Vietnamese forces in South Vietnam, without this explicitly being stated."

North Vietnam is said to have an estimated 145,000 troops in the South and President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam had demanded their removal as part of any cease-fire pact. Thieu, who put North Vietnamese strength at about 300,000 in the South, argued that the presence of these forces violated his nation's sovereignty.

Kissinger said the agreement prohibits military movement across the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) dividing North and South Vietnam, as well as infiltration through Cambodia and Laos and introduction of any new military troops into South Vietnam.

Under those terms, he said, North Vietnamese troops were bound to be reduced gradually by attrition.

The 23-article agreement apparently lumps North Vietnamese troops together with Viet Cong forces, which are required to stop fighting but permitted to hold their positions in South Vietnam. North Vietnam never has acknowledged the presence of any of its troops in the south, but the issue was a major obstacle to a peace settlement.

No Charges Filed Against Five Youths

No charge has been filed against five teen-age boys — including the son of former baseball star Vernon (Lefty) Gomez — who were arrested Saturday by Ross police on suspicion of burglary.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Ernest C. Zunino said today he is awaiting further information before filing a charge, but said he has no evidence the five were committing a burglary.

Ross police jailed them on the belief they were trying to break into one of the girls' dormitories at Katharine Branson School.

The five are Duane Charles Gomez, 19, of Fairfax; Joseph Paul Dismuke, 19, whose parents operate Fairfax French Laundry; Mark Alfred Daubenfeld, 18, son of Alfred F. Daubenfeld, a member of the Fairfax Board of Review; David Lowell Seagle, 18, and Gene Francis Gilbert, 18, both of San Anselmo.

COFFEE, SWEETS

KNEADING MASA, dough for the small Argentinian meat pies called empanadas, Senora Jaime Pera prepares to make the goucho finger food to sell at St. Hilary's Parent-Teacher Group's Foreign Food Fair on Sunday at the church's Lydon Hall in Tiburon.

Jause Time Is Soul Of Austria

Jause (yowl'za) time in Austria is the time for afternoon coffee and a sweet.

As the town hall clock strikes four, the streets of every village and city bustle with activity. Men rush from the places of business to the nearby coffee houses to exchange news and views of the day. Women take this opportunity to cluster in neighborhood homes for that palatable break from household routine.

Whether it's a public coffee house or a private home, the jause tradition is the same — several cups of steaming hot coffee accompanied by a Viennese pastry or some similar piece de resistance — topped with a generous helping of friendly conversation.

ONE POPULAR jause pastry is a light, fluffy rolled cake called a roulade which has been filled with a mixture of toasted almonds, diced Austrian Swiss cheese and apricot preserves. A topping of powdered sugar coats the surface giving it the appearance of a long slender jelly roll.

The jause tradition may be typically Austrian, but having a jause in your home once in a while would be a delight.

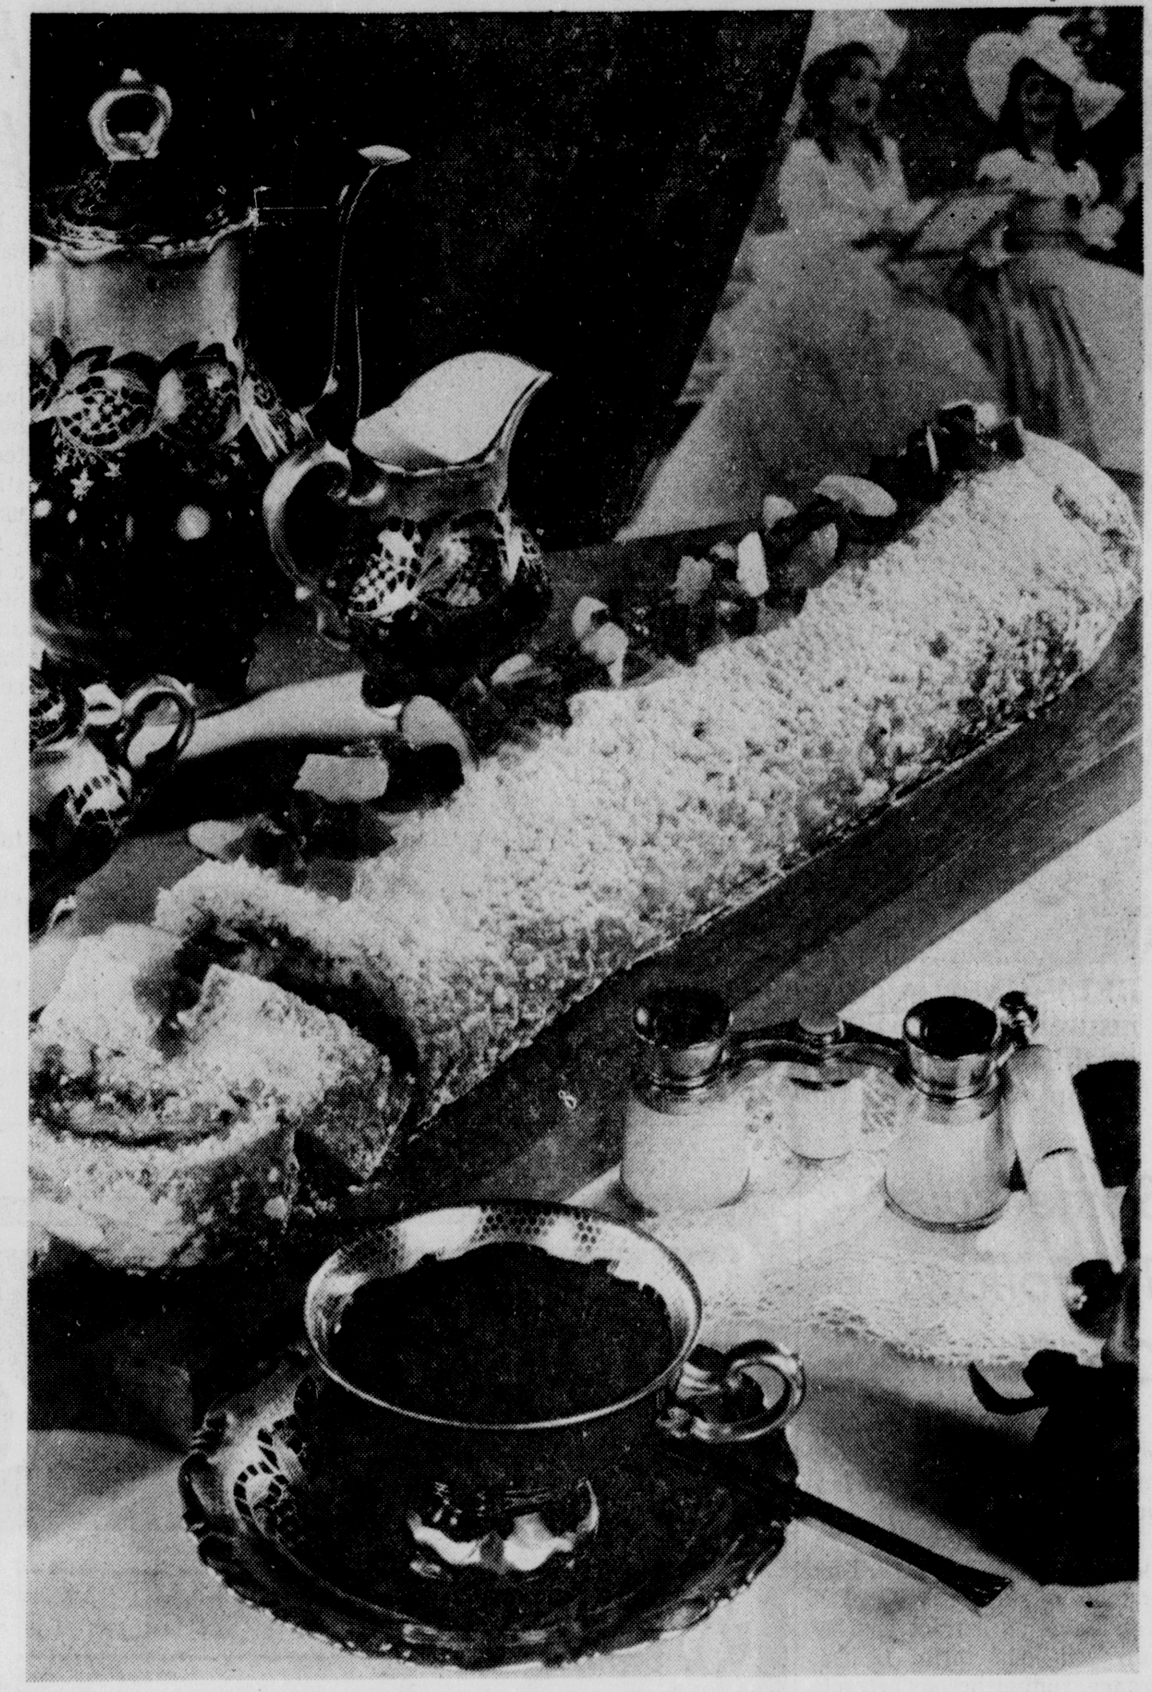
ROULADE

4 eggs
¾ cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
⅔ cup sifted all-purpose flour
¾ teaspoon baking powder
½ cup chopped toasted almonds
1 jar (12 ounces) apricot preserves
1 package (6 ounces) Austrian Swiss cheese, finely diced
Confectioners' sugar

In a large bowl, beat eggs until very thick with an electric mixer. Beat in sugar 2 tablespoons at a time until very thick and mixture holds its shape. Fold in vanilla, flour and baking powder. Line a greased 15x10x1 inch jelly roll pan with wax paper and then grease the paper. Pour batter evenly into pan. Bake in a preheated hot oven (400 degrees) for 12 to 15 minutes or until lightly browned. Do not overbake!

Spread a kitchen towel with a thin layer of confectioners' sugar. Turn cake upside down onto sugar and carefully strip off wax paper. Roll up cake starting at the 15 inch side in the towel. Cool. Unroll carefully and spread with apricot preserves. Sprinkly evenly with diced cheese.

Roll up again and place on serving platter. Sprinkle with confectioners' sugar. Cut into thin slices and serve topped with sweetened whipped cream, if desired. Makes one 15 inch roll.



IN AUSTRIA Jause time means time off wherever you are for a hot cup of coffee and a pastry — such as a roulade, a light fluffy jelly and nut roll with diced Austrian Swiss cheese

Argentinian Cooking To Be A Sunday Speciality

Authentic Argentinian cooking will be featured at the Foreign Food Fair at Lydon Hall in St. Hilary's Church in Tiburon on Sunday from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Senora Jaime Pera, who teaches music, Spanish, physical education, ballet and choir at St. Hilary's School, will contribute her empanadas and other gaucho food made "not the long way that my mother would, but with short cuts."

Graciela Pera was born in Concordia, Entre Rios, Argentina to an Army officer and his wife. Her seven-year "high school" program in which she studied 12 solid subjects a year corresponds roughly to American high school plus college.

During those "beautiful years I studied quite a bit," earning degrees in teaching, ballet, music and folklore, she said.

The busy teacher said her home life in Mill Valley was pleasant and "very noisy" because each of her three sons wants to play his instrument with her in the evening.

"My family has been eating so much this week because I have been translating recipes and figuring American measurements," said the Argentinian, who offers these recipes.

EMPANADAS

Picadillo
(chopped filling)

2 yellow onions
5 green onions
1 large, fresh, very ripe tomato (or two small)
1 teaspoon paprika
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
Dash cuminseed
1 cup pitless olives
3 hard boiled eggs
1 cup raisins
2 lbs. ground round steak
½ teaspoon granulated sugar (optionel)
2 tablespoons Crisco shortening

Saute onions carefully; do not burn. Add meat and brown. Run hot water over tomato, peel, cut up and add to meat. Cook at medium heat on range about 30 minutes. When done, add cut up boiled eggs, raisins, sugar and olives. Cool and place in refrigerator for two hours before assembling into three dozen small meat pies.

Masa
(dough)

8 cups flour
2¾ cups water
½ teaspoon salt
½ lb. shortening

Place shortening in hollow in flour. Work with hands until it is mixed in thoroughly, adding salted water little by little. Then knead dough until you can shape it into a big ball. Cover and let stand for 15 minutes. Then flatten with hands. Take a piece the size of an egg and roll into a ball. Flatten into a six or seven inch pancake with a rolling pin.

Place a piece of picadillo the size of an egg on the diameter of the masa pancake. Then wet the edge of half the pancake. Fold exactly in half and crimp.

Place on rack above the middle of oven at 400 degrees for about 12 to 14 minutes.

Senora Pera recommends empanadas be made ahead and frozen. Arrange on floured paper layers in box. Serve as entree or make half size for appetizers.

Spotlight On Apples This Week

Apples capture the attention of "Kitchen Time in Marin" host Diane MacMillan this week. She shares a recipe for tarts.

FRENCH APPLE TART

Prepare a double pastry for a nine-inch pie plate. Line the pie plate with half the pastry and arrange a lattice topping on a sheet of waxed paper with the other half of the pastry. Chill while preparing the filling.

6-7 cooking apples
½ cup dry white wine
½ cup cold water
1 cup sugar
2 tablespoons butter
1½ teaspoons vanilla extract
Dash nutmeg
2 tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca or cornstarch dissolved in a few tablespoons of water

Peel, core and slice the apples into a 10 inch skillet. Add the wine, water, sugar, butter, vanilla extract, nutmeg and the tapioca or cornstarch. Cook until apple slices are just slightly tender. Do not overcook to the mushy stage. Cool filling slightly. Turn into a chilled pastry shell, slide the lattice topping on, crimp edges. Bake at 375 for 35-45 minutes or until the crust is golden. Cool the pie, then dust generously with powdered sugar.

Serves eight.

"In America cinnamon is popular in apple pie, whereas in France it is vanilla flavoring. This is a delicious and unusual variation of apple pie," says the cook.

Almond Veal Imperial Is Elegant Entree For Party

Entertaining doesn't come to a halt after the holidays, it merely takes a different turn. The direction is away from the large open house and toward small dinner parties and luncheons.

½ cup slivered almonds

Brown veal cubes in cooking fat. Pour off drippings. Sprinkle meat with salt. Add celery, onion, green pepper, pimiento and mushrooms (including liquid). Combine and add mushroom soup, water and soy sauce. Cover tightly and cook slowly 45 minutes, stirring occasionally. Stir noodles and sour cream into veal mixture and place in a greased 2½-quart casserole. Sprinkle top with almonds. Bake in a slow oven (325 degrees F) for 30 minutes. Eight servings.

Some 20,000 families buy a new range every day in the U.S.

A Good Starter

RELY ON oven cooking bags to insure moist, tender entrees such as this lamb and vegetable bake. All ingredients go into the oven bag and then into a preheated oven. A quick and easy meal that tastes mighty good.

Hearty Oven Dinner: Lamb And Vegetables

Here's a quick way to prepare an oven meal. It's a flavorful combination of vegetables and lamb pieces cooked the new oven bag method.

Oven bag cookery is becoming increasingly popular. And no wonder! It assures moist, tender entrees without a single stir or basting brush even when using less tender cuts of meat.

Lamb and Vegetable Bake is a modern version of Shepherd's Stew. Potatoes, green beans, and lamb pieces are major ingredients, and a convenient soup mix supplies the seasonings. All ingredients are placed in a family size brown-in-bag and cooked about one and one-half hours. That's all there's to it.

Serve a tossed salad and bread sticks with lamb and vegetable bake. It's a hearty, nutritious dinner that's mighty easy on the cook.

LAMB AND VEGETABLE BAKE

- 1 lb. boneless lamb, cut in 1 inch pieces
- 3 tablespoons flour
- 1 envelope dry onion gravy mix
- ¾ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon monosodium glutamate
- dash pepper
- 1 cup water
- 2 medium potatoes, cut in ¼ inch slices
- 1 package (10 oz.) frozen green beans, thawed

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Place family size (14" x 20") brown-in-bag in two-inch deep roasting pan. Add lamb. Combine flour, gravy mix, salt, monosodium glutamate, and pepper; stir in water. Pour mixture over meat. Top with potato slices and green beans. Secure bag with twist tie and make six half-inch slits in top. Cook for 1½ hours or until tested tender.

Makes: four servings.

A Hearty Salad

Treat your family or friends to a hearty luncheon salad. For each serving, drain canned cling peach halves and place two halves cup side up on a bed of shredded lettuce. Into each peach half, spoon a combination of deviled ham, pickle relish and chopped hardcooked eggs. Top with dollop of mayonnaise.

For Parties

Use a silent butler during parties. This is a handy gadget that looks like a little dustpan with a lid.

Ideal For Pork

Accent the flavor of roast pork or pork chops with tangy hot peaches. Stir a spoonful of mango chutney into mayonnaise and spoon a little into canned cling peach halves. Sprinkle lightly with flaked coconut and heat in hot oven about 10 minutes.

Some Rules To Follow On Flaming

NEW YORK (UPI) — Desserts can be flamed without difficulty if you observe a few simple rules:

Use either a beverage with alcoholic strength of 20 per cent or more or sugar cubes soaked with flavoring extract just before you light them. Lemon, orange, rum or brandy extracts are good choices.

Liquor or liqueurs need not be warmed if the dessert itself is warm or hot. Pour the beverage over it and touch a lighted kitchen or fireplace match to the surface of the dessert immediately. Use a long-handled spoon to pour the flaming liquid repreatedly from the serving plate over the dessert until the flames die.

If you do warm the beverage for flaming, do it in a longhandled container; a butter melter or a tiny Turkish coffee maker are useful over a candle or other low flame only until a lighted match held just above the surface lights the rising fumes.

For safety's sake, never try to carry a container of flaming beverage across a room and never pour directly from a bottle onto the food to be flamed.

A Pancake Topping

Finely chop ham or canned luncheon meat into your next favorite pancake recipe. Serve your hot pancakes topped with hot apple sauce.

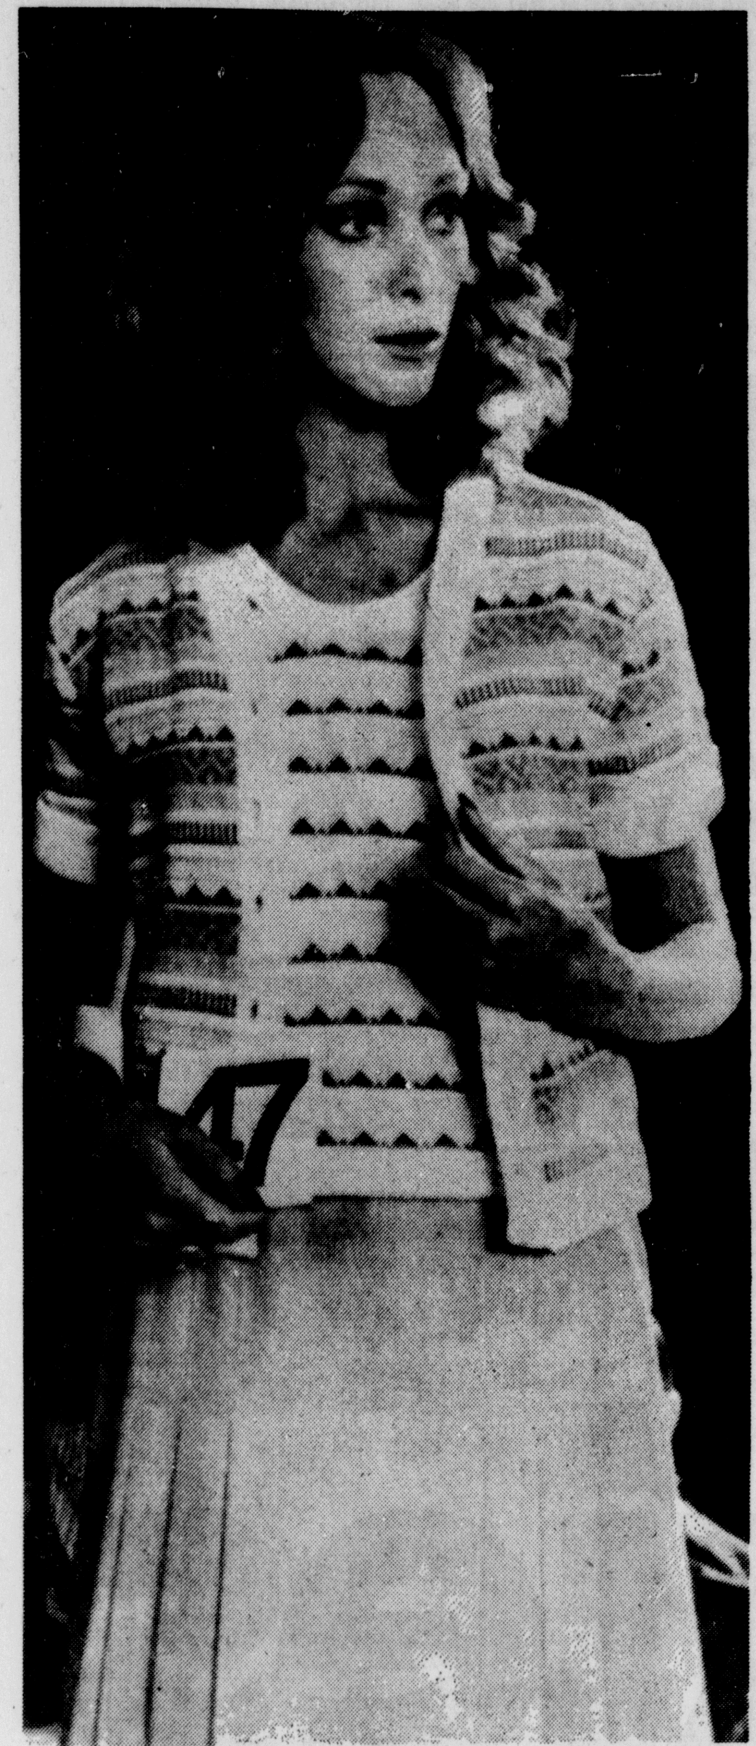
FOR SPRING, SUMMER

New Paris Fashions No Sensation



PLEATED, TUCKED and dirndl skirts were the highlights for spring and summer wear in Paris. Printed shirts, a wide bolero or a short-sleeved short jacket left open to the waist doubled with the revival of the pleated skirts. Here Pendleton introduces a sweater set for Spring, a nostalgic reminder of the "Sweater Girl" of the 40's. The pattern on pattern multicolor intarsia pattern cardigan with sleeveless pullover is combined with a pleat and panel skirt.

SHORT CHIFFON evening dress in the Valentino collection for spring and summer is printed with violets and trimmed with ruffles. The quilted jacket has a bouquet of violets at the neck. Paris couture has concentrated on the waistline and fuller skirts with white the spotlight in crepe and chiffon.

By ALISON LERRICK

PARIS (AP) — The Paris couture collections for spring and summer opened Monday. It would be nice to say the clothes look sensational, but they don't.

So far, the most important things are the omnipresent waistline and fuller skirts than ever.

At Louis Feraud, the skirt is a dirndl or just a floppy one cut on the bias. It comes with a printed shirt and wide bolero or a short-sleeved short jacket left open to the waist.

Sometimes, it's mini. For evening, the skirt is long in pink or green "gingham check" voile with a ruffled top.

THE COLORS are definitely not sedate. In checks, stripes and splotches, Feraud uses red, lime, turquoise and navy. His favorite shade is royal blue.

His pants, in white crepe, canvas or pique, are loose and baggy. They come with overblouses that skim the body to the hips or with stiff quilted boleros.

And, as for a few fun ideas, there are the blue satin bathing suits, trimmed in lace and definitely too mini to be a dress.

Society courturier Jean-Louis Scherrer has gone a bit pleat happy this season.

If something is not pleated all over, it's tucked. In fact, if Scherrer has his way, the white pleated skirt will regain all the ground it has ever lost.

IN CREPE and chiffon, white is classic all alone, and many of the dresses are a bit heavy on the "tennis, anyone?" side. For those who prefer the yachting look, there are dozens of suits in red, white and navy, piped of course.

Prettier are the long white pleated skirts or loose crepe pants with a long navy knitted jacket, sashed at the waist.

When Women Are Winners Everyone Is, Speaker Says

By BETTY FROST

If women win, everybody wins, Victoria B. Harding, told the Mill Valley Branch of the American Association of University Women yesterday.

Speaking on "women as winners", Mrs. Harding said that in her view winning has nothing to do with choosing up sides, nor does it mean that someone must lose because someone else has won. "The way to winnerhood," she said "is to develop the individual's unique potential."

In order to realize that potential the individual must become aware of his own condition and the factors, such as cultural forces and parental attitudes, which have influenced him.

Armed with such awareness, the individual is prepared to entertain options and make decisions, she said.

SHE INTRODUCED theories of Dr. Eric Berne on structural analysis, dealing with the human personality, and transactional analysis, concerned with the interaction of human beings.

Each individual's personality is made up of parental, adult and childlike states, according to Berne's theory. The parental state involves authoritatrian concepts; the adult state is devoted to evaluating factual material, and the child state encompasses the emotional spectrum from rage through delight, she explained.

The 60 women attending the morning session at the Mill Valley Library were asked to divide into small groups and consider their parents' opinions of the roles of men and women. From the input of these small groups, the stereotype role of women was established as subservient, quiet, irrational, weak, with the highest goal marriage and motherhood. Men, in the customary view, were seen as strong, leaders, intelligent, aggressive and the bread winners.

"Women are admired for what they are, and men for what they accomplish," the speaker summed up. "However all the data shows that there is no difference in intellectual abilities between the sexes, although there are great differences among the individuals in each sex."

THE DIFFERENCES come from powerful conditioning of young boys and girls and the social expectations of our culture, Mrs. Harding said.

As long as women are trained to believe that they cannot think straight they will develop only the authoritarian and emotional sides of their personalities, to the exclusion of intellectual growth, she said. As long as men are trained to deny their feelings, they will develop only the authoritarian and intellectual sides of their personalities to the exclusion of emotional growth.

"Given two crippled people, each only able to express part of the human potential, how can we expect a healthy relationship?" Mrs. Harding asked.

"One sex is not going to be liberated without liberating the other. Mrs. Harding cautioned: "When women ask for freedom and an equal opportunity, they must also be prepared to accept a high degree of responsibility."

The speaker, a resident of Mill Valley for 22 years, is now teaching at the Oasis Center in Lafayette.

Yesterday's program was the first in a two-part series sponsored by the Mill Valley Branch of the AAUW. Mrs. Harding will conduct a workshop on "The Downscripting of Women" Feb. 3 at the Fondue Pot restuarant in Corte Madera.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

He's Close To Mother, But His Woman Friend Doesn't Like It

DEAR HELEN:

I have a rather tricky problem. I am 24, male and single. I go to graduate school in a town 20 miles from my home town where my widowed mother still lives. I'm the only child and she has no close relatives. She's 62, in good health, but has failing eyesight.

My mother is an understanding and generous person and I love her. Since I sometimes worry about her living alone, I call to check on her health and see if she needs anything, as well as to visit. When I'm in her town, I stop off to have dinner with her, take her to a concert, or just talk.

I think there is nothing wrong with this, but I have a woman friend who says it's unhealthy — that parent-child relationships beyond the teens are unnatural. She does not see her mother or father and refuses all calls from them, maintaining this is the only way to mature. She says I am stifling my life. By very occasional friendly get-togethers with a parent yet?

I think she's wrong, but she won't stop nagging me. What should I say to her? — TIRED OF LISTENING

DEAR TIRED:

How about "Shut up!"?

Or maybe, "Get lost!" A woman this selfish isn't the ideal choice for steady companionship. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I guess you'd call me a more or less "happy sampler" too. I've been married five years and for the last two have been living a double life. Jim, my husband, is an easy-going artist who doesn't make enough money to feed our bird. I pay all the bills, do all the housework and make all the decisions. He never interferes with anything I do, but we don't do much together because he's always painting.

Then there's Vincent, the other half of my life. He's the exact opposite: dominant, a good provider, fun, and how he watches over me! I see him twice a week.

He's happy with his wife and children, but would probably get a divorce to marry me, though I really couldn't ask him to leave them. However, this can't go on forever.

I've tried splitting up with Jim three times, but he has always coaxed me back. He doesn't know about Vincent: just thinks I'm tired of supporting him.

Any solutions? — PUZZLED

DEAR PUZZLED:

A bored, dissatisfied, probably resentful woman can mistake any kind of extra-marital excitement for love. If you don't like your present set-up (as evidenced by three attempts to leave it) then make the break — but don't count on Vincent as your next husband. I'll predict he disappears fast when he learns you've filed for a divorce — with some sort of unspoken plans in mind. — H.

Coed Overcomes Challenge Of Tough Survival Course

By VIVIAN BROWN
Associated Press

Survival courses may be the newest concept of education. It may even be what education is all about.

And you don't need to be a rugged he-man type to test your fitness. As part of a new course in survival at Boston University, a 5-foot, red-haired, freckle-faced senior, Susan Reiter, 21, has just survived the challenge of 330 miles of Hudson River and its rapids — kayaking, canoeing, portaging — for 21 days with four male graduate students on a reconnaissance trip.

At the university a brochure advises students ... "if you feel under the wheel from the pressures of work or you are suffering the ennui created by avoiding work; you should enroll in one of the SURGE (survival, urgency, recreation, growth, enthusiasm) outdoor action courses."

SUSAN NOT only survived the trip. She might even be willing to SURGE again in another of the daring adventures devised by Michael Jeneid, a British education professor and naturalist with a background of association with Outward Bound schools which improve self-image through controlled stress outdoors.

Students learn that "the outcome of a training expereince can be . . . drawn upon because it is transferable ... in the future one can make use of the stronger character patterns developed under training conditions . . . To survive one must recognize one's own fear mechanisms."

Rock climbing, cross-country skiing, kayak expeditioning are courses that might even prepare one to face the rigors of classroom work. Courses of four weeks duration carry credits from the school of education.

Thousands of bites, cuts, scratches, bruises and two swollen ankles later — caused by insects, rocks and the pebbly river beds — Susan was enthusiastically endorsing her experience by observing:

"I NOT only learned about myself as an individual in a strenuous experience, but I learned to interact with a group I had not known before . . . I also gained seven pounds."

The men — John Snodgrass, Bob Nolte, Stan Harbarson and David Holdt — graduate students at Boston University — expect to apply their experiences to their own teaching work in other schools.

Even if the trip doesn't bring out the latent courage in a participator, it is a sure cure for finicky eaters, Susan said. The group became so ravenous from its strenuous days, it would even drink the vegetable water at the end of the evening meal.

"I ate as much as the men did, sometimes six slices of bread," said the tiny river farer. "You get so you will eat anything and you'll mix it all together in your bowl."

Meals were the usual camp fare — instant oatmeal with raisins and sugar added for extra energy, tuna fish or cheese at lunch, freeze-dried casseroles at dinner. No smoking, alcohol or drugs were permitted.

The group had left from the source of the Hudson, Lake Tear-of-the-Clouds in the Adirondacks after climbing Mt. Marcy to the spot where all the mountain streams converge.

AFTER THREE days of portage around dams, waterfalls, power companies and two additional days in a six-man tube raft in which they sat straddle-legged with one leg out of the raft, they transferred to canoe and kayak that would be used until they paddled into the Battery in New York City 18 days later.

They wore damp pants or shorts, and hiking boots or wet, soggy sneakers by day, but at night they wore dry clothing to bed. And they went to sleep at dark in polyethelene lean — to contrivances strung between trees, after they had collected firewood, done the cooking, and had written the day's log which each had to keep.

A new capacity of well-being was felt. "One man thought he would become ill if he got wet without rain protection," Susan commented, but he soon enjoyed skimming over the water in driving rainfalls without any ill effects.

At a treacherous area near Warrensburg, they had an accident, Susan had been sitting in the middle of the canoe, the heavier vehicle that stored their gear, when they took on water in the rapids, tried to cut into an eddy, and found themselves in another set of rapids. Susan suddenly was in the water with the geodetic map held between her teeth. She saw her companions floating down stream.

"IN THE rapids you stay close, but you are on your own. My first reaction was to get to shore so I began swimming on my belly, grabbing rocks and slitting my fingers a bit. The other buddies were floating. But when I got to shore there was no place to go. But we kept calling to each other and they got through the brush to me."

The $400 course may prove to be the biggest thrill she will ever have, but fishermen and others they met in the north "thought we were a bit nutty," she says.

"You couldn't find such a learning experience in a textbook," says the sociology major, who is interested in mental health. "Organization ... responsibility ... conquering fears ... there are so many facets to such an experience."

Women Drivers Are Rated Best

LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — Women drivers in Michigan have a safer driving record than men, a survey of the state's 6 million drivers shows.

Women drivers had a record of being 94.5 per cent accident free in 1971 while 89.1 per cent of men had no accidents.

Butterflies On Everything

Butterfly prints are nearly a trademark of the Sache of Beauclere fabrics in the Dior collection shown in Paris this week. Some are tiny as pinpoints and others are jumbo jetsized.

Sache, reports Women's Wear Daily, has been creating butterfly prints for Paris couture since the days of Schiaparelli, but these are different: all in mixtures of brown and beige on white or chocolate brown backgrounds.

On Launch Day She's The Boss

By ANDREW TORCHIA

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Chivalrous Italian space technicians can't get over it — the top American on launch day is a trim, blue-eyed blonde.

"It's a novelty for them," says Mrs. Marjorie Townsend. "They keep on telling me how unusual it is for a woman to do my job."

As manager of the U.S. Small Astronomy Satellite project, Mrs. Townsend aims for the moment on the seaborne rocket platforms off the Kenyan coast when "I tell the Italians the spacecraft is go and the Italians launch it."

She took part in the successful orbiting Nov. 16 of a National Aeronautics and Space Administration satellite to study high-energy cosmic radiation, the fifth Italian-American launch from the San Marco equatorial range since 1967.

Italians may still consider space a man's arena but Mrs. Townsend, 42, says she gets scant kidding about being a woman from NASA coworkers at Goddard Space Flight Center in Greenbelt, Md. She's been with NASA 13 years, six of them as the first woman satellite project manager in the U.S. space program.

MRS. TOWNSEND joined a man's world in 1951, when she became the first woman to obtain an engineering degree from George Washington University. She helped develop antisubmarine warfare methods during eight years at the U.S. Naval Research Laboratory in Washington, D.C.

At Greenbelt, Mrs. Townsend guides the design, budgeting and construction of Small Astronomy Satellite experiments. The next San Marco launch on her schedule is in 1975.

Evenings, she helps the younger of her four sons with homework or ducks into the basement of their Washington, D.C., home to work on the family hobby — a profitable job printing business. Or she goes over the accounts for her husband, Charles, an obstetrician.

"HE SPENDS his working life with women and I spend mine with men," she said. "Turnabout is fair play."

Mrs. Townsend says she gets an occasional "Margie, come home" plea from her husband during long business trips. Although her job keeps her away from Washington for periods up to two months, she finds it pays dividends in keeping in contact with her teen-aged boys.

"The kids are generally pretty proud of me. They respect both their father and me for our work, and respect for parents is hard to come by these days," she said.

"My experience in the working world is a major asset in talking to my children. I can tell them it's rough out there."

Mrs. Townsend sees no conflict between her job and her role as a woman but there are few feminine frills in her life. She says she had her last woman-to-woman gabfest during her sorority days in college and "I go shopping about once a year — that's one of the things I don't have time for."

Felt Files For College Board Post

Trustee Donald K. Felt of the Marin Community College District filed nomination papers yesterday in the April 17 school board races, the Marin County Elections Department reported today.

And the first candidate to file in Southern Sonoma for the Cotati-Rohnert Park School District election on April 17 was incumbent Anthony P. Carbone, who completed his papers yesterday.

Carbone, 38, was elected to the board in November of 1971 after an unsuccessful attempt the previous April. He is employed as an institutional sales representative for Kraft Foods.

Carbone and his wife, June M., live at 432 Anson Avenue, Rohnert Park, and have four children.

Felt was elected in April 1969. He had been appointed to the board in October the previous year to fill the unexpired term of Alan D. Ewen. He was president of the board in 1971-72.

An attorney in San Francisco, Felt is 38.

BARSTOW, Calif. (UPI) — The Mojave River of south central California has no mouth.

It has its source in the spring and snow crevices of the San Bernardino Mountains and it is then swallowed up in the sands of the desert.

Bolinas-Stinson Tax Increase Vote Asked

Trustees of the Bolinas-Stinson School District agreed last night to ask voters for a 50-cent increase in the district's tax rate.

Supt. Lester M. Horning said the tax hike, which would bring the total district levy to $2.55, will be placed on the ballot April 17.

Horning said the board thought the hike was needed to make up for revenue lost by creation of the Point Reyes National Seashore and Golden Gate National Recreation Area.

He said local income is down more than $10,000 from last year and will fall even lower when land losses from the recreation area are calculated.

To make matters worse, the superintendent said, the new state tax shift law will compute future income for the small West Marin district on the basis of current, reduced revenues.

So, he said, the district cannot expect much more than the current $264,000 annual revenue in future years.

Horning went on to say that the district will have to spend about $20,000 more than it takes in this year in order to maintain existing programs. "If we can't expect more than our current revenues next year or the year after that, we will have real problems," he explained.

In other business, the board accepted the resignation of trustee John G. Barrow, effective at the end of the school year. Barrow, a cabinet maker who was elected to the board in 1971, is moving to Kentucky this summer.

His resignation means that four of the five board seats will be up for election April 17. The terms of trustees Jessie Reasoner, Michael Aitken and John Harris will also expire this year.

San Pedro Teacher Flap Settled

The San Rafael Board of Education, faced with a staffing shortage at San Pedro School, last night gained the reluctant acceptance of parents to a compromise plan.

About 50 parents appeared last night to protest transfer of one teacher from the school — leaving the remaining full time kindergarten teacher in charge of 36 pupils — and "reluctantly accepted" a plan to bolster the staff with part-time aid, according to Supt. John F. Plank.

Plank said one of the school's two-teacher kindergarten staff was transferred to another school last Christmas due to a resignation, a move that angered parents because two teachers had been budgeted for duty at San Pedro School.

In a compromise solution hammered out last night, the board decided to give the remaining San Pedro teacher six hours of part-time aid daily, including two hours of a regular teacher's time and four hours of a teaching aide's time.

The plan will mean a $1,200 saving for the district over previous cost of staffing San Pedro, Plank said.

The flap has its roots in a decision last year, in which sagging finances forced the board to relieve three teachers through attrition, according to Plank.

The San Rafael Board of Education also:

DRAINAGE — Decided to bring a drainage problem on Lindaro Street near Davidson School to the attention of the city council during budget hearings. Streets leading to the school are "cut off with a moat" during heavy rains, requiring students to be ferried across by buses, Plank said.

NEXUS — Heard a report and film presentation of the Nexus alternative school at San Rafael High School, and learned enrollment in the alternative program, which is currently 123, has jumped to 140 students for next year.

ATHLETES — Decided to survey students at Terra Linda and San Rafael schools in an attempt to resolve inconsistencies in physical education requirements at the two schools. Student athletes at Terra Linda High School are required to take gym class in addition to team practice sessions, while their counterparts at San Rafael High School are not required to enroll in gym or physical education classes, according to Plank.

GALLINAS CSD — Approved an arrangement whereby the Gallinas Village Community Services District will be allowed to rent school buses for recreational excursions at 29 cents per mile and cost of bus drivers' wages.

FRINGE BENEFITS — Approved a policy giving part-time employees fringe benefits in proportion to hours worked per week.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to 8 p.m. Feb. 5 for a closed session to hear charges against a district custodian.

Bridgeway District Approved By Council

The Sausalito City Council agreed last night to proceed with formation of an assessment district to finance extensive improvements to downtown Bridgeway.

City Clerk Miriam K. Ansell said the council now will have to set hearings on the district to give merchants and property owners in the area affected a chance to give their views.

The district would finance approximately $278,475 worth of improvements to the street, between Princess Street and the area north of Bay Street.

Sixty-four per cent of the area's property owners have signed a petition calling for establishment of the district.

Mrs. Ansell said several property owners appeared at the meeting to protest the move

Soldiers Shooting Baskets, Not Guns

Hal Fischer was back at Terra Linda High School and with him were some of the best basketball players currently putting in some time in the Army.

Fischer, former Corte Madera resident now living in Santa Rosa, is head coach for the Army basketball team. Monday he brought some of his players to put on a youth basketball clinic for freshmen boys at Terra Linda High and for students from junior high schools in San Rafael. Fischer and his Army cagers will be back on the Terra Linda court Feb. 8 in the third annual East-West College All-Star game.

HAL FISCHER

That game will play a big part in Fischer's selection of a 12-man team to take into the Worldwide U.S. Interservice tournament, this year held at Presidio of San Francisco, March 6-7-8. That tourney will pit the best players from the U.S. armed services. There will be between 30 and 32 on the Army roster when the soldiers play in Terra Linda. That will be after the team is whittled down from 300 or so candidates.

"WE HAVE A LOT of talent," said Fischer glancing out on the court where his players were practicing some shots before the start of the clinic. "This is going to be the strongest team we've had in the last three years."

The players hail from all parts of the country, arriving these past few days from stations such as Fort Lee, Va., Fort Bragg, Ky., Fort Leavenworth, Kan., and Fort Rucker, Ala.

"We have just got in a new group of boys from Korea," said Fischer, who has coached U.S. teams in both Olympic and Pan American games. "Ill be flying back to Fort Riley, Kan., to look at another 80 candidates there. I'll probably pick up another 8 or 10 players from that group."

Hal has seven returning players from the East and West squads which played last year's game at Terra Linda High. "I'm fortunate to have that many," he said. In the Army there is quite a turnover, as you can imagine. Two years is enough for many.

AMONG THE RETURNEES is First Lt. James Oxley who was on the 1970 All-National Invitational Tournament (NIT) team when he was playing for West Point. An All-Army player the past three years, Oxley had to miss last year's game in Terra Linda because his wife was giving birth to a daughter that same day.

Another of the stars for Army is Gary Beck, a 6-foot-½ inch guard who was trying out for the professional Dallas Chaparrals before getting drafted into the Army. He had earned all-district small college honors while playing for Greenville College in Illinois.

"If he could stick with Dallas for as long as he did he should be able to make our club," said Fischer. "He doesn't look big but he's a heck of a player."

FOR SIZE THERE was John Ennis who had done his college playing at Guilford in North Carolina before being drafted in the Army. He's 6-6½ and 240 pounds. "The Army had a heck of a time finding some size 16 shoes to fit him," said Fischer.

The players work out two and sometimes three times a day leading up to the Interservice tournament. But Fischer could never push the players too much, for they would much rather practice basketball than carry a rifle or scrub pots at some distant post. As you would expect, there are no discipline problems with the Army cagers.

For the game next month at Terra Linda High, Fischer will divide the team in half, those from eastern colleges opposing players from western colleges. If the crowd matches those of the past two years, it would be a sellout or near to it.

Foreman-Ali Fight Proposed To Champ

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) — George Foreman, the new heavyweight champion of the world, says he'll let the people dictate his next opponent — and the voice of the people roared back today in a rising swell.

"Give us Foreman vs. Muhammad Ali," they said.

That blue ribbon pairing is unlikely to come off this year. Ali, 31, and faced for the second time with a long period of ring rust, may be forced to cool his heels for a couple of years.

"I think Foreman will make us wait a while," said Angelo Dundee of Miami, Ali's trainer who predicted Foreman's victory over Joe Frazier. "He doesn't want us too soon.

"But it would make one whale of a fight."

Meanwhile, there were other complications. Foreman and his manager, Dick Sadler, must dispose of a mysterious paper admittedly signed by Sadler agreeing to a return bout with Frazier in Houston.

Harry Barnett, Washington, D.C., attorney for Sadler, said it was just "a piece of paper and not valid."

Other contenders, such as Jimmy Ellis, Oscar Bonavena and Jerry Quarry, who happened to be bypassed in Foreman's impressive sweep to 38 straight victories, are lining up and demanding recognition.

It's now a big payday for anyone who fights the strapping, 24-year-old former Golden Gloves champion, who floored Frazier six times in 4 minutes 35 seconds and scored a stunning second round upset in Kingston's National Arena Monday night.

Spahn Is Hall Of Fame Pick

NEW YORK (UPI) — Warren Spahn, the winningest lefthanded pitcher in history today became the only electee to the Hall of Fame by the Baseball Writers Associaton of America.

Spahn received 316 votes from the 380 writers participating in the balloting which required being named on at least 75 per cent of the votes cast.

The election of only Spahn, who won 363 games in 20 years in the majors mostly with the Boston-Milwaukee Braves, came as somewhat of a surprise in that so many worthy candidates were eligible for election this year. Included among those who had cleared the designated five year period for election to the Hall were Robin Roberts, Ralph Kiner, Bob Lemon, Gil Hodges and Whitey Ford. Of those five ford came the closest receiving 255 votes, only 29 shy of the 284 needed for selection.

Kiner was third with 235 .

In being elected to the Hall of Fame in his first year of eligibility, Spahn thus joins five other immortals—Ted Williams, Stan Musial, Jackie Robinson, Bob Feller and Sandy Koufax as the only men in baseball history to be so honored. Spahn, a high-kicking lefthander with a sharp downbreaking curve ball, set major league records of most seasons winning 20 or more games by a southpaw (13), most years leading in games won (8), most consecutive years leading the league in complete games (7), most games won by a lefthander during his career (363), most strikeouts by a left-hander (2,583) and most consecutive years 100 or more strikeouts (17).

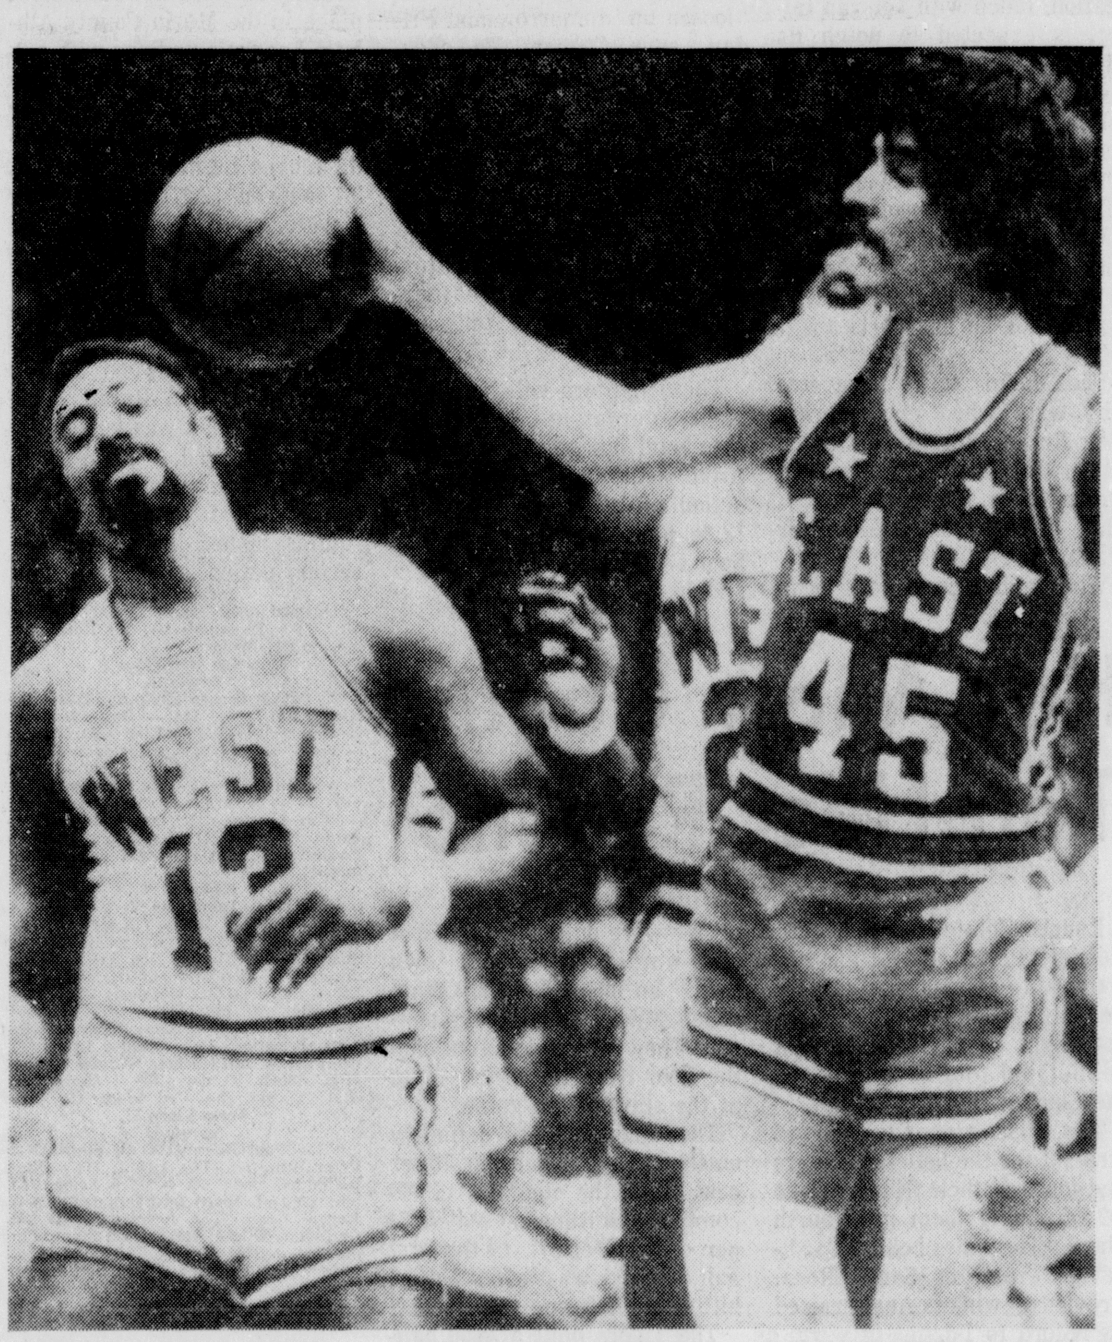
He also set National League records of most shutout games by a left-hander during his career (63), most games started (665) and most seasons pitched for one club (20).

A native of Buffalo, N.Y., Spahn stood six feet and weighed 180 pounds and pitched two no-hitters —against the Philadelphia Phillies in 1960 and against the San Francisco Giants in 1961. He won the Cy Young Award as the major leagues' No. 1 pitcher in 1957, pitched in seven all-star games and appeared in three World Series with the Braves. His World Series record was 4-3 with a 2.89 earned run average in eight games and 56 innings.

Spahn joined the Boston Braves in 1942 but spent the next three years in the Navy. He rejoined the Braves in 1946, posting an 8-5 record, and compiled a 21-10 mark with a 2.33 earned run average in 1947.

Despite his 13 20-victory seasons, Spahn is remembered best by some fans for his contribution to the Braves' pennant victory in 1948. He had only a 15-12 record that season but teamed with Johnny Sain (who had a 24-15 record) to pitch virtually every other day in the stretch run of the race.

Spahn was sold to the New York Mets in 1964 and was released by them and signed by the San Francisco Giants in 1965.



THAT'S NOT NICE — Atlanta's Pete Maravich (45) of the East All-Stars appeared to be bouncing the ball off the head of Los Angeles' Wilt Chamberlain of the West Stars in the National Basketball Association All-Star game in Chicago last night. Maravich was actually trying to control the elusive basketball as Chamberlain looked on. The East won, 104-84.

East Five Triumphs In Chicago

CHICAGO (UPI) — Tom Heinsohn's East All Stars put it all together to win the annual National Basketball Association All Star game 104-84, the victorious Boston Celtics coach said today.

"We controlled the boards, we got the ball out to our guards, we got our fast forwards down the floor and we played good defense," he said. "Defense won it for us."

Heinsohn, getting top scoring efforts from two of his own, center Dave Cowens with 15 points and forward John Havlicek with 14 points, wouldn't single out these two Boston stars for praise and instead distributed honors equally on his 14-man roster.

Every player on the East scored at least one field goal.

Heinsohn mentioned Elvin Hayes of Baltimore as "dynamic off the boards."

Cowens, who led both teams in rebounding with 13, was named MVP in the contest, earning 45 ½ votes. Only five other players drew votes and among them they had a total of 24 ½.

The East, with a 50-45 lead at the half, spurted in the final half while holding the West to 39 points. For the game, the East shot 41.6 per cent frrom the field with 47 field goals and the West, collecting only 33 field goals, hit 37.5 per cent.

It was the 15th win for the East against eight for the West in the series and the East victory broke a two-game West winning streak.

Nate Archibald, the league leader in both scoring and assists and a starting guard for the West, sat out both the second and third periods and stilled the West in both scoring, with 17, and assists, with five.

Marin Tar Five Routs Cosumnes

By RALPH CHATOIAN
I-J Sports Editor

Playing the role of Scrooge by holding Cosumnes River College to only 16 points the first half, College of Marin's Tars rolled to their 17th victory of the season last night, 77-54, before a sparse gathering of 200 in Kentfield.

The non-conference basketball game was never in doubt after Marin quickly broke things open with six straight baskets for a 15-4 lead over the visitors from Sacramento. Halftime score was 39-16. Marin's overall record is now 17-2 and last night's showing should keep the Tars in their lofty spot of No. 2 in the state behind Allan Hancock of Santa Maria.

Marin was playing without its head coach, John Panagakis, home in bed with the flu, and center Neil Traub, out of action with abdominal pains.

"We're hoping it's not appendicitis," said Marin assistant coach Jim Webster who took over for Panagakis last night. "The doctors will probably know for sure in a day or two," he said in reference to Traub's condition.

Marin forward Wil Garner was repeatedly left open under the basket for passes and took advantage for 29 points, game high scoring honors. Cosumnes guard Carl Roper, the only returnee off last year's team, led the Chiefs with 22 points after being held to only four points in the first half by the close guarding of Len Smith.

Marin's other starting guard, Joe DeMaestri, a sophomore out of Novato High, scored 14 points on seven fielders before fouling out early in the game, only four minutes and eight seconds into the second half. His replacement, 5-foot-10 Steve Pieper, did a very good job on defense, hustling all over the court.

"Pieper is starting to be the key guy off the bench for us," said Webster. "He's very heady, a smart player, and he really hustles."

Cosumnes came out in the second half and tried to speed up the play on Marin, a team that likes to play a steady, deliberate game. The Chiefs' full court press forced Marin into some mistakes, but also allowed some fast break baskets.

Forward Joe Casteel played his usual strong game on both ends of the court and his movement drew fouls which sent him to the free throw line 12 times. He made good on nine of the shots and ended up with 13 points.

Marin's big test will come Saturday when the Tars host West Valley College of Campbell, a team that is one game behind them in the Camino Norte Conference standings. That game will start at 8 p.m.

Cosumnes — Roper 8-6-22, Copeland 3-4-10, Jelaco 1-2-4, Spence 2-3-7, Berry 1-0-2, Fetsoff 0-1-1, Williams 0-1-1, Curry 3-1-7. Totals: 18-18—54.

Marin — Casteel 2-9-13, Garner 12-5-29, DeMaestri 7-0-14, Smith 3-1-7, LaFerriere 1-1-3, Forni 0-2-2, Lindquist 1-3-5, Hagler 1-0-2, Pieper 1-0-2. Totals: 28-21 — 77.

Rams Fire Prothro, Hire Knox As Coach

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Los Angeles Rams fired Tommy Prothro today and hired Chuck Knox, former Detroit Lions assistant, to replace him as head coach of the National Football League club.

Prothro, criticized for being unemotional and for failure to motivate his players during a disappointing 6-7-1 season, had three years left on a reported $90,000-a-year contract.

Carroll Rosenbloom, Ram owner, indicated Prothro would be paid off for the remaining years of the contract which he signed after many successful years as a college coach at UCLA and Oregon State.

Knox, 40, served for six years as Lions' offensive line coach under Joe Schmidt and was set loose when Schmidt was fired recently.

Knox never played professional football. He was an offensive lineman at little Juniata College in Sewickley, Pa., and

A 3-Way Tie For 1st In Marin Prep Race

Novato '5' Edged By Redwood

By TOM THOMPSON

Novato High School's basketball team ran out of miracles with two seconds left to play yesterday and suffered a 67-66 loss to Marin County Athletic League rival Redwood in Larkspur.

Novato, which held the undisputed league lead over the weekend, fell into a three-way tie for first place with Drake and Redwood with 4-2 records.

The Hornets never led during the game, but Joe Robinson sank a field goal from inside the key to bring them within one point with 10 seconds left to play. Novato regained possession with two seconds left and Hornet coach Jim Caranica called a time out as most of the 300 fans were on their feet. Dave Brazell threw the ball into play but Redwood's Katsumi Johnson, with the help of a tip from Scott Trobbe, intercepted it to seal the victory.

Novato's last five games have been decided by three points or less, and the Hornets had won three of them in a row before yesterday.

Redwood center Mike Connor led all scorers with 25 points, and teammate Neil Hennessy added 18. Center Willie Barnes scored 22 for Novato, 16 coming during a Hornet rally in the second half.

Redwood overcame an earlier problem, winning the game from the freethrow line. The winners sank 15 of 22 free throws, while Novato shot 50 per cent, six of 12. Redwood committed only 11 fouls, to the Hornets' 16.

As Caranica said later, the Hornets "let them get too far ahead." The Giants shot an astounding 92 per cent from the floor in the first quarter to take a commanding 28-13 lead.

The Hornets came back from a 13-point halftime deficit, outscoring the hosts 23-11 to cut the margin to two at the end of the third quarter. Barnes rattled off his eighth consecutive basket 30 seconds later to tie the game for the first time. The Giants kept their poise, however. With about three minutes left Redwood went into a stall, forcing Novato to foul. Johnson then sank four clutch free throws within the two minute mark to give Redwood a 67-62 lead, thus clinching the victory.

Novato	13	15	23	15—66
Redwood	28	14	11	14—67

Novato — Saine 6-2-14, Robinson 5-1-11, Barnes 10-2-22, Brazell 2-0-4, Powell 4-0-8, Conklin 3-1-7. Totals: 30-6-66.

Redwood — Troppmann 0-1-1, Connor 12-1-25, Johnson 1-6-8, Wells 1-0-2, Boro 1-7-9, Hennessy 9-0-18, Payne 1-0-2, Brown 1-0-2. Totals: 26-15-67.

Seals In Atlanta Tonight

Combined AP & UPI

ATLANTA — The California Golden Seals, smarting from their third loss this season to the only team with a worse record than theirs, invade Atlanta tonight for a National Hockey League game.

The New York Islanders embarrassed the visiting Seals 8-1 last night, their third victory over the Californians in four tries this season.

In fact, exactly half the Islanders' six wins have been against California which has won eight games overall.

New York's victory was insured by Craig Cameron who scored three goals, giving him eight for the season.

The Islanders went ahead 2-0 in the first period on goals by Bob Cook and Richie Grenier before Reg Leach got the Seals' lone counter.

Germain Gagnon then scored

San Marin Cagers Top Terra Linda

By LEW CODDINGTON

Terra Linda High School managed to shoot 54 per cent from the floor and lose a basketball game last night, which is testimony not to the ineptness of the Trojans, but to the superior offensive rebounding of San Marin High.

The host Mustangs rallied in the fourth quarter for a 71-63 victory before about 400 fans, thus evening both teams' Marin County Athletic League records at 3-3, but with a difference — San Marin has won two in a row, while Terra Linda has lost its last pair.

San Marin guard Hoza Wright scored 28 points, giving him a standoff in the scoring column with Terra Linda forward Mark Lowey. Each tied the highest production in the MCAL this year.

But it was the Mustangs' ability to hit the boards which made the difference. San Marin outrebounded the Trojans, 49-37, and 26 of the rebounds came on the offensive boards. As a result, Terra Linda's blistering 28-of-52 shooting was nullified. San Marin had 12 more attempts, and made one more field goal, hitting 45 per cent.

The Trojans got the worst of the under-the-basket warfare in another way, committing 22 personal fouls to San Marin's 14. The Mustangs' 13 for-26 performance from the foul line looked bad on the percentage charts, but gave them six more points than Terra Linda's seven-for-nine showing.

San Marin's 6-foot-5 John Tait got 13 rebounds, 6-5 Price (Skip)

Drake Wins; Takes Share Of The Top

By ROB MILLER

Drake High School, with John Channell scoring 11 of his 21 points in the fourth quarter, rallied from six points down to defeat San Rafael in a Marin County Athletic League basketball game yesterday, 63-61.

Drake's win before 400 fans at San Rafael boosted the Pirates back into a share of first place in the MCAL with a 4-2 record, tied with Novato and Redwood. San Rafael stands 2-4, and has lost four in a row.

The fourth quarter was the key as the Bulldogs saw their 55-49 lead at 5:07 dwindle to 59-58 with about a minute to play. The Pirates went ahead, 60-58, on a basket by Don Asay at :46. Channell added a free throw for insurance, but the scoring wasn't over.

San Rafael's Guy Perry made a shot with six seconds left to put the Bulldogs just one point behind. But Pirate Rick Herbert added more insurance than Drake needed on a free throw to make it 63-61. With one second left, Bulldog Steve D'Ambra took a half-court shot, but San Rafael's last hope was batted away by a Pirate defender.

"This was surely a good win," said happy Drake coach Pete Hayward. "We really hustled in the last couple minutes, and it turned out that we got the breaks, so we took advantage.

"We've been very poor at being able to take advantage all this year," Hayward added, "but this game we finally did it."

Down at the end of the first quarter due to some foul trouble, the Pirates managed to pull even, 32-32, at the half.

But a strong third quarter put the Bulldogs back in front, 49-42. This set the stage for the pivotal fourth quarter.

Surprisingly, San Rafael managed to build its lead without much scoring support from the league's top scorer, center Byron Stewart. Stewart, who was averaging 17.8 points per game, made only two points.

High scorer for the game was San Rafael's D'Ambra, who basketed 22 points. Other high scorers for the Bulldogs were Perry with 14, and Pete Neuwald with 12.

For Drake, besides Channell, Asay had 16, and Herbert had 12.

Drake	12	20	10	21—63
San Rafael	18	14	17	12—61

Drake — Howard 2-0-4, Schmitz 0-2-2, Chavez 2-2-6, Asay 8-0-16, Channell 9-3-21, Herbert 2-8-12, Carlisle 0-2-2. Totals: 23-17-63.

San Rafael — Perry 6-2-14, Stewart 1-0-2, Gallivan 2-2-6, Neuwald 5-2-12, D'Ambra 10-2-22, Ellingson 0-1-1, Zitek 0-2-2, Meyers 0-2-2. Totals: 24-13-61.

BOATING

By STAN DAVIES

Books—An Aid For Boating Knowledge

To acquire good boat handling techniques, experience is unquestionably the best teacher. Every skipper has to get the "feel" of handling a boat himself — and, incidentally, making a few mistakes.

However, I find that a lot of knowledge about boating techniques can be gained without ever having been afloat. And I firmly believe that beginners in the sport who have done a lot of reading, and perhaps thinking, about boating and sailing learn much more quickly when they do the thing for real.

So this is an admonition to get a few boating books this winter while the action is slow and study some of the basic principles of seamanship, piloting, navigation and motor or engine maintenance. You'll be better for it when the boating season gets back into full swing next summer.

I find, too, that people who know the most about boating generally know the most about safe boating specifically. Here are typical questions that could be answered quickly by anyone who had read even a rudimentary text:

Q. I have an outboard boat that is speedy and agile. Recently I drove a large powerful inboard boat. Response to the helm was sluggish. Is this normal?

A. Everything is relative and by comparison with a speedy outboard any big inboard is "sluggish." In an outboard when the motor is turned the whole thrust of the outboard is used to cause the boat to turn, but in an inboard there is never more than half the "discharge current" from the propeller or propellers acting upon the rudder.

Q. I have just read that sailing craft do not necessarily have the right of way anymore. . . is this so?

A. The law change is seven years old, but I guess some people still have not heard about it. The rule says that large ships have the right of way over small pleasure craft in harbors and narrow channels where maneuvering is difficult.

Q. It seems poor design, but the stern of my boat is so low that water comes in every time I stop the outboard motor. . .?

A. At one time the outboard motor manufacturers got together and agreed on a uniform 15-inch height for the transom — that's the flat area at the stern. This was to make all motors standard. However, now you can get long shaft motors — 20 inches. This will let you build up your transom and put in a self bailing motor well ahead of it. This will catch any water that comes aboard.

Q. What's a trim tab?

A. It's a gadget installed on the stern of the boat flush with the bottom, as a kind of extension of the bottom. Tabs, usually installed in pairs, can be adjusted so that they react on the water rushing under the boat to keep the bow down if it rides too high.

Q. If a boat livery rents you a boat, must it also supply lifejackets?

A. In some states, yes. Florida for example. But it is not required in some others. Read your state boating law. However, even if the boat livery operator isn't required to supply life saving equipment, it doesn't absolve the person who accepts the boat from having it aboard.

Speier's Goals: Less Strikeouts, More Wins

Chris Speier was the first man to report for the early bird pre-spring baseball workouts which the Giants set in motion this week at Candlestick Park, a month ahead of their regular spring encampment in Arizona.

Speier could hardly wait to put on his uniform. The young shortstop was bubbling with enthusiasm and optimism.

"I never predict," said Speier, "but I don't mind telling you my goals. First, of course, is to win. Second, I'd like to cut my strikeouts in half."

At the mention of strikeouts, Don Carrithers, sitting next to Speier in the Candlestick clubhouse, mused: "We must have had 1,000 strikeouts last season."

A REPORTER interviewing Speier flipped the pages of an official National League record book and began to recite "Dave Kingman 140, Bobby Bonds 137, Garry Maddox 97 —" when Speier interrupted:

"How many did I have?"

Advised that he struck out 92 times last season, Speier said: "I definitely have to do something about that this year."

Despite his impatience to get on the practice field, Speier didn't end the interview on a negative strikeout note.

"This spring I'm going to pace myself better so I'll be at a peak for the opening of the season," he said. "Last spring I think I peaked too soon."

Speier did push himself hard last spring. He always was last man to leave the practice field.

"There was a reason for that," said Speier. "Last spring I was trying to become a switch hitter which I finally decided wasn't for me a week after the season opened.

"BUT IF YOU think I worked hard last spring, listen to this. I learned during the winter that Cincinnati works out from 9 to 4 without interruption every day. I learned that from Joe Morgan. We were at a baseball clinic together.

"I don't think I could stand daily spring drills that long. You know another thing Morgan told me? He said that the Reds didn't work on double plays at all. Their initial DP work came in their first exhibition game.

"I CAN'T understand that but Sparky Anderson must know what he's doing. After all, the Reds won in our division last year."

Notwithstanding Anderson's style of conducting spring practices, Charlie Fox has his own ideas of what will be best for the Giants this spring.

FOX ALREADY has blueprinted the spring program of the Giants and it will stress defense.

"Naturally," said Speier, "I think our manager is right. Even though we had a lot of strikeouts in our lineup last year, we did score a lot of runs. We got hurt in a number of games on defense."

But the Giants didn't get hurt on the DP last season. Speier and his DP teammate, Tito Fuentes, turned over the double play in stylish fashion.

Basketball: Marin 'Cats Thrash Tam

Marin Catholic High School, utilizing a pressure defense which created offensive opportunities, devastated visiting Tamalpais in the first three quarters and went on to post a 57-43 Marin County Athletic League basketball victory yesterday.

Mike Mahoney scored 14 points, Ben Partee 11 and Dan Mahoney 10 for the Wildcats, who improved their MCAL record to 3-3 with their second straight victory, and moved into a three-way tie for fourth place with San Marin and Terra Linda, one game behind tri-leaders Novato, Redwood and Drake. Tamalpais occupies the cellar at 1-5.

"We pressed 'em, and they turned the ball over," said Marin Wildcat coach Dave Gonsalves. "Our press was especially effective early." The 'Cats led at halftime, 31-20.

Marin Catholic came up with 22 steals and interceptions, with Partee getting seven and Bill Reilly five. Passes following those steals often resulted in easy baskets, and the Wildcats shot 49 per cent from the floor (20 of 41) for the game, making 11 of 17 in the first half.

Tam, by contrast, hit only 35 per cent (14 of 40). "We forced some bad shots," Gonsalves said.

Hollis Owens was the only Tam player to score in double figures, netting 10 points. Forward Jared McFerrin appeared in his first MCAL game of the year, scoring three points.

Terra Linda shot out to an early 24-12 lead, but San Marin pulled ahead just before halftime on a six-point play triggered by Wright, who drove for a basket, was fouled, made the free throw, paused as Doar sank a technical foul shot, then hit a field goal after San Marin in-bounded the ball.

Terra Linda went ahead in the third period, 45-39, as Lowey made his first five shots, but San Marin outscored the Trojans over the next eight minutes, 27-13, for an insurmountable 66-58 lead. Larry Butti came off the bench for three key Mustang baskets.

Wright hit 12 of 27 shots, most of them from points only slightly east of Bolinas. "He also did an outstanding job controlling the ball, especially against the press," said San Marin coach Andy Frauenhofer.

Wells, Rivera To Box Russians

Amateur boxers in the heaviest and lightest divisions will represent Hamilton Air Force Base and the United States against a Soviet Union team Saturday in Las Vegas.

The Novato base's Nick Wells, a 205-pound heavyweight, and Claudio (Chicky) Rivera, a 106-pound flyweight, will be among the American boxers facing a heavily-favored Russian team. The Russian delegation, laden with veteran talent, is expected to notch its fifth consecutive U.S.-Russia meet victory.

However, the visitors are expected to get a stern argument from the likes of Wells and Rivera, two seasoned fighters with excellent records. Wells, with 64 wins and eight losses, has scored 54 knockouts. Rivera, a slick boxer, sports a 54-7 log.

The Marin pair will receive stiff tests when encountering their Russian foes, both Munich Olympic Games' veterans. Wells faces Juriy Nesterov, while Rivera boxes Valadimir Ivanov.

Wells and Rivera have been sparring with members of the Police Athletic League team in San Francisco in training for their fights Saturday. Additionally, Wells has sparred with former state heavyweight champion Henry Clark. Clark has said that Wells is an "impressive prospect."

Wells, Rivera, and their coach, Gene Cooper, were to leave today on their flight to Las Vegas. The fighters will "loosen up" tomorrow and Friday, says Cooper. He adds, "we're going in with the idea we can win."

If the U.S. team is to snap the Russian victory streak, stout performances will be needed by the likes of light middleweight Reggie Jones, light welterweight Billy Miller, featherweight Louis South, Wells and Rivera.

These fighters will be center stage Saturday at Caesar's Palace hotel in Las Vegas. Bay Area fight fans can see the action on video tape Sunday, 12:30 p.m. to 2 p.m. on CBS Sports Spectacular, channels 5 and 10.

Hot Analy Cagers Top Host Rancho

By PAUL DWORIN

Rancho Cotate High School of Rohnert Park suffered another setback to its Sonoma County League basketball title hopes last night as visiting Analy of Sebastopol totally dominated the Cougars for a 66-46 win.

The loss was the second straight for the listless Cougars and lowered their SCL mark to 2-2, dropping them into fourth place, two games behind Cardinal Newman of Santa Rosa. Previously winless Analy raised its record to 1-3.

"We were outhustled, outshot and outplayed in our own gym," an upset Rancho Cotate coach Mike Francis commented. "They even beat us out onto the floor from the locker room at the start of the game."

The Cougars were definitely outshot as the Tigers hit 51 per cent from the field (25 of 49) compared to Rancho Cotate's 34 per cent (19 of 57). In the first half, Analy was even hotter, hitting a blistering 62 per cent.

The Tigers built a 35-20 halftime lead behind the board work and scoring of Mark Gonnella, who had 13 points, and the Cougars never came closer than that except for an early third quarter rally which cut the margin down to 43-33.

Analy was led by Gonnella with 19 points, Ken Moylan with 12 and Jay Bartholomew who came off the bench to score ten points and block at least six shots.

Petaluma Beaten By Hogan '5'

Petaluma High School had the ball and a two-point lead with 30 seconds to play last night, but Rick Mathews made three free throws in the last ten seconds to give the Hogan Spartans a 64-61 North Bay League basketball victory in Vallejo.

The loss dropped the Trojans into a four-way tie for third place with Santa Rosa, Napa and Hogan at 2-3, three games behind undefeated Vallejo, which they host Friday night. Overall, Petaluma is 6-11.

With a 61-59 lead and 30 seconds left in the game, Petaluma had a one-on-one free throw situation, but missed the first free throw giving Hogan the ball. The Spartans tied it up on a field goal, and then stole the ball to set the stage for Mathews' heroics.

Mathews converted a one-one-one situation, and then sank a technical foul shot. Mathews, who was high point man for the game with 27, hit all 11 of his free throw attempts in the fourth quarter.

The Trojans had leads as big as 14 points in the second half after taking a 36-28 halftime margin, but both Kirk Smartt and Bill McDonald fouled out early in the final period, and Hogan kept chipping away at the lead.

St. Helena Guns Down Tomales '5'

Host Tomales High School ran into a hot shooting St. Helena Saints team last night and dropped a 59-38 non-league basketball decision.

The Braves, who resume North Central League II play Friday night in Petaluma against the strong St. Vincent Mustangs, are now 3-8 overall.

"We just looked like a 100 per cent zero out there (last night)," Tomales coach Jim Clahan said. "They played tight defense, outhustled us and shot well from outside."

The Braves, led by Russ Sartori's 16 points, shot only 29 per cent from the field. Pete Mackey paced the Saints with 20 points.

Adams' Pin Gives Win To Redwood

For the second match in a row, Redwood High School's wrestling hopes rested on the shoulders of heavyweight Ted Adams, and for the second match in a row he came through, pinning his opponent yesterday to give Redwood a 30-27 victory over host Tamalpais.

His efforts catapulted the Giants into undisputed first place in the Marin County Athletic League standings with a 3-0 record, and dropped Tam into a tie for third at 2-1. In other matches yesterday, Terra Linda moved into second place at 3-1 with a 53-11 victory over Novato, and San Marin tied Tam for third by whipping Drake, 55-10.

Last Thursday, Adams won by a decision to break a 28-28 tie and give Redwood a 31-28 victory over San Rafael. Yesterday, his task was harder, as Redwood trailed, 27-24. An ordinary decision victory would only have tied the match, but Adams pinned his man in the second period.

Commission Charge Confuses A Reader

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. Could you give me some information on the cost of buying and selling stock? I read that for odd-lots of stock it cost 12½ cents a share for transaction on the New York Stock Exchange. I just sold 100 shares at 48½ and paid $69.10. I also sold 50 shares at 49⅞ and paid $44.85. I am confused, can you explain this to me? — C.E.

A. First of all you are confusing two separate fees, the odd-lot charge and the broker's commission. The former, the 12½-cent fee which you read about, is collected by the odd-lot dealer for his services in bunching small orders into round lots. This ⅛-pound differential is included in the execution price. Thus, if the last round-lot transaction was at 50, the following odd-lot transaction would be at 49⅞ for a sale or 50⅛ for a purchase.

The broker's commission charge is another matter entirely. As of March 24, 1972, a new minimum commission rate schedule went into effect for the New York and American Exchanges. The minimum charge allowed for your round-lot sale would be $65.00. In addition there is a non-resident New York State Transfer Tax of $3.25 and an S.E.C. fee of 10 cents. The additional 75 cents which you paid might have been a handling or postage fee or a local tax. On the odd-lot sale, the total money amount involved was less than $2,500 but more than $800, making the commission rate 1.3 per cent plus $10.00 or $42.42. In addition, the transfer tax was $1.63 and the S.E.C. fee 5 cents. Again the 75 cents extra paid on the transaction could be one of the items mentioned above or if American Depository Receipts were involved some brokers charge a minimal amount to cover certificate transfer.

In order to satisfy your curiosity, I suggest you ask your broker what the additional charge was for.

County's Building Booming

Building permits for construction valued at $7,703,801 were issued during December in Marin County, an increase of almost 76 per cent over the $4,380,847 in December of 1971, according to figures compiled by the Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau.

Total value of building permits issued during all of 1972 came to $99,176,581, which was a 4.3 per cent increase over the $95,043,989 in 1971. Of the total construction, $24,958,000 worth of permits were issued in the unincorporated areas of the county. The remaining $74,218,600 were issued in incorporated cities as follows:

Economy Worries Dip Stocks

NEW YORK (UPI) Stocks Stock declined sharply and broadly in active trading today on the New York Stock Exchange as investors' concern over economic worries outweighed the Vietnam cease-fire annoouncement.

Standard & Poor's 500 stock index was down 1.39 to 116.83. Declines outnumbered advances by about a 10-to-3 margin among the more than 1,809 issues on the tape.

Prices were sharply lower and active on the American Stock Exchange also.

Market behavior demonstrated the emotional impact of Vietnam has been drained out by too many false rumors of peace, analysts said.

"They cried wolf too many times for the actual ceasefire agreement to have any impact," one analyst said.

Concern the administration won't be able to hold the lid on inflation was a primary factor causing prices to fall. There is a fear also interest rates will rise.

"Increasing interest rates are a magnet that draw from the market," said Monte Grodon, analyst for Dreyfus Fund.

INCOME TAX FACTS

By PETER J. WIKEL, C.P.A.

Standard Deduction Has Big Benefit To Low-Income Person

The standard deduction looks better this year than it has ever looked before.

Also, you can use Form 1040A, let Uncle Sam figure your tax and not have to pay someone to do it for you.

The standard deduction is 15 per cent of your adjusted gross income with a maximum allowable deduction of $2,000.

Also, the low income allowance is now $1,300.

The only way to claim the low income allowance is to use the tax tables and not itemize your deductions. It is only allowable in connection with the standard deduction.

The low income allowance is only for individuals who have less than $10,000 of adjusted gross income and who do not itemize their deductions.

The low income allowance is included in the computations in the optional tax tables.

The optional tax tables give you the higher of the percentage standard deduction or the low income allowance whichever is going to result in the lowest tax for you.

If you adjusted gross income is more than $13,334, your maximum allowable standard deduction is $2,000. If it is less than $13,334 your maximum allowable standard deduction is 15 per cent of your adjusted gross income.

If you are the dependent of another person, the standard deduction applies only to your earned income and does not apply to your unearned income and you cannot use the optional tax table.

If your dependent is the beneficiary of a trust set up for him or if he owns stocks, bonds or receives interest or otherwise has unearned income, the unearned income is not subject to the low income allowance and you cannot have him file a tax return for himself and use the optional tax table.

He may claim the standard deduction on his tax return to the extent of his earned income only, so that if he were workng part time he would be able to claim the standard deduction of 15 per cent from the amount of his earned income.

If you do not have large deductions for state income taxes, real estate taxes, mortgage interest or heavy medical expenses, chances are that you would be a lot better off to use the standard deduction.

If you do have sizeable deductions, it's still a good idea to compare the deductions you have with the standard deduction and see which way you come out best.

If it is very close, the standard deduction is preferable because there is no possibility of your being audited on account of your deductions, perhaps losing some of them and certainly being put to a good deal of inconvenience.

SHOWN AT GALLERY

LaFon Photos Crisp And Lucid

By ADA GARFINKEL

Young Ron LaFon, who has studied with Ansel Adams, is exhibiting a group of his photographs at the Bull's Eye Gallery in San Anselmo.

LaFon, who is 25 years old today, began his association with Adams in 1970. Each of the 14 photographs is from this period.

Crisp and lucid, each carefully selected site or subject is filled with the aura of a concrete presence. Some of the shots are of familiar places or phenomena, but the "view" is his own.

"These images are from places within me which I had not dreamed existed until the image came into being, and I see them as my response . . . to being alive in front of the unknown", according to LaFon.

"Fog, Marin County" focuses on the sun behind a transparent corona-like veil of fog dancing lightly above softly rounded hills.

The glint of light behind two starkly barren trees, their branches touching in symbolic salute against the gathering dusk, breathe a mystic stillness into "Bristlecone Pines and Sun."

"Roger Barr, Sculptor," a portrait of the sculptor in his studio concentrates on the intense eyes, firm, sensitive lips and short, silvery beard of this dedicated artist.

The complete lack of contrived sensationalism in LaFon's work is apparent in another portrait, that of "Natalie," a serious young woman in a garden setting.

Only the similarity of location relate "Sunrise from Zabriskie Point" and "Sunset from Zabriskie Point." A close-up shot of the former shows a pattern of dark, spiky prone shapes formed by the cast shadows of the hills, while a distant shot of the latter results in an extremely low horizon and an almost flat surface.

Looking like an abstract-expressionist painting, "An Abalone Shell Detail" defies its black and white confinement, bursting with implied color.

LaFon, who had once planned to be a commercial artist, discloses a sardonic sense of humor in his title "The Grim Reaper" — a grain farm machine resting on a grassy knoll amidst a vast expanse of rolling, verdant country.

"Ice, Tenaya Lake" and "Ice Reflections" dramatically convey the rapport that LaFon shares with the environment.

The exhibit will continue through Feb. 28 and may be seen from noon to 4 p.m. Monday through Sunday. The gallery is located upstairs at 21 Mariposa Street.

Paternity Case Hearing Is Closed

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A paternity suit filed against entertainer Flip Wilson was ordered closed to the public Tuesday at the request of attorneys for both sides.

Mabel Robinson, a professional dancer, claimed in her suit that Wilson is the father of her son, Joseph, born May 26. According to court record, Wilson denied it. Superior Court Judge Harry L. Hupp ordered the proceedings closed to the public, portions of the court record sealed and extra bailiffs to keep out would-be spectators. The courtroom windows were covered with paper to prevent the curious from looking in. The hearing was continued until Feb. 20.

Emergency Herring Bill Signed

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

SACRAMENTO — An emergency bill to save the herring in Tomales Bay from destructive commercial fishing was signed into law late yesterday by the governor, but the state Fish and Game Department reversed itself and said it may not need the new law.

The department had warned early last week that if more than 500 tons of herring were taken, the resource could be "severely depleted." The warning triggered an unusually rapid passage of the bill in one week by Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael.

Yesterday, however, the department backed off, saying its biologists had "taken a new look" at the situation, and that the danger line had been "slightly revised."

The department now places the limit at 750 tons, an increase of 50 per cent over the earlier figure. Charles Fullerton, deputy director of the department, told the Independent-Journal that objections by commercial fisherman to a cutoff of the herring harvest had nothing to do with the department's new stance.

Despite arrival of three more trawlers yesterday in the bay, no cutoff may be needed, Fullerton said. As of yesterday, he added, about 350 tons had been taken by the two boats that have fished there six days.

He said the department will watch the situation, and impose the ban authorized by the Behr bill (SB 67) if necessary.

Fullerton's new danger margin of 750 tons falls halfway between the expectations of the commercial fishermen.

Zeke Grader, manager of Ocean Traders of Sausalito, whose firm is packaging all the herring for export to Asia, said he expected to harvest 500 to 1,000 tons in Tomales Bay this season.

Grader claimed that "back in the 50s they took 100,000 tons a year out of there, and the stuff kept coming back. We don't want it fished out any more than anyone else," he said.

His claim of such large harvests in the 50s, however, varied from department figures. They showed the largest take for the entire state, most of which come from Tomales Bay, was in 1952 — when 4,748 tons were taken.

Coupled with a new department study that found only 1,600 tons enter Tomales Bay a year, the heavy harvests of the 50s suggest severe depletion then of the herring resource.

If the 1,600-ton estimate is correct, Fullerton's new limit thus would allow taking virtually half of all the herring that enter the bay.

Behr's bill originally had been slated for final passage and the governor's signature last Friday, but lobbying by commercial fishermen delayed the bill. It was ready for signature before lunch yesterday, but another half day was lost because the department delayed in getting its required documentation to the governor so he could sign it.

The bill, hurried through both houses yesterday morning for adoption of amendments, was the second measure signed this year by the governor. It expires in 60 days, which will be after the herring have left the bay. Behr said he will introduce permanent legislation later.

Youth Ordered Held For Trial In Motor Theft

A youth linked to a burglary by an outboard motor was bound over yesterday to Marin Superior Court on a felony charge of breaking into a San Rafael sporting goods store.

Ordered to appear Jan. 31 by Municipal Court Judge David R. Baty was William Edward Petro.

Petro, 18, of Santa Venetia, and a 17-year-old companion were arrested Dec. 29 after a witness to the burglary at the Western Sport Shop gave police a licenee number traced to Petro's car.

In the car, police said was the stolen boat motor.

Burglars smashed a window to enter the store at 902 Third Street, according to police.

Little Jubilation, But Great Relief

It was not like the endings of other wars. There was little disposition to ring bells or dance in the streets when President Nixon announced last night that agreements had been initialed to end the fighting in Vietnam, and that the cease-fire will take effect Saturday.

There was, instead of jubilation, a great feeling of relief.

Even the President showed little emotion. He spoke in the careful, slow, sober way that characterizes his television speeches. He, too, seemed relieved. A tremendous burden is about to be lifted from his shoulders — and from the shoulders of all of us.

THE PRESIDENT stressed his old theme of "peace with honor." He specified, carefully, that the cease-fire is to be internationally supervised, and that all American prisoners of war are to be released within 60 days. These were the hard-won concessions that he had wrung with bombs and terror from an intransigent enemy, the ingredients upon which he had insisted for "peace with honor"

The President noted with sadness that Lyndon Johnson will not be with us for the signing of the cease-fire. The last rites for Mr. Johnson will be held tomorrow.

IT HAS BEEN a long time since President Johnson won from the Senate authority to use "whatever means necessary" to avenge an attack on two destroyers in the Gulf of Tonkin — authority that the senators gave him with no inkling of what those means would prove to be.

It has been a longer time since President John F. Kennedy sent American army "advisers" to join the Army of the Republic of Vietnam in the field.

It has been a long, long time —two full decades — since President Dwight D. Eisenhower sent American airplanes to lift the defeated French from Dienbienphu, and cast our lot with the French-backed government in Saigon lest "all of Southeast Asia fall to the Communists like a row of dominoes."

WE MAY ASK what Presidents Eisenhower (with Nixon as vice president), Kennedy and Johnson accomplished by getting us into Vietnam. We know what President Nixon accomplished. He got us out.

And in his inauguration speech last Saturday, Mr. Nixon showed that he, at least, has learned the lesson of Vietnam. For he said:

"The time has passed when America will make every other nation's conflict our own, or make every other nation's future our responsibility, or presume to tell the people of other nations how to manage their own affairs."

That was a lesson learned in blood in Vietnam, in discord at home; learned slowly and oh! so painfully.

Let us pray that all of us have learned it well.

If This Is 'Bare Bones,' What's Fat Budget Like?

By RUS WALTON

Well, here we go again. Governor Reagan has presented his annual state budget. Another year, another billion.

I don't suppose it does much good to point out that the $9.26 billion budget for 1973-74 is about $1.6 billion larger than last year's, or twice as large as the $4.6 billion budget of seven years ago, or three times the 1963-64 budget of $2.8 billion.

Those things roll off your back like the taxes roll off your paycheck.

State Finance Director Verne Orr says it's a "lean" budget. I'd hate to see his idea of a fat one. This is cut, squeeze and trim?

REMEMBER WHEN then-Gov. Pat Brown came out with a "bare bones" budget of $4 billion. We yelled and kicked and screamed. Now we're just numb.

The financial wooly-woofers try to salve our wounds by telling us the big hike in the budget is due to hefty increases in local assistance payments — meaning that they only collect the money at the state level and ship it back to the cities and counties.

Well, no matter how you shfit or shuffle it, or where you spend it, the whole darned $9.3 billion comes out of the taxpayers' pockets. What the state giveth, the state taketh — beforehand.

It is true that the local assistance part of the budget comes to $5.3 billion for 1973-74. That is a jump of 28 per cent in one year.

But the fact is that the legislature and the governor enacted the bills that mandated most of that increase. And the fact is that it will cost just about $4 billion next year just to grease the wheels of Babylon's in-house machinery. That $4 billion is as much as it cost to run the whole state apparatus, local assistance and all, in 1966-67.

THERE WAS SOME excuse for the ever-rising budget in the 1950s and '60s, when California was going through its post-war population explosion. Not that the entire increase in state costs during those years was due to population growth; it wasn't. The budget went up faster than the population.

But the population big bang is over and state government just keeps on spending. From 1970 to '73, California's population increased only 4 per cent while spending went up 16 per cent and next year it will be almost 21 per cent higher than last.

State government is on a spending spree. Easy come, easy go. Take education, for example. What the taxpayers said "no" to at the local level gets a big fat "yes" from the Sacramento politicans.

NO DOUBT some of the school districts do need more money. At any rate, the state has decided to give them some —of yours.

The Moretti-Reagan "tax reform" act of 1972 will give the schools an extra $561 million this coming year. That will bring the total state aid (kindergarten through high school) to $2.4 billion a year. And there will be more "new" money in future years; $668 million in 1974-75, and $768 million in 1975-76.

It all works out to more money for fewer students. The total enrollment in public schools (K-12) is going down. Of the state's 58 counties, 33 report declining enrollments.

But we are going to keep pouring money into the pot. There must be a hole in the system, somewhere.

WE'LL BE POURING more money into the health and welfare pot, too. The tab for public assistance and Medi-Cal costs, and other welfare programs, will come to about $2.1 billion. That is about $300 million more than it was for the fiscal year ending June 30.

All together, the per capita cost of the new $9.3 billion budget comes to $440. That's $440 for every man, woman and kid in the state — $1760 for a family of four.

The Chinese are right on. They call this the year of the ox — and our ox is being gored.

Sticks To His Guns On Post Exchanges

Moral justification: Who gets to write the last word? I believe the major's retired pay is adequate.

The problem of the draft, well, the Vietnam War is an unpopular one. . .

One can understand the need for post exchanges and commissaries at remote military bases, but it is hard to understand how one in the military can order an American made automobile in Manila and have it delivered here cheaper than what the local dealer can buy and sell it for here.

I still stick to my original guns on who really pays for those services rendered to regular and retired personnel, including dependents as mentioned in this letter and previous one. . .

Why mustMr. Richard M. Nixon be so conservative about money funds for the U.S., but he will casually spend four million dollars for his inauguration "coronation"?

X-Rated Scenes Shown At 'Family Movie'

Two weeks ago my husband and I decided to take our children to the drive-in theater located near the Marin-Sonoma County line. There were two "G" rated musical comedies playing that evening.

After the first movie was over, a short film was shown explaining the rating system used by that particular theater. After we were familiarized with the theater's rating system we were then shown some of the rawest scenes from three "X" rated films. When I say raw, I am not talking about nudity, but intercourse, oral copulation, etc.

Needless to say, we were shocked and embarrassed. . .

I personally am against censorship. However, I do feel that these things should be seen by people who choose to see them. The theater manager has no right to force these films on the unsuspecting and people who do not wish to see them and especially not children. Furthermore, we will not patronize any theater with our children until this practice is stopped. To other family theater goers, "BEWARE". We have a theater manager that believes that we are not adult enough to make our own decisions about whether or not we should see this sort of film. He made the decision for us as well as our children. Our right to see what we want to see has clearly been violated.

Zola Would Accuse Nixon And Pentagon

On the contrary. If Emile Zola were alive today he would no doubt be saying "J'accuse" to Richard Nixon and the pariahs in the Pentagon, exactly as McGovern, Dellums et al.

A look at the Dreyfus case shows Zola to have been speaking out against racial hatred (Dreyfus was Jewish and anti-Semitism was a major issue) and the unbridled power of the military elite. It is but a small mental step to imagine Zola speaking out against the genocide America is attempting in Southeast Asia, and against the unbridled power of our own military elite. . .

Drunken Driving Arrests Topped 2,000

Earlier this month the I-J's front page carried a story giving the total of drunk driver arrests in Marin during 1971 as 1,674. As stated, these were arrests by the California Highway Patrol.

Not stated was the fact an additional 492 drunk drivers were arrested by the county's other law enforcement agencies. Thus the year's total jail bookings for this offense was actually 2,166. Another 108 potential drunk drivers were arrested last year for being drunk in or about a motor vehicle.

Mildly hopeful is the 1972 decrease by 259 from 1971's all-time high of 2,425 drunk driver arrests. Not unexpectedly, December was the peak month in both years — 291 in 1971; 243 in 1972. For no apparent reason, April and November of 1971, with 274 arrests each, were the next highest, while March and June were next highest last year with 195 and 192 respectively.

Fishing Needed At Civic Center, Too

I would like to give three cheers to our senior citizens Perry, Perry, Week and Riegelhuth for requesting more accessible fishing in Marin lakes.

They cite terrible roads and a need for handrails for safer access to MMWD lakes.

Several years ago I wrote to the I-J fish and game columnist, the "Fishing Fool." I asked him why the fish taken out of the Civic Center Lagoon were so small and bony and requested information on how and if trout could be planted in that water.

In response to my letter he stated in his column that planted trout certainly could live at the lagoon to make excellent fishing for all to enjoy. He went on to say the probable reason the fish are small and bony was that their growth had been stunted by over-population and inadequate nourishment.

At the "Fishing Fool's" suggestion I wrote to the county parks and recreation department and the state fish and game commission requesting stocking of this water.

Millions of dollars have been spent under and on the beautiful blue bubbles called Marin Civic Center. How about blowing a bubble for our senior citizens and youth by spending a few dollars to stock the beautiful blue Civic Center lake with trout?

I ask what the senior citizens have asked, "How can one get action?"

Reasons For Federal Secrecy Dark, Unjustifiable, Illegal

WASHINGTON — You will recall the infamous Tuskegee study, in which several hundred black men were used as guinea pigs to determine (by autopsy) just what happens to the human body when syphilis is allowed to go untreated for years and decades. At any rate you should recall it, for it is the kind of government service to the people that should not be forgotten.

However, not surprisingly, the government itself is trying to avoid further embarrassment over the scandal, which was first disclosed last summer — 40 years after the Alabama experiment was begun by the U.S. Public Health Service. In doing so, it is defying the spirit and apparently the letter of a presidential executive order and a law duly passed by Congress requiring that the business of government advisory committees be open to the taxpayers.

That presidential order was issued more than six months ago. The law, passed in October during the closing weeks of the 92nd Congress, became effective Jan. 5. Yet not only did the ad hoc committee investigating the Tuskegee experiment meet in secret late last year but it scheduled another secret session in New York today.

WHY THE SECRECY? Because the testimony deals with national security, and its disclosure would help the Russians with their antimissile defenses or something? Not even the federal bureaucracy can make such a pretense in this case.

In a 35-line release, purportedly summarizing subcommittee sessions held last month, the panel offered several excuses for shutting the press and public out. One of the subcommittees is charged with determining "whether the study was justified in 1932 and whether it should have been continued when penicillin became generally available." (Penicillin never was given the suffering men and, as of last July, only 78 of the original 400 survived. They never were told what they were suffering from.) While the answers to the subcommittee's query seem self-evident, it wants to buttress its findings with further interviews.

However, interviewing the principals in open session would be "particularly difficult," the panel said. Its first reason: "The tendency toward sensationalism by the media."

Anyone without the bureaucrat's defensive habit can see that it is impossible to make the Tuskegee study anymore sensational than the bare bones of the case. The study might be going on yet, undisclosed to the public, had it not been for the terse, unsensational reporting of it in the first place —by Jean Heller of the Associated Press.

TO ANY GOVERNMENT official, reporting of facts he would rather keep discreetly concealed is sensationalism. In America, however, it is not supposed to be left to that official to decide for the taxpayers that his fear of sensationalism is reason enough to keep the public business secret.

True, the panel added that the potential for lawsuits and the "probable inhibiting effect" of publicity on witnesses were additional reasons. Fear of the press was named first, however.

Today's meeting in New York was secret for none of those reasons, according to the announcement in the Federal Register. This time the subterfuge was that all the business was to be strictly internal, about whether the rights of human subjects in continuing health experiments supported by HEW are adequately protected.

The announcement cited a directive of the assistant secretary of HEW as grounds for secrecy. Last year, the committee was operating under a notice from Elliot Richardson, then HEW secretary, which said in effect that the President's executive order opening advisory committee meetings should not be taken too seriously — that meetings still could be closed because of the department's "obligations of confidentiality and administrative necessity."

The bureaucrats' imagination in dreaming up different reasons for secrecy is unlimited, as you can see. Most of the time, the real reason is the same: fear of accountability to the public.

If you, your colleagues or your predecessors had knowingly let several hundred innocent men suffer and die even after medicine that might cure them was commonly available, you could think up a lot of reasons for secrecy about it, too.

Impossible Dream Coming True: 'Honorable Peace' In Vietnam

WASHINGTON — The impossible dream has come about — a negotiated settlement which gives South Vietnam a decent chance to survive. What looks like an "honorable peace" is no longer a dream; it is reality.

What brought it about? How did the President achieve it against such terrific odds?

There are four forces which contributed most:

1—Richard Nixon.
2—American public opinion.
3—The U.S. peace movement.
4—The South Vietnamese.

WHAT THE PRESIDENT DID — He totally rejected a policy of cut-and-run, of peace at any price, on the ground that such a course would mean that in the future no ally could rely on American commitment and no adversary could be deterred by it.

Mr. Nixon dared to risk for a time massive unpopularity when he used strong military measures to persuade Hanoi that it couldn't win on the battlefield and, therefore, must negotiate seriously.

He removed U.S. ground involvement, thereby radically reducing casualties. He continued U.S. involvement in the air. The first was politically indispensable and the second was militarily successful.

The President thought he could get Moscow's help to end the war — and he did. The China and Russia summits had purposes beyond Vietnam. They persuaded both Peking and Moscow that better relations with the United States were far more important than supportung North Vietnam.

We will never know what might have happened if we had abandoned South Vietnam at Hanoi's dictates. We will shortly see the consequences of staying on the Nixon course.

WHAT PUBLIC OPINION DID — In the end American opinion gave steadfast support to the Nixon policy of holding on for a decent peace. Last year's election showed Hanoi that it couldn't win the war in the United States. North Vietnam had only two choices — to continue a stalemate war or to negotiate seriously.

Last month it tried one final ploy — by breaking off negotiations — to see if Mr. Nixon couldn't be pressured into accepting an unenforceable cease-fire to bring the war to an end before inauguration. Mr. Nixon held firm by resuming the bombing. The American public held firm. Hanoi didn't.

WHAT THE PEACE MOVEMENT DID — I think we will come to see that on balance it helped. Obviously it increased opposition to the President's course and for a time tempted Hanoi to believe that America would become so divided that President Nixon would have to accept any kind of peace. It influenced him to withdraw ground forces more steadily than he might otherwise have done. This withdrawal itself demonstrated to Hanoi that Mr. Nixon wanted to get the United States out of Vietnam whenever a fair settlement could be had.

WHAT SOUTH VIETNAM DID — The South Vietnamese did very well. They successfully resisted the onslaught of the Tet offensive in 1968. When Americans were being told that South Vietnam was going to fall apart, it stuck together. For a year now the South Vietnamese army has borne the brunt of the entire ground war.

Whether South Vietnam can secure this peace and build on it, events still to unfold will tell.

"At this point in time" is a pet phrase of bureaucrats and other jargonists when they mean "now."

Whatever happened to the ancient art of saying what you mean in the fewest number of words?

A gobbledygooker is a fellow who'd rather flaunt his vocabulary than convey his meaning.

It's possible, though not popular, to say a mouthful without using all the words in your mouth.

That's the way the language bounces — at this point in time.

Faulty System At College Not Only Polluter Of Air

This is, I'm afraid, mostly a collection of grumbles. Those in search of cheer should look at the comics (but not at "Love Is.")

Grumble One: A letter from Larkspur City Council took nine days to reach the Independent-Journal. Less than a mile a day is hardly first class mail.

Grumble Two: The Marin Community College District is spending up to $5,000 on a consultant's investigation of the poor heating and air conditioning system in its smart new Harlan Center and Science Center. Installed a year ago at a cost of $200,000, the system functions so poorly that while some pockets in corridors are roasting hot, offices have been registering 58 degrees, and students alternately shivering and sweating. Legal action is possible.

GRUMBLE THREE: Last year following legal action, the College of Marin's RCA computer was returned, after RCA went out of the computer business, and another computer will be bought this summer. The college district doesn't seem to be having much luck with its shopping lately. It certainly makes you hope its multi-million dollar spending spree for Indian Valley Colleges will have a little consumer consciousness somewhere along the line.

Grumble Four: The Ross Valley Sanitary District board's action in appointing a new board member without making the vacancy public has raised grumbles on all sides. S. Stanley Knowles, who owns Knowles and Co. in San Rafael, a heating and sheet metal firm, was appointed Jan. 2 after Ray I. Johnson resigned.

Johnson had narrowly led a field of four candidates in election to the board last June. He resigned pleading press of business, but his resignation wasn't announced.

One of the unsuccessful candidates in the election, Joan Seminario, told me she was "very disappointed" that the board hadn't contacted her or the other unelected candidate, Roger Bockrath. She didn't feel she ought to have been appointed, she said, but she did think the board should have opened the vacancy for public interview.

Board president Eugene Ostaggi told me the board had no legal requirement to call for applicants, and he didn't feel they should have.

GRUMBLE FIVE: Associated students of College of Marin spent a few hundred dollars mailing out ballots to more than 6,000 students in an effort to pep up interest in this semester's student government election. When it came to the count only 488 students had bothered to vote. A little old-fashioned campaigning and razzmatazz would undoubtedly have been cheaper, and might have generated more interest. And the money could have been spent on cheer leaders' uniforms — a request turned down last semester by the all-male board of directors of Associated Students.

Anti-Grumble One: What with the flu and the floods and general depression, I can only offer the latest fifth-grade joke: Did you hear about the glow-worm who had a nasty accident? He was delighted.

Petaluman Held For High Court

A Marin Municipal Court judge ruled yesterday there is enough evidence to try Stanley Herbert Mitchell, 21, of Petaluma, for the armed robbery of a hitchhiker.

After hearing evidence against Mitchell, Judge Robert A. Smallman ordered him to appear in Superior Court Feb. 7 on the felony count.

Mitchell was arrested in Marin City Jan. 14 after 19-year-old Robert Gorman of Fairfax, found looking for his clothes in Mill Valley, told police two men robbed him, then forced him to disrobe before leaving him in Mill Valley.

Gorman told police he was seeking a ride from Santa Venetia to San Anselmo, but found himself being robbed in Larkspur. Police have not captured a second man believed involved in the robbery.

THE PEOPLE'S SCHOOLS

Uninformed Minority May Elect School Trustees

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

In more than 1,000 California school districts, voters (some of them) will go to the polls on April 17 to elect school board members.

The people they elect can control the kind of public schools Californians have for the next four years. They can — but it is doubtful whether they will.

UNLESS THERE IS a departure from the past, in most districts a minority of the electorate will choose the school board members. Turnouts of over half the eligible voters for school elections are the exception rather than the rule.

Unless there is a departure from the past, in most districts there will be little definition of issues in the campaigns, and the campaigning will be principally of the neighborhood "kaffee klatsch" variety. Of the minority who go to the polls on April 17, a much smaller minority will know much about the candidates, the issues and problems those elected must face, and the stands (if any) on those issues and problems taken by the aspirants for office.

The low-kay approach usually taken in school trustee elections in California arises largely from two causes: the non-partisan nature of the elections, and the prevailing notion that, anyhow, it is better to leave running the schools to the educators.

PARTISANSHIP in school government — although standard practice in some states — has obvious drawbacks. But a partisan election has the advantage of bringing into action established political organizations to back candidates and force issues into the campaign. In non-partisan school elections, the lack of such organizations tends to keep the campaigns insipid, unsubstantial, and for many people almost invisible.

As a result, school board service has often become, as H. Thomas James, former professor of education at Stanford University, aptly described it, "one of the last remaining opportunities in the political world for the 'gentleman in public office.'" And as Professor James also noted, "'gentlemen in public office' have a marked distaste for controversy and public uproar." Therefore, the school board members elected in non-controversial campaigns generally turn the tough questions over to their superintendents, to avoid the unpleasant chore of making decisions themselves.

The result is that the elected boards are reduced to housekeeping chores, worrying about the budget, and trying to find support for increased taxes to pay the spiraling costs of over-administered school systems. As James D. Koerner pointed out in "Who Controls American Education?":

"In theory school boards hire administrators to carry out the basic policies of the board and look after the details of running schools, but in practice more often than not the administrators establish the basic policies and the boards worry about the details."

WHETHER THIS continues to be true in California depends partly on what kind of candidates stand for school boards this year (the filing period ends Feb. 16), how well they are scrutinized during the campaign, and how many voters turn out to cast ballots in April.

"Leaving it to the experts" has not produced unalloyed satisfaction with the public schools. A suggestion for both candidates and voters may be found in Koerner's book:

"Laymen badly need to sensitize themselves to the limitations of educational expertise . . . Whether it is a question of educational aims or philosophy, of what subjects should be studied and for how long, of whether and how schools or teachers should be evaluated, of whether and how students should be divided by ability, of testing intelligence and what intelligence means, of 'compensatory' education, or of any other substantive matter that can be named, the expert's knowledge is not good enough for the rest of us to leave the policy decisions to him, not nearly good enough."

It is often said that local school boards lack power. In fact, however, they generally fail to exercise the power they have.

California Gold Rush

When gold was discovered on this date 125 years ago at Sutter's Mill in California, tens of thousands rushed to the West Coast to make their fortunes. Workmen abandoned fields and factories, soldiers left their units, and sailors deserted their ships. In July, 1849, there were about 500 empty ships crowded into San Francisco Bay. People came to the gold fields from as far away as Europe and Australia. Lucky winners of a French lottery received a trip to California. Between 1848 and 1852, California mines produced an estimated $200,000,000 worth of gold.

DO YOU KNOW — What were the miners who came to California in 1849 called?

Flood Delays Outfall Line Into Bay

Completion of the Novato Sanitary District's outfall line to San Pablo Bay has been delayed further by last week's flooding, according to Dist. Mgr. Charles A. Joseph.

The project, first delayed last year when the line moved in boggy soil, might not be completed by the Feb. 15 deadline set by the Regional Water Quality Control board, Joseph said. He expected that an extension of the deadline would be granted.

The area around the outfall line is too wet to work in and the district intends to wait until the soil is dried out, he said.

Joseph reported to directors Monday night that there was "lots of infiltration" of storm water into district lines during the floods, but all the intruding flow went through the treatment plant.

Directors authorized spending up to $2,500 for television camera inspection of trunk lines to seek out infiltration points.

Directors also agreed to have joint meetings with the Novato City Countil on mutual problems, with the first meeting scheduled at 7:30 a.m. Feb. 13 at Sambo's restuarant, Novato.

Junking Of Title Jargon Asked At Redwood High

By PAT PERRY

What's the difference between an assistant educational leader and a dean?

None at all, except that one title has four letters and everyone knows what it means. The other title has 26 letters and represents the height of administrative jargon.

Or at least that's what Redwood High School students, teachers and administrators say. They have voted overwhelmingly to return to semantic sanity and do away with the ponderous titles of "educational leader," "associate educational leader" and "assistant educational leader" that have lain heavy on the school since last year.

Four letter words will prevail.

Jack Ralph Baat will be known as the assistant principal at the Larkspur school. Paul V. Bosque, Richard F. Frakes, Nicholas J. Gennaro and William D. Wilkinson will carry the neat titles of dean.

Donald Kreps wants to be known as principal, although he has to get permission from the Tamalpais High School District's board of trustees, since they originally designated him "educational leader."

Kreps said the other changes — voted Monday afternoon by the school's department chairmen council — will take place immediately.

In effect it means that the old titles will be put back on the administrators' doors . . . no one had thrown them away.

Kreps said almost everyone in the school was in favor of simplifying the titles, and student representatives were among the strongest advocates.

Elsewhere in the Tam district, Thomas M. Lorch at Sir Francis Drake High School in San Anselmo basks in the resplendent title of leader of educational planning, supported by a program coordinator, an administrative director, a dean of boys, a dean of student activity and a part-time dean of girls.

Lorch, who isn't at all sure why he's a leader of educational planning while his counterparts at the district's other two high schools are educational leaders, says the titles haven't led to confusion.

The administrative director's position is closest to that of assistant principal, explained Lorch, while the program coordinator, Jack Hayes, coordinates classroom curriculum and pupil services.

And at Mill Valley's Tamalpais High School, the man in charge, Lawrence Sheppard is known as the educational leader. He's backed up by principal Raymond J. Bell, associate principal James Hanretty, assistant principal Theodore Mitchell, another assistant principal Anthony Compagno, and a dean of student activities, John McSween.

Crackdown Set On Hard Core Delinquents

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The county Board of Supervisors has ordered a crackdown on juvenile delinquents, particularly the 850 youths on a police list of "hard core offenders."

"Each has a minimum of 10 and as many as 28 previous arrests," said Supervisor Kenneth Hahn Tuesday.

"They are legally on probation or are free in the community. They should be given intensive supervision and a concentrated effort must be made toward cracking down on the offenders when they are involved in future crimes."

The board unanimously adopted a motion by Hahn to set up an "emergency program" within 30 days to deal with the 850 youths, who were listed by the Los Angeles Police Department.

Today is Wednesday, Jan. 24, the 24th day of 1973 with 341 to follow.

The moon is approaching its last quarter. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus, Mars and Jupiter. The evening star is Saturn.

American sculptor Paul Wayland Bartlett was born Jan. 24, 1865.

On this day in history:

In 1908, the first Boy Scout troop was organized in England by Sir Robert Baden-Powell, a general in the British army.

In 1922, Christian Nelson of Onawa, Iowa received a patent for his "Eskimo Pie," a brick of ice cream encased in a coating of chocolate.

In 1965 the world mourned the death of famous English statesman Sir Winston Churchill, known as the first citizen of the Free World and leader of Britain during the darkest days of World War II.

In 1972, President Nixon sent Congress a record $246.3 billion budget and announced a current deficit of almost $39 billion.

A thought for the day: Sir Winston Churchill said, "Dictators ride to and fro upon tigers they dare not dismount and the tigers are getting hungry."

San Rafael air quality yesterday:

Oxidants, clean air.

Nitrogen dioxide, clean air.

Carbon monoxide, clean air.

Smoke particles, clean air.

Other areas:

San Francisco, clean air.

San Jose, significant air pollution.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources, while the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

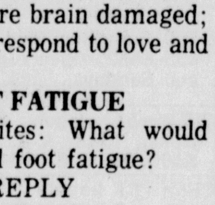
HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Acute Anxiety Masquerades As Many Types Of Ailments



Anxiety, the most common emotional problem, masquerades as nervousness, tension, panic, restlessness, or fatigue. All of us have a touch of it now and then. An acute spell may last a few minutes, hours, or days. The victim feels as apprehensive and fearful as though some catastrophe had overtaken him.

But this does not concern him as much as his racing pulse, pounding heart (palpitation), tightness in the chest, shortness of breath, tension in the scalp, or dizziness. Symptoms of these kinds make him restless, tremulous, agitated, panicky, and terrified.

THE INTERPRETATION of these attacks is all important. Some victims are positive that they are having a heart attack. Still others believe they are losing their mind or are about to die. The individual and his family are sure that the sudden distress is a warning of a major disease and frequently rush the victim to the hospital. Once the complex is fixed in the victim's mind, it may be difficult to erase.

Acute anxiety is not difficult to recognize. Delays aggravate the situation and the sooner the individual is told about it, the quicker the anxiety can be brought under control. It is reassuring to know that the heart is normal or the individual is not going insane.

TESTS, SUCH as an electrocardiogram, may be needed to substantiate the diagnosis.

Meanwhile, a sedative or tranquilizer may be needed, especially when the individual is panicky. When calmness is reestablished, it becomes necessary to get down to the nitty-gritty. Anxiety of this sort usually stems from emotional stresses and strains that have 'piled up' for many years and have been aggravated by recent events.

Actually, the individual was indeed fearful and 'scared to death'. The symptoms were not imaginary, but were somewhat similar to stage fright. A few follow-up discussions are most helpful, and more so, if the person has had previous attacks of acute anxiety.

Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.

HAS ULCER

M.Y.H. writes: I am in my late 60s and learned to swim as a child. However, I have done practically no swimming in recent years because of an ulcer. Would swimming be harmful to me now?

REPLY

No, assuming it is an internal lesion, such as a peptic ulcer. Swimming might also be helpful especially if the activity is relaxing and the exercise improves your feeling of well-being. If you have a leg ulcer, swimming may be beneficial, but you must think of others.

AUTISM

W.M. writes: What is meant by autistic tendencies in a child?

REPLY

An autistic child does not respond normally to his environment and fails to develop a meaningful relationship with his parents. Many of these youngsters are brain damaged; they cannot respond to love and affection.

FOOT FATIGUE

H.B.T. writes: What would help calf and foot fatigue?

REPLY

Muscle conditioning is most helpful when the individual lacks physical fitness and is otherwise healty. In older persons, the circulation must be improved.

Woman Admits Charges Of Pot, Mischief

A 29-year-old San Rafael woman — arrested in the ravaged apartment of her ex-husband — pleaded guilty yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to malicious mischief and a reduced misdemeanor count of having marijuana.

Justine Virginia Thompson pleaded guilty after the district attorney asked Judge Robert A. Smallman to reduce the felony pot count against her. Sentencing was set for Feb. 16.

Mrs. Thompson was arrested Dec. 17 by San Rafael police, who received a report that furniture was being hurled from the window of the apartment at 804 A Street.

Found on the bed in the battered apartment was Mrs. Thompson, police said. A routine search at the Marin County Jail produced three packets of marijuana, police said.

State Files Suit Over Oil Spill

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The state filed suit Tuesday against the Hong Kong owners of the freighter S.S. Liberty Manufacturer, charging that the ship spilled up to 60 barrels of oil into Los Angeles harbor when it ran aground last year.

The suit, filed by state Attorney General Evelle J. Younger, said that at the time of the grounding off Point Fermin Oct. 7, the ship discharged five to 10 barrels of oil into the water.

Another 25 to 50 barrels were spilled by the time the freighter was pulled free from the rocks weeks later, the complaint said.

The suit, filed against Manufacturers Navigation Co., seeks $6,000 in civil penalties and another $2,090 for supervision and aid in removing and cleaning pollutants caused by the spill.

Deported Priest From Philippines Will Speak

Rev. Bruno Hicks, an American priest deported from the Philippines for allegedly "subversive activities," will discuss the present upheaval in the Philippines at a dinner meeting of the Marin division of the World Affairs Council Monday at the Sausalito Yacht Club.

Father Hicks, ousted last October, raised the ire of Philippines President Ferdinand Marcos with his broadcasts over a Franciscan radio station, warning against the militarization of the Philippines. Father Hicks also contends his work toward land reform and in exposing injustices of the plantation system angered sugar planters and local landlords.

Reservations may be made before Friday by contacting the World Affairs Council at 406 Sutter Street, San Francisco. Father Hicks's 8 p.m. speech will be preceded by dinner at 7 p.m. and cocktails at 6:30 p.m.

Warehouse Is Looted

A motorcycle, motorcycle engine, auto parts and two shotguns valued at about $8,000 were taken yesterday from a warehouse at the Peacock Gap Country Club by a thief who removed several padlocks, San Rafael police reported today.

Minister Suspended For Fonda Ceremony

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — An Episcopal minister was suspended Tuesday for marrying actress Jane Fonda and antiwar activist Tom Hayden in violation of canon law.

Bishop C. Kilmer Myers handed a "letter of Godly admonition" to the Rev. Richard York of Berkeley, Calif., suspending him indefinitely. York married Hayden and Miss Fonda last weekend in Los Angeles.

Law Group Is Opposing No-Fault Insurance Bill

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The board of governors of the State Bar Association yesterday opposed the only no-fault auto insurance bill currently before the legislature.

While endorsing the concept of no-fault insurance, Leonard S. Janofsky of Los Angeles, president of the state bar, said the measure (AB50) by Assemblyman Jack Fenton, D-Montebello, and Sen. Alfred H. Song, D-Monterey Park, was not in the "public interest."

Under no-fault, a motorist is paid damages by his own insurance company regardless of who is to blame for an accident.

Janofsky declared the Fenton-Song bill had an excessively high threshhold of medical expenses—$1,000—that must be incurred before an injured person could sue.

He said the measure was "unfair to persons who are wrongfully injured in automobile accidents."

Janofsky said the board of governors voted last week to modify their position last year calling for a $500 threshhold.

Instead they proposed a $250 threshold with a provision that a person with medical expenses between $250 or $1,000 could accept the no-fault benefits or submit his claim to arbitration. Beyond $1,000, a person would retain his current rights.

Richard A. McCormick of Fresno, vice president of the bar, said the threshold and arbitration provisions would allow 60 per cent of injured persons to make legal claims for damages compared to 6 per cent under the Song-Fenton bill.

How You Can Help In The Energy Crisis

EDITOR'S NOTE: (It will take more than experts to cope with the world's growing energy shortage. Here are some simple, practical measures that you can take at home, work, or play to bring major energy savings.)

By PETER TONGE

The Christian Science Monitor News Service

When David Rose fitted radial tires to his 1958 Aston Martin, he calculated he would save a significant amount of gasoline. He did. It came to something better than $30 worth of fuel a year as reduced road friction cut consumption by 10 per cent.

Doctor Rose is a professor at the Masschusetts Institute of Technology (MIT). His specialty is energy conservation. Hence his interest in radials, in fluorescent lighting, and in storm windows, among other items, and in such things as shade trees and windbreaks.

They all save energy to a degree that makes economic sense. They can also contribute substantially, when practiced on a wide scale, to holding back what many see as an approaching energy crisis.

They represent practical measures individuals can take to help prevent this crisis from developing. The old-fashioned familiarity of some of these things, such as storm windows, shouldn't hide their relevance as important energy-savers.

The United States and Europe particularly appear vulnerable to energy shortages in the decades ahead. In fact, outside of the Middle East and the Soviet Union, few nations have satisfactory energy reserves, Rose contends.

Known oil reserves, according to Lawrence Rocks and Richard P. Runyan ("The Energy Crisis," Crown Publishers), will last some 20 years at 1970 consumption rates; 15 years at the present growth rate. Natural gas is put at 40 and 30 years respectively. Only coal, among the fossil fuels, is relatively abundant and could last 300 years.

The U.S. energy bill, including transportation of fuels, now stands at $100 billion. That's one-tenth of the gross national product. Overall energy demands will double in the next 18 years while the population grows 30 percent, says Rose. Pure industrial energy consumption is rising at a considerably faster rate, according to Rocks and Runyon — 7 to 1.1 in relation to population growth.

Half of everything transported in the U.S. today is fuel. More petroleum has been consumed here since the mid 1950's than in all history up to that point. Electric power consumption, now twice what it was 10 years ago, could rise to between four and six times its present level by the turn of the century, according to some projections.

Total rate of energy use in the U.S. now is about 10 kilowatts for each man, woman, and child according to Rose. This is not just electricity, but also gas, gasoline, heating oil, and so forth. It includes not only what each one uses personally, but also his or her share of the coke in the steel mills, of jet transport fuel, and the like. The total is prodigious. It amounts to more than one third of all the power consumed in the world today. Put another way, 6 per cent of the world's population expends 33 per cent of its power output.

That so much energy is spent, much of it in cavalier fashion, suggests that much can be conserved by plugging the leaks.

A study, "The Potential for Energy Conservation," put out by the President's Office of Emergency Preparedness suggests that by 1980 the U.S. could save the equivalent of 7.3 million barrels of oil a day by steadily implementing such measures as:

Improved insulation in homes; adoption of more efficient air-conditioning systems; shifting intercity freight from highway to rail, "short-haul" passengers from air to ground travel, and urban passengers from automobiles to mass transit; and through the introduction of more efficient industrial processes.

The average man on the street can help in many ways too, and help his pocket book at the same time, say the experts.

The radial tires mentioned earlier are a case in point. Their greater expense tends to be balanced by longer life (40,000 miles). From Rose's point of view their improved traction, coupled with reduced surface friction on the road, is the important thing.

Tests he has carried out show the reduced friction improves gasoline mileage by 10 per cent. That is an important factor in view of the anticipated 12 per cent increase in gas consumption brought about by higher exhaust emission standards.

Buildings, too, are prolific wasters of energy. Nearly every home in the U.S. spills heat needlessly into the winter air just as it fails to keep out unwanted heat in summer.

Better housing designs and optimum insulation of buidings would cut energy consumed for heating and air-conditioning by more than 25 per cent.

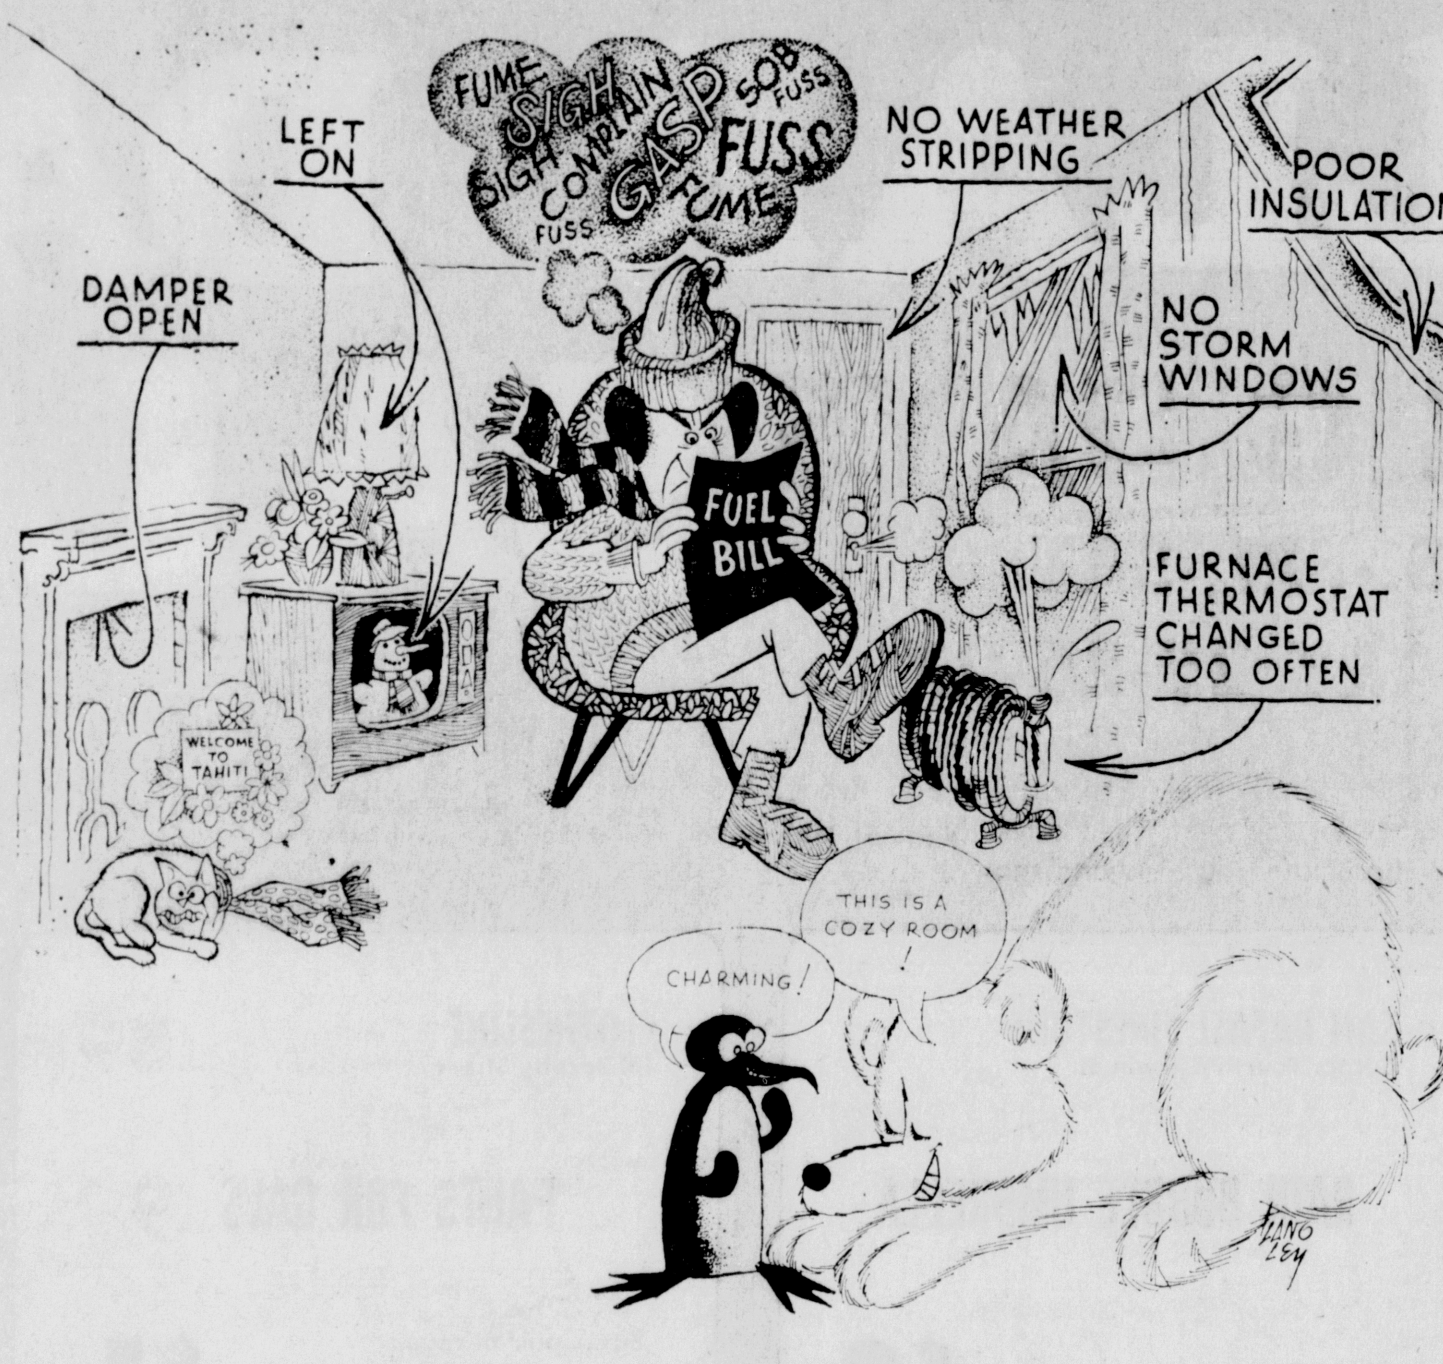
The cost of this additional insulation during construction of a medium-sized house, Rose estimates, would come to $200. It is a small sum compared to the annual heating cost of around $400 a year for the same home inadequately insulated.

Tests at MIT suggest that the cost of storm windows can be recouped through a saving in heating costs in six years. The double glazing creates a dead-air space, reducing heat loss.

Other significant savings result from having blinds or drapes, or both, at every window. Draw them the moment the sun goes down. The more dead-air spaces between room and outside window the better the heat retention.

every little leak. The constant flow of cold air coming through the keyhole is balanced by an equivalent outflow of warm air — air your oil or gas bill shows you have paid good money to heat.

Another tip: If you have a fireplace, keep the damper shut whenever there's no fire in the grate. Warm, invisible air billows out of an open chimney just as smoke does.



Humidity can also be important. A home that's too dry must be kept warmer than one with the proper humidity level to give the same degree of comfort, according to the Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University at Blacksburg, Va. The Institute suggests a humidifier may be a worthwhile investment in those areas where the winter air gets very dry.

Never turn down a thermostat in home or office more than about five degrees for short periods such as overnight. Otherwise, it may take more energy to restore heat to the home than was saved by the reduction.

A protective row of conifers down the side of the house exposed to the prevailing winds can cut down quite significantly on heat loss. A building, says Rose, is subject to the chill factor, just as people are. In contrast, deciduous trees on the sunny side of the house provide shelter from summer sun. They shed their leaves in winter, allowing the warm rays through when they're most needed.

Savings on electrical power consumption in a home can be considerable. As anti-pollution needs place increasing strictures on power generation and as fuel supplies decrease to push up the price to consumers, the practicality of such savings will become obvious.

Says a spokesman for the electrical appliance industry, "Turning off the light when you leave the room will become a meaningful thing to do. Pennywise today it will become nickelwise tomorrow."

Many little things can bring further energy-money savings. Here are some suggestions:

Refrigeration: If your freezer isn't self-defrosting, defrost it when the ice becomes a quarter-inch thick. A greater ice thickness cuts down on the cooling power of the coils. A self-defrosting refrigerator, by the way, consumes up to 50 per cent more electrical current than the standard model.

Keep your freezer full. The costly cold is retained by the food whereas 80 per cent of the cold air spills out every time you open the refrigerator door.

Cooking: Never boil more water than is necessary to cook with. Use pots and pans that fully cover the elements. Use plug-in appliances such as skillets where possible. They are generally fitted with thermostats and can be set for exactly the amount of heat you need.

Prepare double quantities of such things as soups or stews which take a long time to cook. Then freeze the unused portion for future use. It is less power-consuming to hold the food in refrigeration and warm it up when needed than to cook up a new batch. Plan your meals. Several dishes can be baked in an oven as economically as one food item. Remember, too, every time you open your oven door you lose at least 20 per cent of its heat. For some dishes a pressure cooker cuts down considerably on cooking time and therefore on the amount of energy used.

Bathing: A shower generally uses a lot less water than bathing in a tub. To be really economical try the Navy method. Soap yoursef thoroughly. Then step into the shower for a quick rinse down.

Remember, hot water left in the pipes represents wasted heat. When installing a new heater have it located as close to your bathroom or kitchen sink as possible. Sometime in the future, waste hot water from bath or sink will be made to pass over the inlet pipes, in such systems, thus pre-warming the water before it reaches the heater.

Washing: Always wash full loads. It saves time, hot water, and electricity. Use cold water and cold-water detergents whenever they can do the job.

Drying: Don't overdry clothes. It is costly in heat and puts wrinkles in the garments.

Lighting: Fluorescent tubes use one sixth of the power as your electric iron in a 110-volt circuit. On the other hand, you use a lot more lights and burn them longer than you use irons. So it pays to turn off unneeded lights, and the television set nobody is watching.

Contrary to popular belief, turning a light on and off does not use more electricity than leaving it on.

Airconditioning: An efficient airconditioner will use as little as half the current of an inefficient one to give the same cooling effect. A simple test when buying a new one is to divide the number of watts into the BTU's per hour. Both have to be listed by law. The quotient will vary from 3 to 11. The higher the number, the greater the efficiency of the nit. From 7 on up is considered good.

Put the conditioner in a window on the shady side of the house. See, too, that it is not surrounded by shrubs, bushes or other dense growth outside the window. This will prevent efficient discharge of the heat.

These are simple measures. Yet, in saving energy, they could have a mighty impact.

Mail To Go Electric In Cupertino Soon

CUPERTINO (AP) — The mail will go electric here soon — and officials think it will help the air and foil Fido.

Sometime in February the Cupertino Post Office will become the first postal facility in the nation to convert to all electric delivery cars when it gets 30 battery-operated vehicles, Postmaster Alvin R. Carter said yesterday.

They cost far less to operate than conventional cars, create no smog and offer an advantage to the harried mailman — they move through neighborhoods so quietly they won't wake sleeping dogs.

"That's a formidable achievement in the eyes of a mail carrier," said Charles Nelson, assistant vehicles service manager for the Postal Service's western region.

Carter said Cupertino will serve as a test point for a fully electric mail car fleet, and if the experiment succeeds, the vehicles may be introduced in post offices throughout the country.

He said the Cupertino Post Office was selected for a test of prototype battery-powered delivery vans, "because we are a typical residential community, but the terrain here is also hilly, so we could see how well the cars performed."

After eight months of testing two prototype models, an English-designed Harbilt unit, powered by a 72-volt, 10.5 horsepower motor, did the best job, and the U.S. government has ordered 30 of the vehicles to replace conventional models in Cupertino.

The San Francisco firm of Electric Vehicle Co. was given the contract to build them and plans to rent the vehicles — equipped with right-hand drive, four wheels and hydraulic brakes — to the Postal Service for $46 a week.

The cars, which can reach a top speed of 35 miles per hour, have a range of nearly 50 miles on a single battery charge. Carter said most routes in Cupertino cover 10 to 12 miles.

The cars can be recharged overnight at a cost of about 16 cents a day — compared to an average cost of more than $1 a day in gas for conventional postal vehicles.

A Clothes Craze Rugby Jerseys

CHRISTCHURCH, N.Z. (AP) — A local clothing company has exported $60,000 worth of rugby jerseys to the west coats of the United States, and says the market has great potential.

The sales campaign followed reports that the cost of outfitting a gridiron team was forcing many young Americans to turn to rugby.

The company also says the colorful "rugger" jerseys have caught on among young people as a zany fashion craze for casual wear.

Man Is Just At Fringe Of Depths

CHICAGO (UPI) —To explore the ocean man will go to great depths. So do turtles, seals and whales.

In free dives, without special equipment, man has gone about 200 feet beneath the ocean's surface, according to Encyclopaedia Britannica. Turtles and seals go five times that depth.

But sperm whales regularly swim along the ocean bottom at depths as great as 3,700 feet. The physiological mechanism that permits them to accomplish this feat has not been explained.

Cheap Food Era Ends In Britain

By JOHN ALLAN MAY
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

LONDON — It is the end of an era.

The price of the roast beef of old England now is almost too much for young England. Since the pay and prices "freeze" began Nov. 6, it has risen 37 per cent. Rump steak is the equivalent to $2.40 a pound, filet up to $3.60.

Many young families, and many retired folk, find they cannot afford the traditional Sunday joint any more.

Minister of Agriculture Joseph Godber had roast lamb for Sunday lunch instead of beef, as of course did many other Britons. But the price of lamb also has gone up 50 per cent in the same period.

Prime Minister Edward Health has appointed a special panel of three experts to undertake an urgent inquiry, particularly into the price of beef, and to report by Jan. 13.

One member of the panel is Dame Elizabeth Ackroyd, chairman of the Consumer Council until it was axed in almost the first official action of the incoming Conservative government in 1970.

Doubtless Heath hopes to establish without fear of further argument that it is not Britain's entry into the Common Market that has put food prices up.

If the panel found it were — which is most unlikely — Heath and his government would be in real and immediate trouble. They have reported again and again the pledge that entry will increase food costs by only 2.5 per cent per annum. Thirty-seven per cent is a great deal too much.

But the plain fact it, whatever is responsible for this particular price explosion, the era of cheap food for the British has come to an end.

That era was made possible by purchases on favorable terms in the British Commonwealth and in the rest of the agricultural and developing world, plus a "deficiency payments" policy that in effect subsidized consumers.

It was also the case that demand elsewhere for traditional British foods was light.

Now Commonwealth preferces have gone. The subsidy for the consumer has gone. The Common Market's "dear food" policy has been adopted. And at the very same time, world demand for food the British prefer, particularly beef, has risen markedly.

Everywhere it is the age of rising expectation.

Experts here say it is therefore very unlikely there will ever be cheap food again in Britain.

This will have important consequences. Many British farmers, for instance, now may switch from milk to beef and wheat.

The British diet will change.

But even more importantly, the ending of the pay freeze will be made still more difficult for the government to handle. Pressure for large pay increases inevitably will grow.

Meanwhile, the cost structure of British industry will be dramatically altered. There will be even more incentive to save on labor.

But there also will be pressure radically to improve British productivity — which would do the country, and most individuals, a great deal of good in the long-term.

However, at this precise moment the most obvious, and politically potent, factor simply is that Mrs. John Bull needs more money for the housekeeping.

Smoking By Students Problem For Schools

By JULIA MALONE
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

Increased cigarette smoking by high-school students in America is forcing schools to take a new look at smoking rules.

When not allowed to smoke during school, students crowd into rest rooms to smoke illegally, creating a smoky nuisance for nonsmokers. Often school property is damaged.

At Brookline (Mass.) High School a junior comments, "So many people smoke that the smoke oozes out of the doors of the rest rooms." Inside, she says, "you can hardly breathe."

Across the country the story is often the same. Federal estimates indicate 30 to 40 per cent of high-school students are smokers.

Smoking is an "increasingly serious problem which plagues a vast majority" of high-school principals, according to the National Association of Secondary School Principals.

No-smoking rules are hard to enforce, to say the least. The usual penalty is suspension from school. But as Fairfax, Va., School Superintendent John Davis points out: "Often we called homes and the parents would say, "We permit him to smoke'."

Some parents, health authorities, and teachers want student smoking prohibited for health reasons. Roy L. Davis of the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare's clearinghouse on smoking and health at Bethesda, Md., says he receives about one letter a week from high schools with smoking problems.

"Everyone agrees that schools should offer health training," he says, adding that harsh action against smokers is not always the answer. "There is considerable evidence that smoking is compensatory. If the school is too punitive, it may be putting down the very kids that need help — and may even be encouraging them to smoke."

In Montgomery County, Md., school officials are trying a different tack. They for the youngest children, using gentle persuasion to steer them away from cigarettes.

Students form their attitudes about smoking long before they reach high school, according to William F. Hauptman, health program supervisor for Montgomery schools. For part of his campaign to reach younger grades, high-school students go into elementary schools to present anti-smoking skits, films, and talks.

Hauptman says whether the campaign will affect smoking habits later, he can't tell, but "right now we have them on their side."

In Montgomery high schools, however, smokers congregated in rest rooms caused enough damage to force officials to change the rules. Since 1969, students have been allowed to smoke outside.

Hauptman thinks the move is unfortunate. "My idea is that we shouldn't allow smoking on school grounds," he says. "I don't think they have that much of a habit. This gives a chance for the habit to grow."

With the growth of student rights, many young people are arguing that they should be able to smoke just as adults in schools may smoke. At Bethel High School in Spanaway, Wash., for example, students asking for a school smoking area claim smoking as a right, not just a privilege.

Many schools now are relaxing rules. Davis estimates that a third of U.S. high schools allow smoking outside buildings.

Fairfax schools have gone that route for almost a year. So far, the plan has run smoothly, according to officials. Five schools report their rest rooms are smokeless.

At the high school in Swampscott, Mass., students are allowed to smoke during free periods if they move off school grounds. Geoffrey Aronson, a senior, says the new rule saves the lavatories. In the past, he says, smokers congregated in rest rooms, sat on basins, and often broke mirrors. Damage has decreased since smokers have gone outside.

The right to smoke outdoors doesn't guarantee an end to rest-room problems, however, Brookline High has allowed smoking for some time. But that hasn't ended the smoke filled lavatories — especially when temperatures outdoors bounce around zero.

Paris, Developers Unite For Massive Rebuilding

By FRAN P. HOSKEN
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

PARIS — Seen from the Trocadero terrace facing the Eiffel Tower, the gray silhouette of Tour Montparnasse mars one of the best views of Paris This is why the city's first real skyscraper has created a celebrated uproar among Parisians and urbanists around the world

It is doubtful now that another developer will soon risk a similar scandal Nevertheless, as Paris expands and rebuilds to meet the needs of its burgeoning modern population, public authorities find the help of private developers urgently needed

Here and elsewhere in France they are showing the world how such help can harmonize with public planning in ways that both reward developers and build an exciting, satisfying environment for people.

As L Guillet, architect of Paris's largest reconstruction project, Operation Place d'Italie, explains, "It is not at all necessary to build that high (as Tour Montparnasse)."

His project shows one can make money keeping within some height limits and without attracting undue attention.

These vast rebuilding projects throughout Paris are politically sensitive, as they involve enormous investments and profits. But the city itself simply cannot affort to do what is necessary on its own, according to the Paris Planning Office So it arranges to call on large private developers "We have waited too long. Now many of the obsolete areas of the city simply must be renewed all at once." the planners say Thus Paris is changing faster than any other capital in Europe and Paris builds out as well as up

For everything built inside Paris several times as much is being built elsewhere Indeed outside of many cities all over France large new satellite communities are appearing. Some are planned as independent, self-sufficient cities, attracting all kinds of industry, including some from Paris

Those businesses that cannot leave the Paris region will be encouraged to move into one of the five new towns, or "areas designated for intensive urban development" By the end of the century each should house several hundred thousand people and be part of a complete new transportation network that will interconnect the whole area

These five areas of "concentrated urban development" organize growth that is bound to occur anyway into a cohesive, planned pattern that preserves the handsomest recreational areas along the Seine Valley By creating centers of growth with public support and with public transportation, the economic prospects of the whole area are enhanced the quality of life of everyone is vastly improved and the natural environment is protected

At this stage, two of the five planned new towns are growing rapidly — Cergy Pontoise and Evry While the prefecture, the regional administrative center, was the only building of the new town of Evry in the spring of 1971 by now thousands of apartment units are under construction Some already are inhabited

Evry is on flat land. Therefore it is easy to build. It can be reached quickly on an existing expressway from Paris, just beyond the airport of Orly

Farmland in this area consists of large holdings, easy to acquire. By declaring land "designated for development" by a public authority, the government automatically removes it from speculation. The land continues to be used for agriculture until it is actually needed. This avoids that dreadful interim stage seen around American cities where speculators buy acreage in the path of future growth and it promptly becomes an unsightly wasteland.

The typical process in France is for the public authority to make a general land-use plan Then development priorities are assigned. Sector by sector, private conglomerates and teams are asked to submit plans for certain areas in a staged-competition form. The different parcels thus made available to private developers — who must provide their own financing, construction, architecture and management — are very large. They involve several thousand housing units at one time plus all roads, services, infrastructure, schools, public buildings, and so forth.

Last summer I saw the architectural models and drawings submitted for the second or final stage of a sector of Evry. This sector will house some 25,000 people in some 7,000 housing units with all services and transportation. Indeed, it will be a whole community in itself. These models filled the entire floor of a Paris office building. They detailed financial plans as well as all kinds of innovative software such as new educational facilities They were supplied by the four finalists selected from the first stage of the competition

These proposals showed quite a new way of thinking in solving the everyday problems of living expressed in some very exciting new architectural form

The project that won first prize totally departs from the rectangular monotonous high-rise apartment buildings that offer good financial returns, are efficient to build, but have become symbols of alienation all over the world The new community looks like nothing so much as a group of pyramids of various size interspersed with greenery Each pyramid consists of individual apartments each with its own private outdoor space They are piled up in seemingly random fashion, complete with trees, parks, schools, and shopping. They preserve the linear scale, while urban densities prevail.

Vehicular traffic and people are strictly separated. This by now is a rule observed in practically all new communities designed in France.

There were many new imaginative ideas and solutions proposed such as multifunctional schools that serve the whole community — public buildings that are combined with shopping and recreation so they do not stand idle on weekends and after 5 p.m One of the projects proposed an internal monorail which runs the length of the linear high-rise town while each apartment has an unobstructed view over the countryside. What fun it would be for the children to be able to move freely about town on a train. Yet they would have ready access to playing fields, sports facilities, and a series of recreation and education centers placed on the ground alongside the sloping apartment blocks.

In France, this innovative and fresh view of life, creating an untraditional and imaginative environment, is juxtaposed with preservation, rehabilitation, and conservation of handsome well-used historic buildings.

Grenoble certainly is a case in point. Located at the foot of the Alps — indeed the site of the 1968 Winter Olympics — Grenoble has a bracing climate, a spectacular environment, and a most handsome historic city center that has been lovingly restored.

Grenoble is, in the orbit of the powerful Mediterranean city building traditions, also an area of some of the greatest growth of France. Companies in fields of electronics, circuitry, computers, fine machine tools, and the like have located there. They are drawn, in part, by the excellent university and the availability of a skilled labor force Recreation also is a growing income source for the region.

On the outskirts of the old city, a great deal of new building is going on. To prevent haphazard, wasteful growth, the city fathers decided that development must be rationally planned and controlled. One reason for having the Winter Olympics in Grenoble was that the city could get more and faster support from Paris for its building projects. The Olympic village was planned from the start to be the first stage of a new community.

I visited Grenoble last summer. Echirolles and New Grenoble, including the former Olympic village, now are functioning new communities full of children and activity and with much more construction under way A traditional street market is set up every day in one central area There are shops with gay awnings, fountains and playgrounds, gardens and arcades

"We asked the people who came here first how they like to live here. They are mainly industrial workers and most of the buildings here are subsidized." said Laurent Lefebvre, an architect who is working in the site development office for the new communities and Grenoble.

"The people enjoy living here to be sure But they all said they wished that they had a place where they could all meet Often they do not see one another, as the stores are too dispersed What they wanted most was a real center for all activities.

"So when we planned the next stage of the development we did just that. We concentrated all the shops, all activities, even the multipurpose schools that serve as community centers, in one area.

"These schools furthermore are initiating a new educational experiment for all of France. We are developing a pedestrian street where everything and everyone will be together right underneath the apartment buildings."

A pedestrian mall on the ground floor of the Y-shaped, connected high-rise apartment blocks concentrates all the people and activities Shops are planned for either side of these walkways, which open up every so often to green recreation areas beyond. Vehicular traffic and parking are concentrated to one side in one area.

A Department of Animation, which has the help of some sociologists, has been created to help plan these zones of intensive, concentrated activity This is an innovation that should be carefully watched by planners elsewhere, because there is nothing more devastating than the boredom and the unused empty spaces that characterize many new communities.

But the most exciting visual innovation is the use of brilliant colors — bright red, blue, yellow, and purple plastic paint applied to the high-rise concrete structures. This has attracted people from all over the area to the new town. And it has created special pride in the inhabitants, who enjoy the gaiety and distinction. It has turned the concrete high-rise buildings, produced under strict financial limitations of public subsidies, into distinctive new living environments of gaiety and imagination at hardly any extra cost.

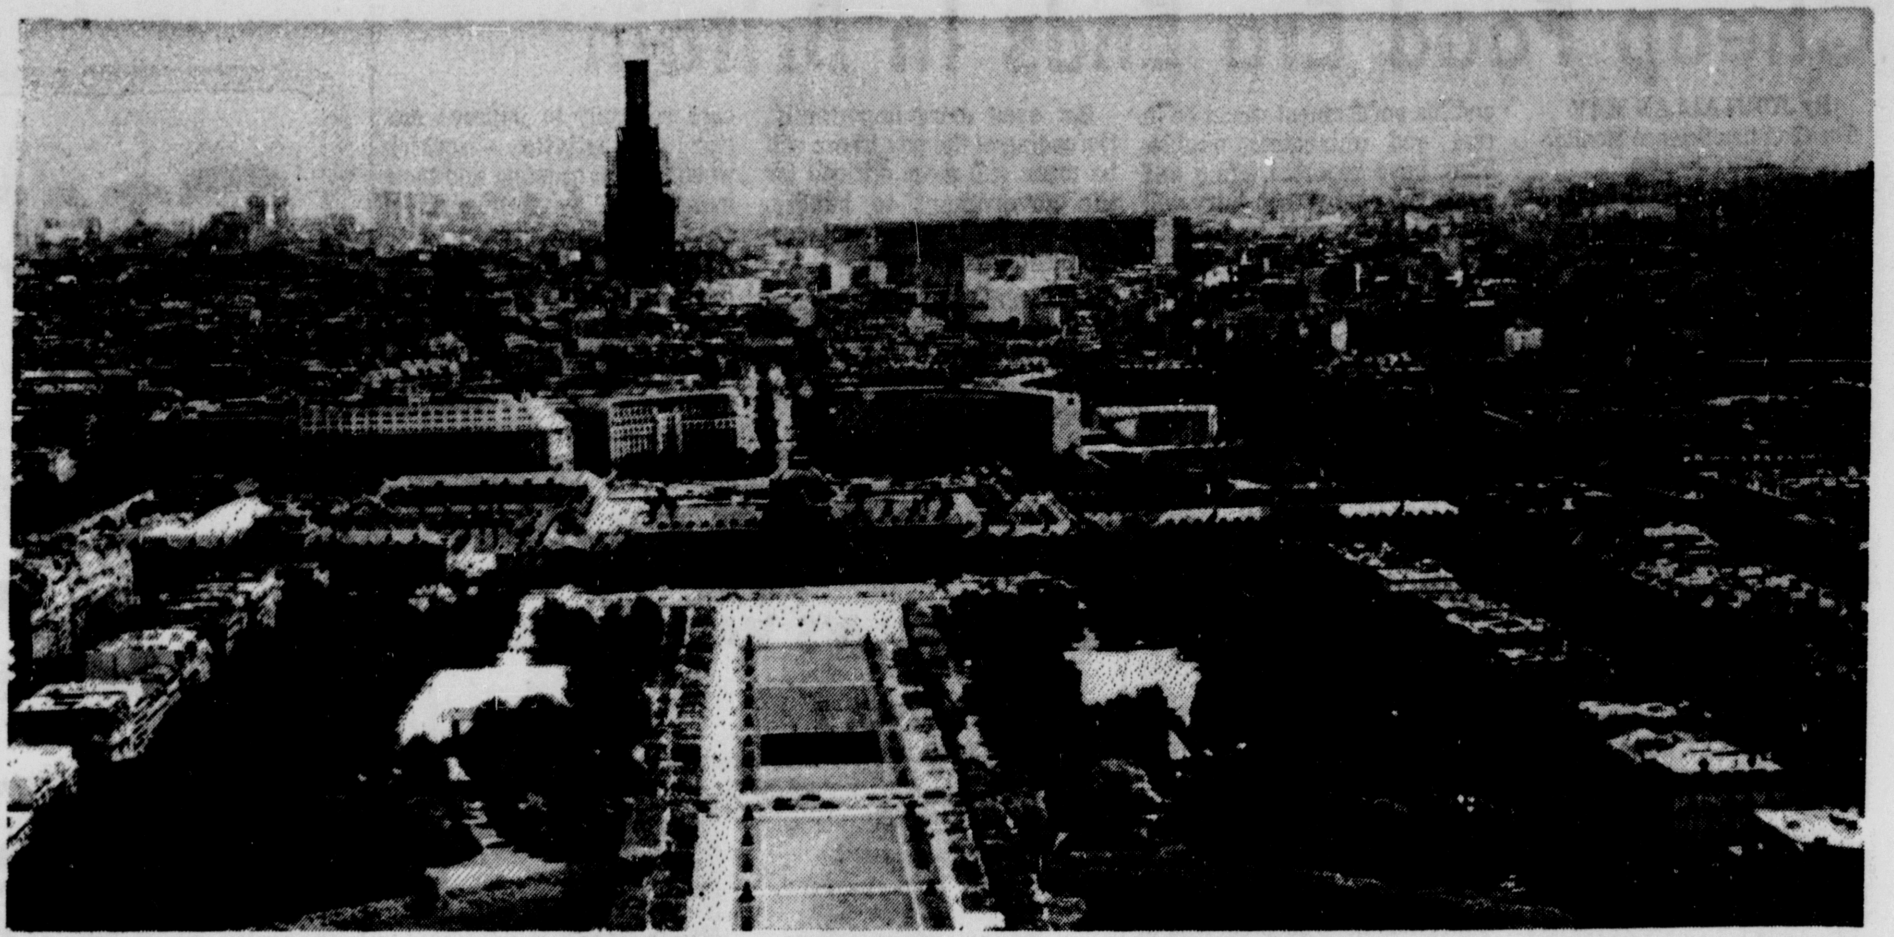
Last summer the buildings were only partly inhabited More were still under construction But one could already see the emergence of quite a different way of living It's a new kind of urbanism that retains the excitement and activities of a city, yet sacrifices none of the amenities of clean air, a beautiful view, greenery, and nature next door.

Individual dispersed houses, as in the U.S. suburbia, cannot be publicly financed in France, as this would cost too much. It also would waste too much land and would create impossible transportation problems for the inhabitants.

The most interesting technical innovation of this imaginative new development is a built-in vacuum system that disposes of all refuse and garbage without any mess, fuss, or bother.

Disposal chutes are built into the high-rise buildings. These connect underground by large diameter pipes to vacuum locks at critical points A central station controls these locks electrically

1973 The Christian Science Publishing Society



PARIS SKYSCRAPER — In this view from the Eiffel Tower, the unfinished gray concrete spire of Tour Montparnesse, Paris's first real skyscraper, rears up beyond the majestic 18th-century Ecole Militaire and the Champ-de-Mars (middle foreground.) The tall building which has stirred outcries from Parisians and urbanologists all over the world, is an example of the kind of thoughtless development French planners are determined to avoid in the future.

BREEZING ALONG — It's fun to ride a double-hulled catamaran. It's a favorite pastime in Hawaii, such as this sailing, called "flying a hull," at Keehi Lagoon near Honolulu.

Double-Hulled Vessels Grace Hawaii's Waters Just For Fun

By JODI BELKNAP
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

HONOLULU — Double-hulled sailing vessels that ply the pounding surf are not new to Hawaii. The islands' first discoverers, thought to be daring navigators from the far-off Marquesas Islands in the South Pacific, probably arrived in twin-hulled "surfing" canoes over a thousand years ago.

But a new sort of double-hulled craft graces Hawaiian waters today. It surfs. It races And it "flies a hull."

The versatile boat is an asymmertrical, centerboardless catamaran with a trampoline deck and molded fiber-glass hulls. These craft are providing hours of fun for families in Hawaii. Being centerboardless, the boats can be put directly into the water from the beach.

"The islands are a paradise for the boat because of our fine weather, winds, and manageable surf," says enthusiast Tom Bartlett, owner of a 14-foot Hobie Cat. "The speed of the boat gives a sense of freedom and independence that's super-exciting." The lightweight boats skim the seas at speeds of 20 to 25 miles per hour.

The thrilling sport lends itself well to competition. Skippers sail in solo races or with a crew member who sometimes balances precariously in a canvas trapeze over the side of the boat. The object of the sport is to encourage developing individual sailing skills without artifical aid.

Hobie Cat sailors from the United States mainland, Europe, South Africa, South America, Puerto Rico, Canada, Australia, New Guinea, and Japan were recently in Honolulu. Taking advantage of steady offshore trade winds and balmy tropical weather, they raced from the Outrigger Canoe Club on Waikiki Beach to Keehi Lagoon, just east of Honolulu International Airport, and back. Catamaran skippers tested their abilities in such competitions as the Don Ho Regatta, an annual event held in May. The famed Hawaiian entertainer and his family sail both a catrig (with one sail) and a sloop rig (with a mainsail and a jib).

In addition to competitive racing, Rich Naish, a Kailua resident, enjoys sailing with his wife and three children. "You can take half a dozen passengers out on the boat if you're not worried about how it rides," he said recently.

A favorite gathering place is Kailua Beach on the windward side of the Island of Oahu, 10 miles from Honolulu. Here a broad beach affords easy access to a semiprotected sailing area with plenty of gusty onshore winds.

Conditions near the Outrigger are often ideal for one asymmetrical catamaran specialty — surfing. Skippers sail skillfully out to sea through a narrow channel cut in the coral reef. Then they wait patiently for just the right ocean swell to propel their boats on an exciting ride back toward the beach. Nearby, board surfers linger a while longer to catch a good wave, without the aid of wind in a sail to supply a faster ride.

In flat Keehi Lagoon winds are favorable for another maneuver, "flying a hull." As the boat picks up speed, one hull glides silently into the air. For skipper and crew it's a thrilling adventure into what seems like time suspended. Lifting to precarious angles over the water, the boat balances on one hull as it races along.

If a sudden gust should threaten to tip the craft into the ocean, there's a split second for the skipper to release the mainsail and regain control. If he misses, the boat may go over on one side or even "turtle," meaning to turn upside down.

1. Ernest Borgnine, Hollywood film star, is 56 today. He came to fame in the 1950s playing the lead role in "Marty" and then got lucky as a funny seaman in a long-running TV series, "McHale's Navy." He actually did serve with the Navy in World War II. But was he given the Academy Award in 1955 as the best male actor?

Celebrating her 48th birthday today, she can look back on a career which took her from schools in California to the stages of New York and Paris Is it possible that among her honors was that of being made a princess of the Osage Indian tribe?

3. Maurice Couve De Murville, 66 today, was an ambassador of several countries, including the United States, but his greatest achievement was becoming Premier of France in 1968. Born at Rheims, he attended the University of Paris and joined General Giraud in North Africa after the Germans seized France in World War II. Was he awarded the Nobel Peace Prize in 1969?

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Knowing The Odds Will Help You Execute Correct Line Of Play

When the opponents hold six cards of a suit, the odds are almost 2 to 1 against a 3-3 break. Far more often, one of the opponents will have four of those six missing cards. Sometimes the right line of play depends on allowing for this 4-2 break.

WINS IN DUMMY

West opened the jack of spades, dummy put up the queen and East won with the ace. East returned a spade, and South discarded a diamond as dummy won the king.

Declarer drew two rounds of trumps with dummy's king and queen, discovering that West was bound to make a trump trick. The contract now depended on managing the clubs properly.

Declarer led the ace of clubs from dummy and next led a low club to his own king. The key play came next, when South led a low club instead of trying to cash the queen.

WEST RUFFS

West gave declarer a hard time by ruffing with the ten of hearts and leading a low diamond. South would ordinarily be tempted to play a low diamond from dummy, but he knew it would be fatal to let East win the trick since East would return another club to let West ruff again.

The only hope was to put up the king of diamonds, and this play turned out well. South easily made the rest of the tricks by drawing the last trump and running the clubs.

LOW CLUB CORRECT

South would have lost his contract if he had led the queen of clubs instead of a low club on the third round of that suit. West would ruff, cash the ace of diamonds and return a trump. Now South would still have to lose a club to East's jack.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner bids one no-trump (16 to 18 points), and the next player passes.

You hold:

♠ - A 8 7 4 2
♦ - Q 10 8
♣ - J 10 8 2.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two spades.

You expect partner to pass this weak response, and you expect two spades to be a safer contract than one no-trump. If partner unexpectedly raises to three spades (promising good spades and 17 or 18 points) you will accept the invitation to game.

Highway Stampede

BRERETON, England (AP) — It took wild horses to convince Cheshire motorist Eddie Swindells he was not having another nightmare. Driving home late one night, three terrified wild horses stampeded across his path, wrecking the car. Swindells, who was slightly hurt, said later: "At the time I couldn't believe it. Imagine what the insurance people are going to say."

EATING TIME — Hsing-Hsing, one of two pandas that were the gifts of China to the people of the U.S., turns his back on an admiring public, and sits behind his glass-walled cage to have a snack. The pandas have created a lot of excitement from visitors because of their general appearance and antics. (Christian Science Monitor photo)

Rollicking Fun-Loving Pandas Drawing Raves

By CHARLOTTE SAIKOWSKI
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Ling-Ling was rolling in a wooden bucket when her breakfast arrived. In moments she was sitting on her haunches, nimbly clutching the food pan with her forepaws and devouring the rice gruel with undisguised pleasure.

"Look, she eats like a person," squealed a 12-year-old boy, as Ling-Ling polished off her morning repast with a carrot and bamboo leaves.

"I can't believe it!" exclaimed a svelte New York fashion model. "I fabricated a trip to Washington just to see them, and now I can't tear myself away."

"Neat!" screamed a giggly girl in braids.

There's no other word for it. Ever since their arrival in April the two giant pandas China gave to the American people after President Nixon's visit to Peking have been the talk of Washington's National Zoo. With their white coats, black eye patches, chubby figures, and rollicky sense of fun and vivacity, Ling-Ling and Hsing-Hsing have become the biggest attraction the zoo has ever had, drawing record crowds that sometimes line up for a quarter of a mile and wait an hour or more.

So important are these natives of Kansu and Szechuan Provinces that the zoo now has a full-blown Panda Division, consisting of a director and three keepers.

Separated from their admirers by a plate of glass, the pair seem oblivious to the laughter and whoops of glee that inevitably greet their antics. But they are thriving in their new American home. On a diet of rice, fruits, vegetables, bamboo, and a ration of meat like that fed to the zoo's cats, Ling-Ling, now over 2 years old, has grown from 136 to 180 pounds. Hsing-Hsing (pronounced Shing-Shing), the male, has almost doubled in weight from 74 to 130 pounds. When fully grown, by about late spring, they will weigh some 300 pounds and stand six feet high. By then Hsing-Hsing will have the edge in size.

"They are the least frustrated animals in the park," said Curley Harper, one of the keepers, as we watched Ling-Ling nibbling a bamboo stalk. "Look at her —that's a sign of perfect contentment."

The pandas, classified at present in the raccoon family, although some zoologists consider them bears, have a lot of spirit. In their waking hours — they are active in the morning and late afternoon and sleep during the day and at night — they are turning somersaults, clambering up the pyramid of logs in their dens, running around, rolling in the wooden tubs which they have unceremoniously emptied of the bamboo stalks, or batting a ball.

"It's more than a mere existence of eating and sleeping," says a zoo official admiringly.

Ling-Ling has the more outgoing personality and is more playful. When she was younger, recalled Harper, she would balance herself on the edge of a high log and see how far she could roll over before falling off.

"She always fell off and then started all over again," the youthful, bearded keeper remarked with a laugh.

Hsing-Hsing, for his part, is shyer and warier of people; but he, too, is amusing to watch, and is said to be intelligent.

Although zoo officials are under constant temptation to give the pandas "tender love and care on a personal basis," they are making every effort to keep contact with them to a minimum so that when the animals reach maturity, in another three or four years, they can be bred. If Hsing-Hsing and Ling-Ling grow too fond of humans — or of each other —they may refuse to mate.

Their living conditions at the zoo seek to simulate to some extent life in the wilds, where pandas are basically solitary animals. The two are in separate dens, which are kept at an air-conditioned temperature of 50 degrees. Only in their grassy outdoor yards, which are divided by a mesh fence, can they see each other and there they often cavort together, rolling on their backs and somersaulting. Even indoors, however, they are aware of each other, as Ling-Ling demonstrated when she stood up against the dividing door and tried to peer through a peephole.

The keepers — there are three so the pandas do not become too attached to one man — maintain their distance. They enter the dens only at feeding and cleaning time, and there is always a backup man at the door in case anything untoward happens. Pandas, which have five fingers plus a protruding wristbone that serves as a thumb, can clutch objects as primates do; they also have powerful teeth, and therefore can be dangerous. Ling-Ling one day grabbed the boot of a keeper and would not let go until Harper entered the den and gave her a sturdy whack on the rump.

Because of their rarity and value, and to forestall incidents by political or other cranks, the pandas are under 24-hour guard.

If the zoo should succeed in breeding the popular twosome, one can only imagine the "pandamonium" an offspring would occasion. But that is a way off, yet, and for the moment the zoo is concentrating on expanding and remodeling the panda house. By late 1973 these royal Chinese residents, who cannot complain of their quarters even now, will have, as one official puts it, "the most lavish accommodations in all pandadom."

Hsing-Hsing seems not in the least dissatisfied with his present home. After stripping a bamboo stalk clean of its leaves, he moseyed over to a log, flopped down, and settled himself into position for a long, contented snooze.
